U.S. Senate's 'Conscience' Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philip A. Hart, who influenced major civil rights and consumer protection legislation during three terms in the U.S. Senate, is dead at 64. Hart, a Michigan Democrat, died at his Washington home Sunday, a victim of cancer. Often called "the conscience of the Senate," Hart worked hard for passage of civil rights laws and for measures that would protect consumers from powerful big business interests. He sought unsuccessfully to win approval of legislation to dismantle the nation's largest businesses.

Hart was a leader of the Senate liberals and had announced in June of 1975 that he would not seek a fourth Senate term because he believed "that the guard should be changed with some regularity." A month after his announcement, Hart discovered he had cancer. A spokesman for Hart's office said he died of malignant melanoma.

Hart's wife, Jane, said the last thing he was aware of was his daughter, Ann, and three of her friends singing Christmas carols in his bedroom on Christmas night. Mrs. Hart said she, their eight children, a son-in-law and two grandchildren were at Hart's bedside when he died.

President-elect Carter issued a statement from his office in Plains, Ga., praising Hart as "a man of unquestioned integrity" who "exemplified the highest of moral and ethical standards in public service. He was a friend of the American consumer and a tireless worker against injustice." Carter called Hart's death "a tragic loss."

President Ford, vacationing in Vail, Colo., expressed "deep regret" over Hart's death. Fellow Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called Hart "a giant in the Senate.... His voice never shook the rafters, but touched the conscience of every senator who worked with him."

According to a spokesman for Hart's office, funeral arrangements were planned by Hart and his wife. The spokesman said a public memorial Mass will be celebrated at St. Matthews Cathedral here Tuesday. Hart's body will be cremated and the remains taken to Mackinac Island, Mich., on Wednesday for private burial in St. Anne's Catholic cemetery, the spokesman said. The Harts have a home on the island.

Donald W. Riegle, another Democrat, is to succeed Hart in the Senate next month. Riegle was elected to the House as a Republican in 1966, became a Democrat in 1973 and won the Senate seat last month. Hart's strong feelings about civil rights and about the rights of consumers in the American marketplace often had him standing alone against members of his own party.

The Michigan senator once defied tradition and the Senate seniority system by casting the lone dissenting vote in the Democratic caucus against making Sen. James O. Eastland of Mississippi president pro tem of the Senate. The post puts '...Tireless Worker Against Injustice'

Eastland third in line of succession to the presidency of the United States.

Hart told his fellow Democrats at the caucus that because of Eastland's views on civil rights he would make an "outrageous" president. "For me to put him in line for the presidency is something I can't do," Hart said.

C&O's Ninth Derailment In Berrien This Year

Two C&O boxcars loaded with auto parts remain submerged in the St. Joseph river today as the result of a seven-car train derailment Friday night at the railroad bridge in St. Joseph near Water and Vine streets, St. Joseph police reported.

No injuries were reported. The C&O railroad will attempt to have the two cars removed from the water Tuesday, police reported. The five other cars that derailed remained on land and have been cleared from the scene.

The Christmas Eve incident is the ninth derailment reported on the C&O tracks in Berrien county during 1976.

The cause of the derailment was not immediately determined. C&O railroad officials are investigating to find out the cause, police reported.

Police reported the seven derailed cars were near the end of the 83-car C&O train headed south, from Grand Rapids to New Buffalo.

An oil barge scheduled to arrive in the Twin Cities harbor from Chicago Sunday was delayed or diverted, according to the St. Joseph coast guard, after a warning was issued for shipping.

The coast guard said the two boxcars were just outside of the navigation channel and would not interfere with any shipping. However, the bridge was knocked out of operation and could not be opened, pending repairs that are reported underway. The coast guard marked the submerged cars and separated wheel trucks with buoys.

The derailment occurred about 10 p.m. near the bridge located below the St. Joseph band shell in Lakefront park.

Police reported the 13th car from the end of the train derailed just before entering onto the bridge. The 13th and 12th car from the end landed in the water. The five other Lions Fire All Coaches!

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions have fired their entire coaching staff and want to hire Los Angeles Rams coach Chuck Knox as their next coach, according to a report in today's Detroit News.

Lions' officials, including owner William Clay Ford, could not be reached immediately for comment.

The News quoted National Football League sources as saying that the entire Lions' coaching staff has been dismissed. The Lions reportedly sent a message to all franchise offices on the NFL teletype that assistants who served under former coach Rick Forzano and interim coach Tommy Hudspeth during the 1976 season had been fired, the newspaper said.

The News quoted football sources as saying the New York Jets are also interested in hiring Knox.

Hudspeth, named coach after Forzano resigned four games into the season, denied the assistants had been fired. He said all the assistants had been told they were free to seek jobs elsewhere because of the uncertainty of the Lions' coaching situation.

NILES — Police here said today they had no one in custody yet in a case where an elderly woman was tied up and left locked in the trunk of her car in sub-freezing temperatures last week.

Det. Bill Weaver of the city police department said investigators were awaiting results of tests being conducted by the state police crime laboratory to further the probe.

The woman, Mrs. Frances Ruple, 70, of 653 North 11th street, was trapped in the trunk for five days before being freed. The car was parked in an unheated garage attached to her house.

Spokesmen at Pawating hospital here said Mrs. Ruple was in good condition today and "recovering well" from her ordeal.

Police said Mrs. Ruple had been found Wednesday afternoon by a niece, Helen Criffeld, 20, Lester, Dowagiac, who had become concerned about her whereabouts.

Mrs. Ruple was wearing only a dress when tied up and forced into the trunk by a man who came to her house Dec. 17 and robbed her at knifepoint. She kept warm by wrapping up in a blanket that was in the trunk.

Police said she managed to untie herself and attempted unsuccessfully to get out of the trunk. She sustained bruises in the attempt, they said. Weaver said so far it had been determined that $250 in cash had been taken from the home but that a full accounting would not be possible until the woman is released from the hospital.

Mrs. Ruple lived alone and is a retiree from Industrial Coil Co., Niles, police said.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Those Close Advisors To The President

As the federal government's power and complexity has expanded through the years the role of Presidential advisors has grown.

Andrew Jackson is credited with being the first White House occupant to turn to people outside the cabinet for consultation.

His political enemies derided the "kitchen cabinet."

Jackson paid scant heed to the outburst and one of his closest confidantes, Martin Van Buren, became Vice President during Old Hickory's second term. Van Buren escalated the association into the Presidency for himself.

Jimmy Carter, though proclaiming he will rely more upon his cabinet members than did his predecessors, is fully attuned to the desirability of having knowledgeable associates whose livelihood is not totally dependent on holding a government job and will move into Washington accompanied by an inner circle.

Inevitably this coterie will become newsworthy and the closer are its members to Jimmy, if history is not reversed, they will come under fire from within and outside his Administration.

Col. Edward M. House, a strong

Harry Hopkins became FDR's alter ego in World War II.

The Republicans made campaign issues of both advisors.

Hopkins moved into the limelight after FDR's original Brain Trust went behind the curtain.

Roosevelt first chose three economics professors from Columbia University for his counselors. They were Adolf A. Berle, Jr., Raymond Moley and Rexford Guy Tugwell.

Only two days after FDR's election in 1932, Berle sent the President-elect a memorandum which became the blueprint for farm relief, regulation of the stock exchanges and securities issues, the breakup of public utility holding companies, banking reform, and unemployment insurance.

The triumvirate dispersed in FDR's second term.

Berle left the team to return to teaching and publishing books on the American corporate structure.

Moley split with Roosevelt in ideological grounds. He felt Roosevelt was moving too far leftward.

Tugwell was let go as too much of a political albatross.

John F. Kennedy was the second President to borrow extensively from the academic world.

He turned to his alma mater, Harvard for McGee Bundy, the political scientist, John Kenneth Galbraith, the economist, and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., the historian.

Only Galbraith's wild theories were beginning to attract unfavorable public attention before Kennedy was murdered. The transition to the Johnson Administration saw all three men depart the Washington scene.

The most inept of Presidential advisors were H.R. Haldemann, John Dean and John Ehrlichman whose fabricating of the Watergate caper has to go down in history as the worst bit of political architecture in history.

Advisors in the past some times became an embarrassment to a President.

This trio was the first to pack one out of office.

Jimmy can be counted upon to steer clear of Richard Nixon's mistake at all costs.

Rapist's Victim Helps The Court Decide Sentence

If society does not make an example of those who prey upon it, can justice have meaning? That question was answered in an unusual way in a Washington, D.C. courtroom, when the judge had before him for sentencing a young rapist.

After listening to the defendant's plea and the parole officer's report, the judge called upon the rapist's victim. One reporter described the victim's appearance at sentencing "virtually unprecedented."

Describing the trauma of the beating and assault on herself and her 5-year-old daughter, who was a witness to the attack, the victim added: "When it is over you will move on to other problems and other cases. It will not be over for me or her..."

The sentence? Fifteen to 45 years.

IRS Might Not Like Housewives For Hire

Dr. Jesse Hartline is a Rutgers University economist who seems determined to prove two points: that economics does not have to be a dismal science and that people who say ingenuity and imagination have been drained from American life are wrong.

What Dr. Hartline is proposing, quite seriously, is that the American housewife go to work — keeping house for her neighbor. The neighbor, in turn, would take care of her house. Each does all the chores she would do in her own house. And each bills the other for her services.

That way, Dr. Hartline figures, each becomes a working person in the eyes of the economic laws of the nation, liable to contribute to Social Security, unemployment insurance and possibly other benefits such as group insurance and pension funds. Each also could then collect from these funds when the occasion arises.

All this is theory, of course. The Internal Revenue Service, to name just one federal agency which could become involved in the scheme, has yet to be heard from. In addition to the enumerated benefits, the Rutgers economist figures the housewife also could deduct the cost of cleaning materials as a business expense.

There is just one fallacy in this arrangement. The IRS has assumed or been given by Congress a wide latitude to issue rules and regulations when tax matters are involved. It has denied business losses, for example, on part-time businesses when it is apparent — to the IRS, at least — that investment is designed to produce a tax loss.

Should the Hartline theory be adopted into practice, the IRS could be expected to step into the arrangement with regulatory guns blazing.

TAX BITE BIGGER THAN FOOD, HOUSING

Editor,
Americans will have to work a little longer this coming year to make enough money to pay their increasing tax burden.

I read where The Tax Foundation, a nonprofit group which watches government management of fiscal affairs, said the average American would spend 2 hours and 42 minutes out of each 8 hour working day to pay his 1977 federal, state and local taxes.

"Those who don't particularly enjoy paying taxes and like to do the hard jobs first can look forward to May 15," it says. "By that time, the average American will have earned enough to pay all of his 1977 taxes."

Taxes take more than one-third of the average American's income and they take more than the second and third items (housing and food) put together.

If we want to see the real impact of inflation over the past twenty years, we should just check what has been happening to our taxes.

WOULD BAN NIGHT SNOWMOBILING

Editor,

Now that the snow season is upon us, it's that time of the year when the snowmobilers come out again to pollute our environment!

As in the past, the Environmental Concerned Citizens of Michigan (ECCCM) has renewed its position of a total ban of snowmobiling in the State of Michigan.

From a practical point of view, we realize that this position is not feasible. But we do feel that something can and must be done to curtail this threat.

We are now proposing that all snowmobiling in the State of Michigan be limited to daylight hours in the hopes of restricting the damage being done through noise and air pollution.

We hope that the citizens of Michigan will join with us in our efforts to ban the snowmobilers from their purge of the Michigan landscape during the nighttime!

READER DOUBTS STORY OF CATS

Editor,

The story about having cats in trenches to kill rats strikes me as being more or less fiction as I spent some 28 days in the trenches in World War I and did not see a cat. The rats were everywhere.

My first night on sentry duty, I kept hearing something in a hollow about thirty feet in front of my sentry post. Being my first night, this slight noise was very irritating and made me think the enemy could be sneaking up on me through the grass. I finally pulled a pin on a grenade and heaved it into the hollow from whence the noise came. After the explosion, all was still and I decided to crawl out and see how many of the enemy I had destroyed. I soon learned the noise was the enemy, only not Germans but rats. They were running through some old rolls of rusted out barbed wire and by the time I got close, had resumed their fun and games; must have been over 50 in that hollow.

Unlike normal sentry duty, I was assigned this job with no relief. It was a steady nightly job. The only night I had off was

— 10 Years Ago —

A team captained by Dave Cox bowed 6-0 in the football team captained by Chuck Benya in the 12th annual "Snow Bowl" game played yesterday at Fairplain Junior High field.

Dick DeGroff fell on a fumble in the end zone in sudden death overtime after an intercepted pass put the ball on the one-yard line. The game was played in 3-4 inches of soft snow which slowed action enough so that no one got hurt — just cold. Neither side could run against each other and the only passes caught were by the defense. Terry Rose, football coach at St. Joseph Catholic, refereed. Players were from all of the greater twin city area high schools.

— 25 Years Ago —

Algonquin chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in cooperation with the National D.A.R.'s Good Citizenship Pilgrimage, today announced its two pilgrims for 1952. They are Miss Carolyn Louise Beckwith of Benton Harbor and Miss Betty Jean Schultz of St. Joseph, both seniors in their respective high schools, and they were selected by their classmates and faculty members for leadership, dependability, service, and citizenship.

— 30 Years Ago —

Twenty-five years ago a young man started in business in a flimsy frame building on lower Broad street in St. Joseph. His assets consisted of the rented building, an oil wagon, a team of mules, a little kerosene and a lot of ambition. Today announcement is made of the amalgamation of the purchasing power and sales strength of approximately 50 independent oil concerns in Michigan. It is not a merger of companies into one corporation, but rather an alliance in which each member maintains its identity. The important point is that these 50 concerns henceforth will pool their purchases and consolidate their marketing. It is a merger that marks a revolution in the petroleum industry in Michigan and challenges the supremacy of the Standard Oil company.

Trade papers and magazines all over the country are giving it their attention. And the moving genius behind it all is J.J. Theisen, head of the Theisen-Clemens Oil company, the same man who began his business 25 years ago in St. Joseph. The alliance means that the banner of "Dixie Distributors, Inc." will fly throughout Michigan.

— 75 Years Ago —

John Dunbar, aged about 13, while sliding on one of the bays at St. Joseph, near Truscott's today, broke through and Nathan Konold, one of the Evening Herald carrier boys, rescued him.

"No kiddin'. Frank! You should see how sales people treat me since I started wearin' this outfit!"

Military Might: The High Cost

WASHINGTON — Air Force Magazine is to armaments what Playboy is to sex. Its centerfold features frontal shots of the B-1 bomber. Its readers get it on by viewing graphs of the balance of power. And each year it dedicates itself to a pornographic review in the truest sense: an exhaustive listing of the military strengths of most of the world's nations.

The people of Saudi Arabia, for example, are currently spending nearly one-third of their gross national product on weaponry. In the U.S., as in the Soviet Union, the national military expenditure approaches $300 per capita. Even in neutral Sweden, one of every six males serves in a reserve force capable of 48-hour mobilization.

But the most numbing statistics are the world totals. The magazine does not compile these figures, leaving this to readers with calculators. Thus at present, according to mathematics for nearly 100 nations, mankind is spending almost $350 billion annually to support some 25 million active and about 56 million standby soldiers.

It can be argued that these totals are somewhat exaggerated. Adding up militarism is not the same as counting apples. Because of state secrecy and other vagaries, some figuring is necessarily weak. Therefore, the expenditure totals may be several billion high, and maybe half of those listed as standby troops should not fairly be counted.

Then again, even an exaggerated list is in fact a conservative one where modern security is concerned. However much money is being spent, it purchases defenses of unprecedented sophistication. A plane today is equivalent to an entire air force of World War II; a single ship is more powerful than any fleet in history; and we have about 1,200,000 times the nuclear power that was dropped on Hiroshima.

And so it's clear this Christmas that civilization is separated into armed camps that have no historic comparison. In 1959, as the world was still working free from the Cold War, total military expenditure was about $67 billion. Since then, detente notwithstanding, international defense financing has almost quadrupled — and we now pay almost $1 billion a day in suspicion of one another.

There are other costs as well. Particularly those of a social nature. Each dollar spent in support of the world's 121,000 tanks means one less that could go to individual needs. In India, where people starve, the generals command 1.5 million soldiers. In Oman, where illiteracy is commonplace, per capita military spending is about $800. And in slum infested Egypt, almost half of the GNP is spent for guns.

Economist Ruth Leger Sivar says that nations now budget more for armies than for education. She says world health care receives only half the financing of world munitions. Her figures show the Middle East nations spending twice as much for defense as on education and health combined. Even the U.S. is guilty; it ranks first or second in war appropriations, but fourth in per capita cash for education.

Happy holidays? The compilations in Air Force Magazine this season go on for 66 pages. Russia has 41,500 tanks; Italy has as many reservists as does the U.S.; Zaire, which is landlocked, has 12 combat ships; Singapore, all 228 square miles of it, has 225 jet fighters; and East Germany, with a population of 17 million, budgets more for its arms than does India with 35 times the people.

Can Carter Tame Monster?

WASHINGTON — President-elect Jimmy Carter's ambition to streamline the sprawling Federal government into a tidy institution that will be more responsive to public needs is both exciting and praiseworthy.

It is also probably impossible. For the past 50 years, whether a Democrat or a Republican occupied the White House, the Executive branch has continued to grow, often without any coherent pattern or purpose. Periodic efforts to reshuffle the system or stem the tide have made little more than cosmetic changes.

President John Kennedy once announced he would consolidate the Labor and Commerce Departments, but by the time the cries of pain from their separate constituencies died away the idea was dead, and with it any other dreams of reorganization. President Richard Nixon proposed a tinkering with the government structure, which he immodestly labeled the Second American Revolution, and it too died a hasty death.

Carter comes to office in a restless climate of change and reform, with a Democratic Congress also more receptive to new ideas than perhaps ever before in history. But the task of reshaping an entrenched bureaucracy is formidable nonetheless. Government agencies, once created, tend to develop a life of their own, borne along by sheer momentum.

Congress, recognizing the immortality of government agencies, considered last year a measure which would automatically limit the existence of most agencies, thereby forcing their re-evaluation on a regular basis. Called the "Sunset Law," it has predictably stirred a great deal of opposition and is not likely to pass any time soon.

A study made a few months ago by Brookings Institution came to the conclusion that growth in the number of Federal government organizations is likely to continue, despite increasing concern about the trend. To keep the inquiry manageable, Brookings senior fellow Herbert Kaufman omitted the Defense Department and the U.S. Postal Service as well as independent agencies and special boards, committees and commissions.

The survey found that of 175 government organizations existing in 1923, 148 or nearly 85 per cent were still going in 1972. Only 27 had disappeared. In addition, 246 new ones had been added to the total in the meantime.

Projecting those figures 50 years into the future, the study warned that if government agencies then bore the same ratio to the 1973 population that the 1972 population bears to the 1923 group, the government would include 387 units, including 333 survivors from 1923 and 544 created in the next five decades. Whew.

There are many factors favoring long agency life. Enacting legislation is a lengthy, painful process requiring extensive bargaining, and once having achieved a consensus on a statute creating an agency, legislators are not normally disposed to reverse themselves quickly. Secondly, congealed agencies can be helpful to a congressman, locating facilities and stimulating jobs in the appropriate places and acting favorably on problems of constituents.

Those Close Advisors To The President

As the federal government's power and complexity has expanded through the years the role of Presidential advisors has grown.

Andrew Jackson is credited with being the first White House occupant to turn to people outside the cabinet for consultation.

His political enemies derided the conclave as the "kitchen cabinet."

Jackson paid scant heed to the outburst and one of his closest confidantes, Martin Van Buren, became Vice President during Old Hickory's second term. Van Buren escalated the association into the Presidency for himself.

Jimmy Carter, though proclaiming he will rely more upon his cabinet members than did his predecessors, is fully attuned to the desirability of having knowledgeable associates whose livelihood is not totally dependent on holding a government job and will move into Washington accompanied by an inner circle.

Inevitably this coterie will become newsworthy and the closer are its members to Jimmy, if history is not reversed, they will come under fire from within and outside his Administration.

Rapist's Victim Helps The Court Decide Sentence

If society does not make an example of those who prey upon it, can justice have meaning? That question was answered in an unusual way in a Washington, D.C. courtroom, when the judge had before him for sentencing a young rapist.

After listening to the defendant's plea and the parole officer's report, the judge called upon the rapist's victim. One reporter described the victim's appearance at sentencing "virtually unprecedented."

Describing the trauma of the beating and assault on herself and her 5-year-old daughter, who was a witness to the attack, the victim added: "When it is over you will move on to other problems and other cases. It will not be over for me or her..."

The sentence? Fifteen to 45 years.

IRS Might Not Like Housewives For Hire

Dr. Jesse Hartline is a Rutgers University economist who seems determined to prove two points: that economics does not have to be a dismal science and that people who say ingenuity and imagination have been Anglophile, greatly influenced Woodrow Wilson in taking a pro-Allied stand long before the U.S. officially went to war against the Central Powers in 1917.

Harry Hopkins became FDR's alter ego in World War II.

The Republicans made campaign issues of both advisors.

Hopkins moved into the limelight after FDR's original Brain Trust went behind the curtain.

Roosevelt first chose three economics professors from Columbia University for his counselors. They were Adolf A. Berle, Jr., Raymond Moley and Rexford Guy Tugwell.

Only two days after FDR's election in 1932, Berle sent the President-elect a memorandum which became the blueprint for farm relief, regulation of the stock exchanges and securities issues, the breakup of public utility holding companies, banking reform, and unemployment insurance.

The triumvirate dispersed in FDR's second term.

Berle left the team to return to teaching and publishing books on the American corporate structure.

Moley split with Roosevelt in ideological grounds. He felt Roosevelt was moving too far leftward.

Tugwell was let go as too much of a political albatross.

John F. Kennedy was the second President to borrow extensively from the academic world.

He turned to his alma mater, Harvard for McGeorge Bundy, the political scientist, John Kenneth Galbraith, the economist, and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., the historian.

Only Galbraith's wild theories were beginning to attract unfavorable public attention before Kennedy was murdered. The transition to the Johnson Administration saw all three men depart the Washington scene.

The most inept of Presidential advisors were H.R. Haldemann, John Dean and John Ehrlichman whose fabricating of the Watergate caper has to go down in history as the worst bit of political architecture in history.

Advisors in the past some times became an embarrassment to a President.

This trio was the first to pack one out of office.

drained from American life are wrong.

What Dr. Hartline is proposing, quite seriously, is that the American housewife go to work — keeping house for her neighbor. The neighbor, in turn, would take care of her house. Each does all the chores she would do in her own house. And each bills the other for her services.

That way, Dr. Hartline figures, each becomes a working person in the eyes of the economic laws of the nation, liable to contribute to Social Security, unemployment insurance and possibly other benefits such as group insurance and pension funds. Each also could then collect from these funds when the occasion arises.

All this is theory, of course. The Internal Revenue Service, to name just one federal agency which could become involved in the scheme, has yet to be heard from. In addition to the enumerated benefits, the Rutgers economist figures the housewife also could deduct the cost of cleaning materials as a business expense.

There is just one fallacy in this arrangement. The IRS has assumed or been given by Congress a wide latitude to issue rules and regulations when tax matters are involved. It has denied business losses, for example, on part-time businesses when it is apparent — to the IRS, at least — that investment is designed to produce a tax loss.

Should the Hartline theory be adopted into practice, the IRS could be expected to step into the arrangement with regulatory guns blazing.

TAX BITE BIGGER THAN FOOD, HOUSING

Editor,
Americans will have to work a little longer this coming year to make enough money to pay their increasing tax burden.

I read where The Tax Foundation, a nonprofit group which watches government management of fiscal affairs, said the average American would spend 2 hours and 42 minutes out of each 8 hour working day to pay his 1977 federal, state and local taxes.

"Those who don't particularly enjoy paying taxes and like to do the hard jobs first can look forward to May 15," it says. "By that time, the average American will have earned enough to pay all of his 1977 taxes."

Taxes take more than one-third of the average American's income and they take more than the second and third items (housing and food) put together.

If we want to see the real impact of inflation over the past twenty years, we should just check what has been happening to our taxes.

WOULD BAN NIGHT SNOWMOBILING

Editor,

Now that the snow season is upon us, it's that time of the year when the snowmobiles come out again to pollute our environment!

As in the past, the Environmental Concerned Citizens of Michigan (ECCCM) has renewed its position of a total ban of snowmobiling in the State of Michigan.

From a practical point of view, we realize that this position is not feasible. But we do feel that something can and must be done to curtail this threat.

We are now proposing that all snowmobiling in the State of Michigan be limited to daylight hours in the hopes of restricting the damage being done through noise and air pollution.

We hope that the citizens of Michigan will join with us in our efforts to ban the snowmobiles from their purge of the Michigan landscape during the nighttime!

READER DOUBTS STORY OF CATS

Editor,

The story about having cats in trenches to kill rats strikes me as being more or less fiction as I spent some 28 days in the trenches in World War I and did not see a cat. The rats were everywhere.

My first night on sentry duty, I kept hearing something in a hollow about thirty feet in front of my sentry post. Being my first night, this slight noise was very irritating and made me think the enemy could be sneaking up on me through the grass. I finally pulled a pin on a grenade and heaved it into the hollow from whence the noise came. After the explosion, all was still and I decided to crawl out and see how many of the enemy I had destroyed. I soon learned the noise was the enemy, only not Germans but rats. They were running through some old rolls of rusted out barbed wire and by the time I got close, had resumed their fun and games; must have been over 50 in that hollow.

Unlike normal sentry duty, I was assigned this job with no relief. It was a steady nightly job. The only night I had off was

Dick DeGroff fell on a fumble in the end zone in sudden death overtime after an intercepted pass put the ball on the one-yard line. The game was played in 3-4 inches of soft snow which slowed action enough so that no one got hurt — just cold. Neither side could run against each other and the only passes caught were by the defense. Terry Rose, football coach at St. Joseph Catholic, refereed. Twenty-five years ago a young man started in business in a flimsy frame building on lower Broad street in St. Joseph. His assets consisted of the rented building, an oil wagon, a team of mules, a little kerosene and a lot of ambition. Today announcement is made of the amalgamation of the purchasing power and sales strength of approximately 50 independent oil concerns in Michigan. It is not a merger of companies into one corporation, but rather an alliance in which each member maintains its identity. The important point is that these 50 concerns henceforth will pool their purchases and consolidate their marketing. It is a merger that marks a revolution in the petroleum industry in Michigan and challenges the supremacy of the Standard Oil company.

Trade papers and magazines all over the country are giving it their attention. And the moving genius behind it all is J.J. Military Might: The High Cost

WASHINGTON — Air Force Magazine is to armaments what Playboy is to sex. Its centerfold features frontal shots of the B-1 bomber. Its readers get it on by viewing graphs of the balance of power. And each year it dedicates itself to a pornographic review in the truest sense: an exhaustive listing of the military strengths of most of the world's nations.

The people of Saudi Arabia, for example, are currently spending nearly one-third of their gross national product on weaponry. In the U.S., as in the Soviet Union, the national military expenditure approaches $500 per capita. Even in neutral Sweden, one of every six males serves in a reserve force capable of 48-hour mobilization.

But the most numbing statistics are the world totals. The magazine does not compile these figures, leaving this to readers with calculators. Thus at present, according to mathematics for nearly 100 nations, mankind is spending almost $350 billion annually to support some 25 million active and about 56 million standby soldiers.

It can be argued that these totals are somewhat exaggerated. Adding up militarism is not the same as counting apples. Because of state secrecy and other vagaries, some figuring is necessarily weak. Therefore, the expenditure totals may be several billion high, and maybe half of those listed as standby troops should not fairly be counted.

Then again, even an exaggerated list is in fact a conservative one where modern security is concerned. However much money is being spent, it purchases defenses of unprecedented sophistication. A plane today is equivalent to an entire air force of World War II; a single ship is more powerful than any fleet in history; and we have about 1,200,000 times the nuclear power that was dropped on Hiroshima.

And so it's clear this Christmas that civilization is separated into armed camps that have no historic comparison. In 1959, as the world was still working free from the Cold War, total military expenditure was about $97 billion. Since then, detente notwithstanding, international defense financing has almost quadrupled — and we now pay almost $1 billion a day in suspicion of one another.

There are other costs as well. Particularly those of a social nature. Each dollar spent in support of the world's 121,000 tanks means one less that could go to individual needs. In India, where people starve, the generals command 1.5 million soldiers. In Oman, where illiteracy is commonplace, per capita military spending is about $900. And in slum infested Egypt, almost half of the GNP is spent for guns.

Economist Ruth Leger Sivar says that nations now budget more for armies than for education. She says world health care receives only half the financing of world munitions. BH Will Dedicate New Recreation Center

Use Is Seen By March

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Benton Harbor city and school officials are scheduled Wednesday to dedicate the new $2.2 million recreation center located behind Benton Harbor high school.

However, the two-level, 28,000 square-foot building is not expected to be put into use until March, according to Larry Nielsen, Benton Harbor recreation director.

Nielsen said another $1 million is being sought in a federal grant to equip the building and complete projects deleted from original plans.

The center will be operated by the Benton Harbor area parks and recreation board formed by charter under and agreement between the City of Benton Harbor and Benton H&Foor Area schools.

Milton Wells, who will be the director of operations of the center, said the projected costs of running the center have been estimated at approximately $190,000 a year. Costs for maintenance and operation of the center are expected to be shared between the city and the school system, according to Nielsen.

Dedication events Wednesday at 3 p.m. will include ribbon cutting ceremonies and a tour of the facility. Officials invited to attend the ceremonies include city and school officials, representatives from Berrien county and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and State Sen. Charles Zollar (R-Benton Harbor) and State Rep. Ray Mittan (R-Niles).

Construction of the center is funded by state and federal grants and a $400,000 bond issue by the City of Benton Harbor. It includes an 82.6 foot (25 meters) by 42 foot swimming pool, a multi-purpose room, administrative offices, locker and shower rooms and a lounge area.

The center was originally scheduled to be completed in October, but ran into funding problems almost from the onset.

The funding problems revolved around an $800,000 bond issue by the City of Benton Harbor. In March, a Michigan Court of Appeals ruling held up municipal bond sales throughout the state and halted construction of the center for about a month.

In addition, the Michigan Municipal Finance commission in July failed to approve the $800,000 bond issue for the City of Benton Harbor and the city had to resubmit a reduced bond issue of $400,000. The reduced bond issue meant a scheduled ice skating rink had to be deleted from construction plans.

Nielsen said the "irregular funding flow and the on-again, off-again construction" caused construction costs to rise and has resulted in further deletions from construction plans.

Deleted from the original plans are all equipment for the center, a parking lot, outside tennis courts, landscaping and completion of a handball court.

Nielsen said the Recreation board is applying for nearly $1 million in a grant from the federal Public Works Employment act to complete the deleted projects including the $400,000 ice skating rink.

Staff for the center will include Wells, two building supervisors and a pool director. Wells said he expects to contract for maintenance and security at the center.

Under the charter agreement between the city and the schools, the school system will be allowed to use the center during school hours and the remaining time the building will be open for public use, according to Nielsen.

The 1,344 square foot administrative area located on the second level of the center includes offices for Wells and Nielsen, a lobby and conference room.

The biggest area of the center is occupied by the junior olympic sized swimming pool which is in a 7,540 square-foot two-level room. The pool is 12.6 feet deep at one end and 3.6 feet deep on the other. Adjacent to the pool area are shower and locker rooms, an office for the pool director, a filter room and storage areas. A second level tier with benches for spectators overlooks the pool.

A 3,000 square-foot multi-purpose room on the second level will provide space for gymnastics, social gatherings, dances and other sports activities.

Also on the second level of the center is a 30 by 40 foot lounge area and storage areas.

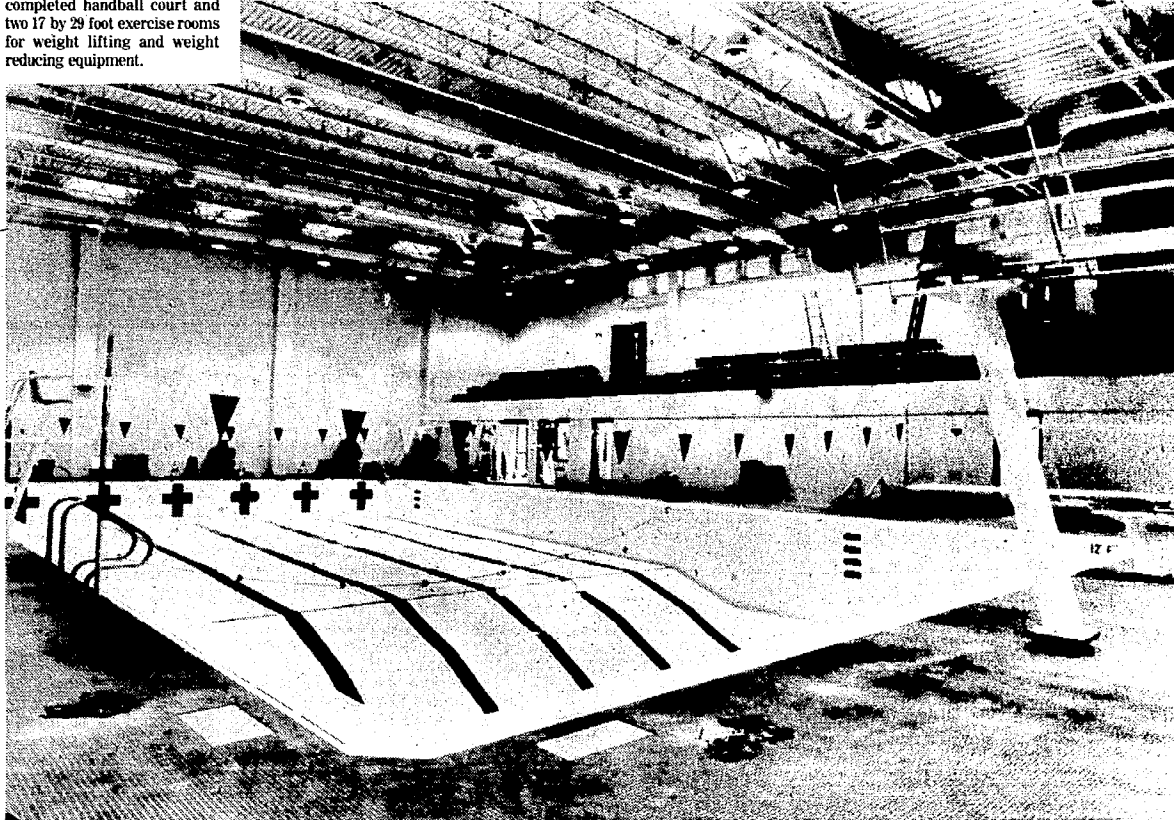

Rooms on the first floor besides the swimming pool and locker areas include a first aid room, storage areas, an uncompleted handball court and two 17 by 29 foot exercise rooms for weight lifting and weight reducing equipment.

dedicated Wednesday but isn't expected to go into operation until March. A federal grant of about $1 million is being sought to equip and complete center for which expenditures so far total about $2.2 million. This view is from northeast side of center.

Seek Trial Of Boy, 15

The Berrien prosecutor's office wants to try 15-year-old David Figlus in adult court on an open murder charge in connection with the stabbing death of Dona Armstrong.

Charles Kehoe, director of Berrien county juvenile court services, said the prosecutor's office last week filed a petition seeking to waive Figlus from the jurisdiction of juvenile court to adult court. Kehoe said a hearing on the petition before a probate court judge probably wouldn't be held until 20 or 30 days.

Miss Armstrong, 20, was stabbed to death in her home Dec. 10. Police said Figlus spent the preceding night in the home as a guest of the girl's brother. She lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Armstrong, at 1209 Lane drive, St. Joseph.

One Inmate Is Missing

Fourteen out of 15 prisoners who were given Christmas leaves from the Berrien county jail returned to custody Sunday on their own after spending the holiday with families or friends.

The 15th man, however, remained at large this morning. Sheriff's officers said Fifth District John Iwanuk of Niles was to be contacted to determine what procedure would be used for the return to custody.

The missing prisoner, identified as Eugene Hartz, 35, of 794 Buss avenue, Benton Harbor, was serving a 180-day sentence meted out to him in November by Judge Iwanuk for escape from legal custody.

Fifteen inmates of the Berrien jail who were serving time for misdemeanor offenses were released on day parole at 4:30 p.m. on Christmas Eve and were ordered to return by 10 a.m. Sunday.

This is the first year prisoners were allowed to leave the jail over Christmas, according to District Judge Leo K. Cook. Cook and the other four district judges authorized the release of the prisoners in a letter to Sheriff Forrest (Nick) Jewell dated Dec. 24. In that letter Cook also recommended that Jewell set an interim bond policy over the Christmas holidays for Michigan residents arrested for non-violent misdemeanors. Cook said the policy would allow the sheriff or his deputy in charge to set a lower bond than normal. Cook said it would enable those people arrested to spend the holidays with their family.

Sgt. James Jagger, in charge of jail security, said a couple of the freed prisoners were a little tardy in getting back by the 10 a.m. deadline Sunday, but that the infractions were not serious enough to warrant any penalties against them.

Capt. Gerald Hass of the sheriff's department said Judge Iwanuk might issue a warrant charging Hartz with jail escape, or could declare the prisoner in contempt of court for violating the day parole approved by the court.

Boy Hurt By Pellet Gun

A four-year-old Benton township boy was accidentally struck by a pellet while he and his six-year-old brother were playing with a pellet gun early today, township police said.

Ed T. Bradford, son of Mrs. Phyllis Smith, 2049 Red Arrow highway, was treated for an apparently minor wound on the finger of his hand and released from Mercy hospital shortly after 1 a.m., police said. Police reported Mrs. Smith said the boy's brother, Max, was holding the gun when it fired.

Big Reunion In Works For Bigamist's Families

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The brother of a bigamist who died in a plane crash plans to hold a family reunion for the victim's six known wives or ex-wives and seven children.

"I think it's the least I can do," said Robert Sharp, brother of Joseph Gordon Sharp. "I think of all those women and children left stranded there, and I would really like to get in touch with them. I feel so badly."

Joseph Sharp died Dec. 10 when his single-engine private plane crashed onto a highway near Fort Wayne, Ind.

Police found several social security cards and driver's licenses for addresses in Grosse Pointe Park, a Detroit suburb, and Gahanna, Ohio. Authorities found a wife and two children at each address.

Later, Sharp's employer, Docutel Corp. of Dallas, received a call from a woman in Montreal who said she was married to Sharp. A Chicago widow also called, saying Sharp had proposed to her the day he died.

Examination of records showed Sharp, who traveled often in his job of servicing automatic bank tellers, had been married at least six times and had fathered at least seven children. Several of the marriages apparently overlapped.

Robert Sharp, a retired Air Force technician now living in the Southwest, said he first heard of his brother's polygamous life while reading a wire service account of his death.

"I wasn't sure it was him because of all the names they used, until the paper ran his picture," Sharp said. "But now I know it's him. He's got our mother's smile."

Robert said he had not been in contact with his brother for about eight years. He said he thought his brother was married to one woman and working for General Motors Corp. in Detroit.

"I didn't hear from Gordon very much, and I sometimes wondered what he was doing," he said. "From the sounds of some of these stories, I guess he didn't have much time to write."

Robert said he didn't know how his brother supported several families on his $20,000 annual salary.

He described his brother as a "bright, fun-loving" youth who attended North High School in Columbus, Ohio, and had been popular with women most of his life.

According to Robert, Gordon was engaged when he entered the Navy in 1942, and was shipped to Camp Pendleton in California. There he met and married Josephine Sharp and they lived in Detroit.

He divorced Josephine a few years later and then married Maxine Bushey in Ohio. In 1954, he returned to Detroit and married Virginia Mitchell of Berkley, a Detroit suburb. They had two children.

Four years later, while still married to Virginia, Gordon married Costance Tietz. Virginia got a divorce in 1960, but when Costance learned Sharp had another wife, she got an annulment.

Early in 1962, Gordon married Mary Drolshagen of Detroit. They had two children and lived in Grosse Pointe Park. Five years later, he wed a woman, named Helen, in Gahanna. She also bore him two children.

The two wives did not know of the other's existence, police said.

BH Will Dedicate New Recreation Center

Use Is Seen By March

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

Benton Harbor city and school officials are scheduled Wednesday to dedicate the new $2.2 million recreation center located behind Benton Harbor high school.

However, the two-level, 28,000 square-foot building is not expected to be put into use until March, according to Larry Nielsen, Benton Harbor recreation director.

Nielsen said another $1 million is being sought in a federal grant to equip the building and complete projects deleted from original plans.

The center will be operated by the Benton Harbor area parks and recreation board formed by charter under and agreement between the City of Benton Harbor and Benton H&Fbor Area schools.

Milton Wells, who will be the director of operations of the center, said the projected costs of running the center have been estimated at approximately $190,000 a year. Costs for maintenance and operation of the center are expected to be shared between the city and the school system, according to Nielsen.

Dedication events Wednesday at 3 p.m. will include ribbon cutting ceremonies and a tour of the facility. Officials invited to attend the ceremonies include city and school officials, representatives from Berrien county and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and State Sen. Charles Zollar (R-Benton Harbor) and State Rep. Ray Mittan (R-Niles).

Construction of the center is funded by state and federal grants and a $400,000 bond issue by the City of Benton Harbor. It includes an 82.6 foot (25 meters) by 42 foot swimming pool, a multi-purpose room, administrative offices, locker and shower rooms and a lounge area.

The center was originally scheduled to be completed in October, but ran into funding problems almost from the onset.

The funding problems revolved around an $800,000 bond issue by the City of Benton Harbor. In March, a Michigan Court of Appeals ruling held up municipal bond sales throughout the state and halted construction of the center for about a month.

In addition, the Michigan Municipal Finance commission in July failed to approve the $800,000 bond issue for the City of Benton Harbor and the city had to resubmit a reduced bond issue of $400,000. The reduced bond issue meant a scheduled ice skating rink had to be deleted from construction plans.

Nielsen said the "irregular funding flow and the on-again, off-again construction" caused construction costs to rise and has resulted in further deletions from construction plans.

Deleted from the original plans are all equipment for the center, a parking lot, outside tennis courts, landscaping and completion of a handball court.

Nielsen said the Recreation board is applying for nearly $1 million in a grant from the federal Public Works Employment act to complete the deleted projects including the $400,000 ice skating rink.

Staff for the center will include Wells, two building supervisors and a pool director. Wells said he expects to contract for maintenance and security at the center.

Under the charter agreement between the city and the schools, the school system will be allowed to use the center during school hours and the remaining time the building will be open for public use, according to Nielsen.

The 1,344 square foot administrative area located on the second level of the center includes offices for Wells and Nielsen, a lobby and conference room.

The biggest area of the center is occupied by the junior olympic sized swimming pool which is in a 7,540 square-foot two-level room. The pool is 12.6 feet deep at one end and 3.6 feet deep on the other. Adjacent to the pool area are shower and locker rooms, an office for the pool director, a filter room and storage areas. A second level tier with benches for spectators overlooks the pool.

A 3,000 square-foot multi-purpose room on the second level will provide space for gymnastics, social gatherings, dances and other sports activities.

Also on the second level of the center is a 30 by 40 foot lounge area and storage areas.

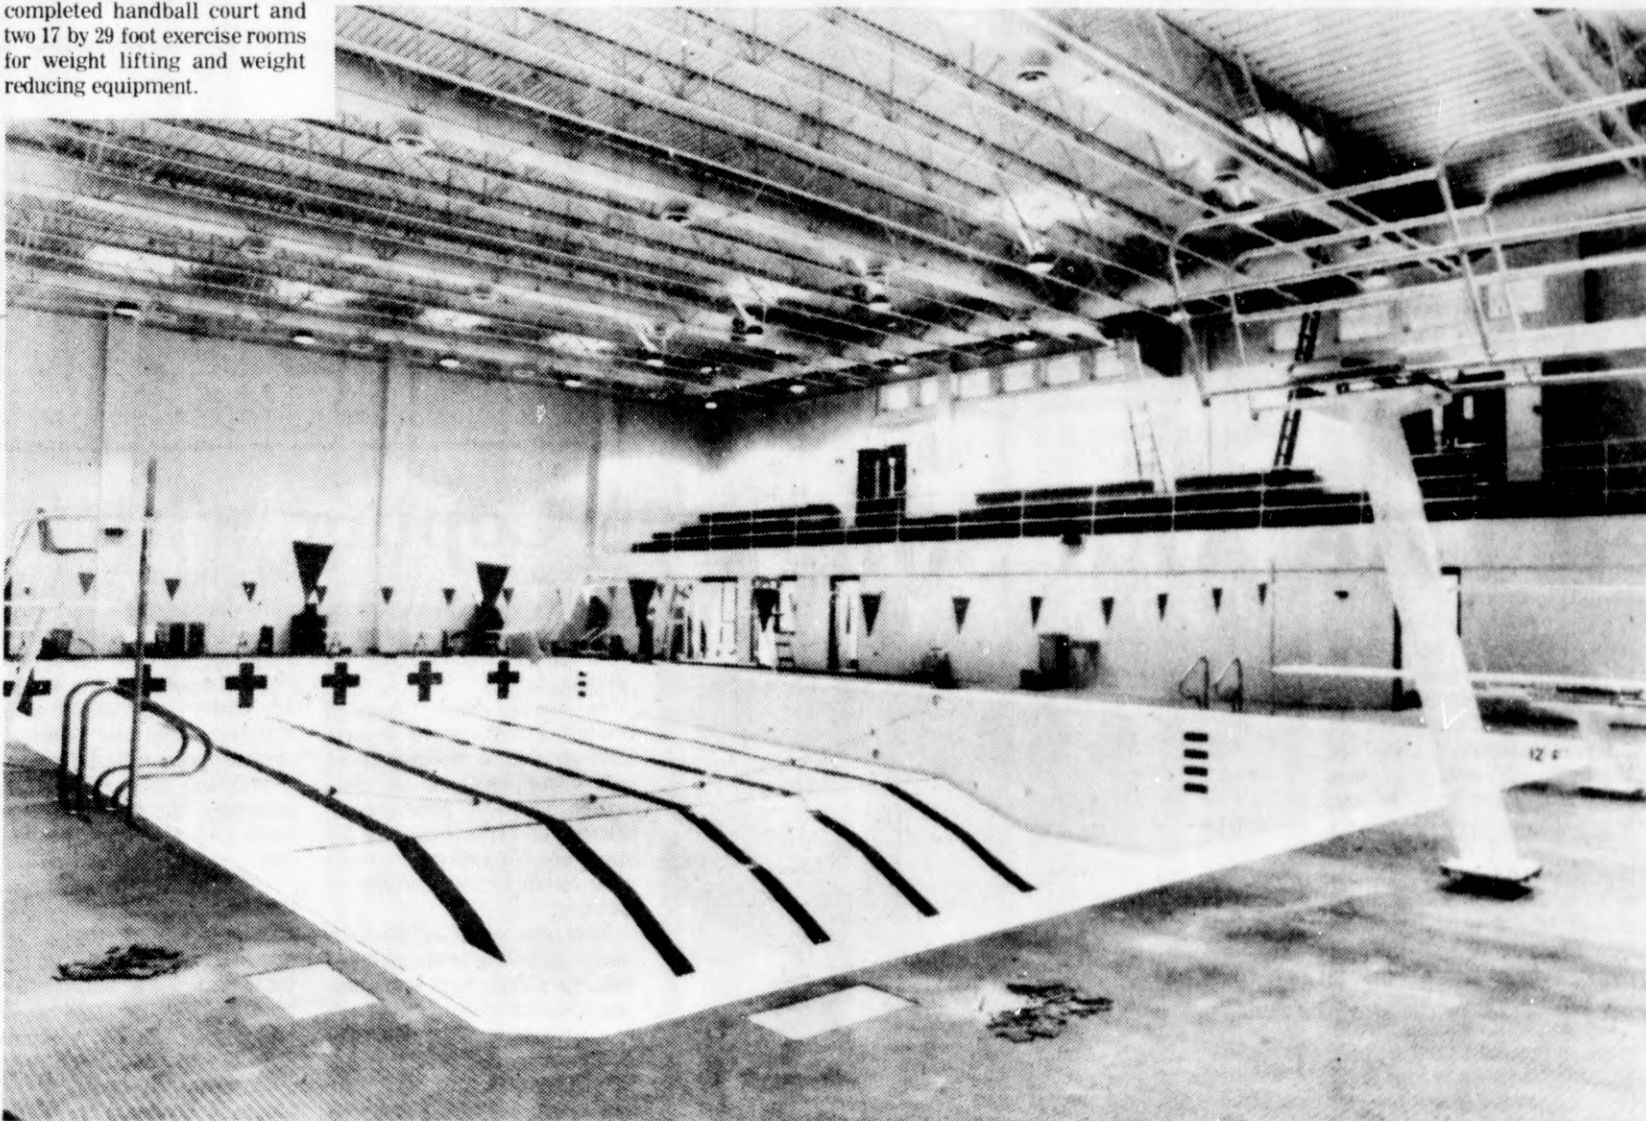

Rooms on the first floor besides the swimming pool and locker areas include a first aid room, storage areas, an uncompleted handball court and two 17 by 29 foot exercise rooms for weight lifting and weight reducing equipment.

RECREATION CENTER NOT FINISHED: New Benton Harbor recreation center is scheduled to be dedicated Wednesday but isn't expected to go into operation until March. A federal grant of about $1 million is being sought to equip and complete center for which expenditures so far total about $2.2 million. This view is from northeast side of center.

SWIMMING POOL: Biggest area of new $2.2 million Benton Harbor recreation center is 82.6 by 42 foot swimming pool. Junior olympic sized pool is located in 7,540 square-foot room is 12.6 feet at deepest end. Adjacent to pool are shower and locker rooms, office for pool director and second level tier for spectators. (Staff photos)

Seek Trial Of Boy, 15

The Berrien prosecutor's office wants to try 15-year-old David Figlus in adult court on an open murder charge in connection with the stabbing death of Dona Armstrong.

Charles Kehoe, director of Berrien county juvenile court services, said the prosecutor's office last week filed a petition seeking to waive Figlus from the jurisdiction of juvenile court to adult court. Kehoe said a hearing on the petition before a probate court judge probably wouldn't be held until 20 or 30 days.

Miss Armstrong, 20, was stabbed to death in her home Dec. 10. Police said Figlus spent the preceding night in the home as a guest of the girl's brother. She lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Armstrong, at 1209 Lane drive, St. Joseph.

One Inmate Is Missing

Fourteen out of 15 prisoners who were given Christmas leaves from the Berrien county jail returned to custody Sunday on their own after spending the holiday with families or friends.

The 15th man, however, remained at large this morning.

Sheriff's officers said Fifth District John Iwanuk of Niles was to be contacted to determine what procedure would be used for the return to custody. The missing prisoner, identified as Eugene Hartz, 35, of 794 Buss avenue, Benton Harbor, was serving a 180-day sentence meted out to him in November by Judge Iwanuk for escape from legal custody.

Fifteen inmates of the Berrien jail who were serving time for misdemeanor offenses were released on day parole at 4:30 p.m. on Christmas Eve and were ordered to return by 10 a.m. Sunday.

This is the first year prisoners were allowed to leave the jail over Christmas, according to District Judge Leo K. Cook. Cook and the other four district judges authorized the release of the prisoners in a letter to Sheriff Forrest (Nick) Jewell dated Dec. 24. In that letter Cook also recommended that Jewell set an interim bond policy over the Christmas holidays for Michigan residents arrested for non-violent misdemeanors. Cook said the policy would allow the sheriff or his deputy in charge to set a lower bond than normal. Cook said it would enable those people arrested to spend the holidays with their family.

Sgt. James Jagger, in charge of jail security, said a couple of the freed prisoners were a little tardy in getting back by the 10 a.m. deadline Sunday, but that the infractions were not serious enough to warrant any penalties against them.

Capt. Gerald Hass of the sheriff's department said Judge Iwanuk might issue a warrant charging Hartz with jail escape, or could declare the prisoner in contempt of court for violating the day parole approved by the court.

Boy Hurt By Pellet Gun

A four-year-old Benton township boy was accidentally struck by a pellet while he and his six-year-old brother were playing with a pellet gun early today, township police said.

Ed T. Bradford, son of Mrs. Phyllis Smith, 2940 Red Arrow highway, was treated for an apparently minor wound on the finger of his hand and released from Mercy hospital shortly after 1 a.m., police said. Police reported Mrs. Smith said the boy's brother, Max, was holding the gun when it fired.

Big Reunion In Works For Bigamist's Families

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The brother of a bigamist who died in a plane crash plans to hold a family reunion for the victim's six known wives or ex-wives and seven children.

"I think it's the least I can do," said Robert Sharp, brother of Joseph Gordon Sharp. "I think of all those women and children left stranded there, and I would really like to get in touch with them. I feel so badly."

Joseph Sharp died Dec. 10 when his single-engine private plane crashed onto a highway near Fort Wayne, Ind.

Police found several social security cards and driver's licenses for addresses in Grosse Pointe Park, a Detroit suburb, and Gahanna, Ohio. Authorities found a wife and two children at each address.

Later, Sharp's employer, Docutel Corp. of Dallas, received a call from a woman in Montreal who said she was married to Sharp. A Chicago widow also called, saying Sharp had proposed to her the day he died.

Examination of records showed Sharp, who traveled often in his job of servicing automatic bank tellers, had been married at least six times and had fathered at least seven children. Several of the marriages apparently overlapped.

Robert Sharp, a retired Air Force technician now living in the Southwest, said he first heard of his brother's polygamous life while reading a wire service account of his death.

"I wasn't sure it was him because of all the names they used, until the paper ran his picture," Sharp said. "But now I know it's him. He's got our mother's smile."

Robert said he had not been in contact with his brother for about eight years. He said he thought his brother was married to one woman and working for General Motors Corp. in Detroit.

"I didn't hear from Gordon very much, and I sometimes wondered what he was doing," he said. "From the sounds of some of these stories, I guess he didn't have much time to write."

MEMBER OF THE MOTOR MAIDS

SJ Woman Likes Motorcycle

By ANITA SMITH

Although December snows cover the grounds and roads, Mrs. August (Loretta) Meyer of St. Joseph looks back at both the sunny and rainy roads of last summer and ahead to the open roads of 1977.

She drove 4,078 miles on a trip last summer. It wasn't the family car she drove, but rather her motorcycle, a Kawasaki 500.

Mrs. Meyer drove to Sierra Vista, Ariz., to attend a convention of Motor Maids, a national organization which began 35 years ago in the Detroit-Flint area. One of the club's requirements is that each member drive either her own bike, or her husband's, to the meeting in order to vote and participate.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer set off on their trip on July 1 after leaving their two daughters, Michelle, 7½, and Tonya, 4½, in the care of his mother.

The first day of the trip was routine, but on the following day Mrs. Meyer almost had her first accident.

She said her husband was riding ahead of her in the rain. She had just passed two semi-trucks at the bottom of an incline, driving around 50-55 mph, when the valve stem of her rear tire broke off, causing the tire to go flat immediately.

She began skidding, and, after wrestling with the bike, managed to pull off the road and into a ditch, still remaining upright.

Mrs. Meyer flagged down one of the truckers and asked if he would catch up with her husband and tell him what happened. Still in the rain, her husband had to buy a new tire and put it on.

Much of their trip was through rain, areas with flash flood warnings and also a dust storm.

Mrs. Meyer said about 105 Motor Maids, representing 28 states, traveled a total of 129,497 miles to attend the convention.

This was not the first long distance haul for Mrs. Meyer. She has driven to Chattanooga, Tenn., Columbus, Ohio, Peoria, Ill., and Daytona Beach, Fla., usually accompanied by her husband. The furthest she has driven alone is 125 miles.

Mrs. Meyer joined Motor Maids in 1972 while living in Birmingham, Ala. Membership requirements are that the American Motorcycle Association (AMA); no abbreviated costumes while riding one's bike, and driving one's own bike to meetings.

Originally from the LaPorte-Michigan City, Ind., area, Mrs. Meyer began motorcycling on a Harley Davidson Sprint 11 years ago.

For women who are determined to drive a bike, she suggests beginning on something small and learning how to handle all the controls. She suggests using empty parking lots on weekends when no cars are around as well as roads where there is little traffic.

Temporary motorcycle driving permits are available at the Michigan State License Bureau. With a permit, a person with a valid operator's license, chauffeur license or instruction permit, may operate a motorcycle under the constant visual supervision of a licensed motorcycle operator at least 18 years of age.

In reference to automobiles on the road, Mrs. Meyer said, "They don't see you. You have to know what they are going to do and what you're going to do."

When her husband is home with their daughters, she often drives her motorcycle on errands rather than the car.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Meyer are members of AMA — Mr. Meyer for 23 years and Mrs. Meyer for 14 years. He is also a member of the LaPorte Ramblers and the Retreads XL Plus, 40 or over.

In addition to possessing a vehicle operator's license with a motorcycle endorsement, Mrs. Meyer has a chauffeur's license.

This fall she began as a substitute bus driver for Lakeshore public schools and thinks it an ideal job because she will be off during the summer and able to attend motorcycling events.

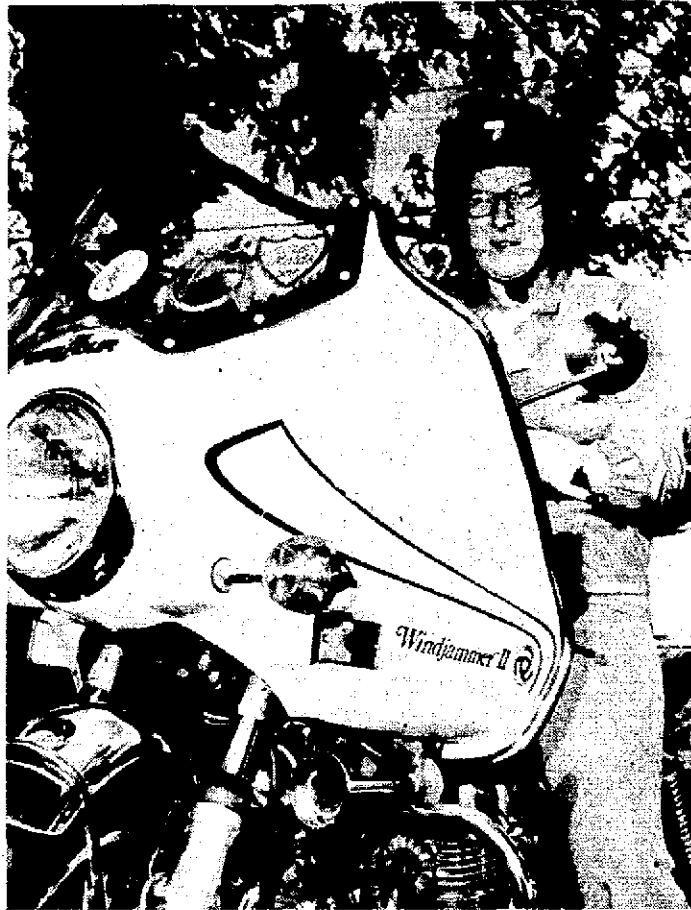

The next two summers are planned — in 1977 she will motorcycle to Hannibal, Mo., and in 1978, Steam Boat Springs, Colo., both Motor Maids conventions.

First Place Trophy

A record number of Motor Maids were present at the Michigan meeting held in Lansing where Mrs. August (Loretta) Meyer took home the first place trophy.

Mrs. Meyer said the trophy is awarded to the Motor Maid accumulating the most points during the year. Points are earned by attending conventions and field meetings and participating in road runs.

She earned 450 points for attending field meets, the national convention and the weekend Michigan meet; by participating in the Dot Robinson road run, and parading at national motor meets. Mrs. Meyer paraded at Peoria, Ill., Columbus, Ohio, and Sierra Vista, Ariz.

Star Changed Life And Songs

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — She had made the big-time, acquiring money, acclaim and lavish living. But it became empty to her and false. The desolation persisted until she saw the star.

By the calendar, it wasn't the Christmas star, but it had to do with a child and it flashed a similar meaning.

"There was no mistaking it," says country music singer Jeannie C. Riley. It was an odd star, on a lonely August afternoon in Texas. It filled the void within her, she says, changed her life and her singing.

A pretty, blue-eyed brunette, she had gained fame as the seemingly brash, hip and uninhibited young woman who ripped into her community's moralisms as hypocritical in her hit song, "Harper Valley PTA."

But it made her a kind of phony herself, she said in an interview. "The world put me into the role of a sassy, showoff sex symbol. It was an image created for me and I hated it, but for a long time I couldn't step out of it, I was so stereotyped."

"I was playing a part that was not really me."

In that period, she said, she had "quit the church, doubted God's existence and thought the Bible was just a big beautiful myth. I simply had never thought much about spiritual things."

But the sudden celebrity status that "Harper Valley" brought, the high income, applauding crowds, high-pressure schedule, including a divorce, and her built-up image as a tart-tongued, miniskirted rebel left her disillusioned.

"I'd achieved my goals but I was miserable," she said. She recalled that as a small-town girl from Anson, Texas, she often had pored over mail-order catalogs, dreaming of fancy clothes, a big house, chauffeured cars, the limelight of at-

Then a "miracle happened" on that strange afternoon in a Texas cemetery, she said, and "God worked his way into my heart and changed my life."

"It put my family back together," she said, noting that she and her husband have remarried and now live on a farm outside Nashville, Tenn., where she belongs to the Forest Hills Baptist church.

"It's done so much for me. It was a matter of breaking down my pride, of taking my eyes off myself, or making me more concerned for others. It was a rebirth. I'm happy now, happier than I've ever been, and it's for real."

She said that she's now both writing and recording country songs of a cheerier caliber, that "spread joy instead of sarcasm, that are positive and more wholesome and have a lot of love in them."

"There's enough sadness and pollution in the world without sending more of it out over the airways. I wouldn't record anything anymore that's questionable or suggestive or that would be a stumbling block to someone's faith."

Today's woman is discovering that there is more to dealing with the police than paying for parking tickets.

So says the January issue of Family Circle, which reports that as women become more and more involved in community matters, they are encountering every aspect of the court and correctional systems from search and seizure to sexism.

Here are some of the best ways, according to the publication, for coping with situations involving the law:

— If you witness a crime, don't be afraid of getting involved. When you notify the police, you don't have to reveal your name or your address — just give a description of what you have seen and heard.

— If you find your house has been burglarized, leave immediately — the robber may still be inside. Don't touch anything either — you may be disturbing the evidence. Notify the police from a neighbor's house and wait there for their arrival. You will also have to fill out a form listing missing property, so it is always advisable to keep on hand a list of your valuables, including the serial numbers of equipment such as cameras and stereo sets.

— If you are stopped or arrested, you have the right to require a police officer to identify himself. Ask for his shield number, name and identification card, which should bear his photograph. Never admit any stranger, of course, to your home without proper identification.

— If the police can establish a "sufficient degree of probable cause" to believe you've committed a crime, have contraband or are harboring a criminal, your person or property can be searched without a warrant, according to a recent Supreme Court ruling. Similarly, if you are arrested on a charge other than a traffic infraction, you may be automatically searched and liable to charges for any drugs or weapons found on you.

— If you are arrested, the law specifies that you be immediately informed of your rights under the Miranda Ruling. These include the right to remain silent (any statement you make may later be held against you), the right to have an attorney present and the right to have an attorney provided by the state, if you so — If your child is arrested (and classified as a juvenile), you, as a parent, will be notified as soon as he is taken into custody. You have the right to remain present throughout all procedures and, if you choose, to stop any questioning. While remaining supportive of your child, display as little hostility as possible toward the officers. The outcome of the case may largely be determined by how good an impression you make as a parent.

— If you yourself are arrested, don't fight with or antagonize the police. There attitude is generally, "If you act like a lady, you will be treated like a lady." If you feel you have been unfairly abused, however, contact the American Civil Liberties Union, which will help you file a complaint.

Certain Cuts Best Braised

Some beef cuts, such as short ribs, are best pre-cooked by braising.

They can then be finished to flavor perfection by brushing with a barbecue sauce while broiling for 10 to 15 minutes.

Her outlook and new songs represent a distinct break from the image of the "Harper Valley" cynic who, as she noted, "put down the system, put down authority and put down parents" as pious fakers.

"Producers and agents insisted I live that sassy, sex-pot image, rejecting the old values," she said. "It was something I fell into, or was dragged into, not something I really felt. I was such a greenhorn. I was almost programmed, like a little puppy, like a ragdoll. I was forced into a role that was uncomfortable for me and false. It was a masquerade."

But the gaudy facade turned bleak to her, and then on that long, hot afternoon in New Hope Cemetery at her home town of Anson, she prayed alone at the new grave of a young nephew, Bryan, who had died at 6.

"Oh God, I don't know if you're real," she had prayed, gazing up into the empty sky. "I've got to know, I've got to have a sign that you care." It was 3:45 p.m., she related, and suddenly, incredibly, in the bright, cloudless, summer sky, "a giant star came out and held and twinkled for about 15 seconds."

As she told of it, her voice broke and tears streamed her cheeks. "There was no mistaking it, no way to doubt. I said, 'Oh hello Bryan!' And then the star came back and twinkled again. I cried, 'Thank you God!' He had let me know he did exist, and I found him later on in the Bible."

Coping With The Law

Today's woman is discovering that there is more to dealing with the police than paying for parking tickets.

So says the January issue of Family Circle, which reports that as women become more and more involved in community matters, they are encountering every aspect of the court and correctional systems from search and seizure to sexism.

Here are some of the best ways, according to the publication, for coping with situations involving the law:

— If you witness a crime, don't be afraid of getting involved. When you notify the police, you don't have to reveal your name or your address — just give a description of what you have seen and heard.

— If you find your house has been burglarized, leave immediately — the robber may still be inside. Don't touch anything either — you may be disturbing the evidence. Notify the police from a neighbor's house and wait there for their arrival. You will also have to fill out a form listing missing property, so it is always advisable to keep on hand a list of your valuables, including the serial numbers of equipment such as cameras and stereo sets.

— If you are stopped or arrested, you have the right to require a police officer to identify himself. Ask for his shield number, name and identification card, which should bear his photograph. Never admit any stranger, of course, to your home without proper identification.

— If the police can establish a "sufficient degree of probable cause" to believe you've committed a crime, have contraband or are harboring a criminal, your person or property can be searched without a warrant, according to a recent Supreme Court ruling. Similarly, if you are arrested on a charge other than a traffic infraction, you may be automatically searched and liable to charges for any drugs or weapons found on you.

— If you are arrested, the law specifies that you be immediately informed of your rights under the Miranda Ruling. These include the right to remain silent (any statement you make may later be held against you), the right to have an attorney present and the right to have an attorney provided by the state, if you so request.

— If your child is arrested (and classified as a juvenile), you, as a parent, will be notified as soon as he is taken into custody. You have the right to remain present throughout all procedures and, if you choose, to stop any questioning. While remaining supportive of your child, display as little hostility as possible toward the officers. The outcome of the case may largely be determined by how good an impression you make as a parent.

— If you yourself are arrested, don't fight with or antagonize the police. There attitude is generally, "If you act like a lady, you will be treated like a lady." If you feel you have been unfairly abused, however, contact the American Civil Liberties Union, which will help you file a complaint.

Certain Cuts

Best Braised

Some beef cuts, such as short ribs, are best pre-cooked by braising.

They can then be finished to flavor perfection by brushing with a barbecue sauce while broiling for 10 to 15 minutes.

'The Hiding Place'

"Corrie: Behind the Scenes with The Hiding Place," a film from World Wide Pictures, will be shown Sunday, Jan. 2, at 6 p.m. at Crystal Springs Church Of God, Benton Harbor.

The public is invited. A free will offering will be taken.

According to Kenneth Bliss, director of distribution for World Wide Pictures, "The film was produced to give people who have seen 'The Hiding Place' or read her best selling books an opportunity to hear her share her memories about her life in Holland, her family and her lifetime of service to others."

The film includes "interesting sidelights on the experiences of the cast and crew during the filming of 'The Hiding Place,'" Bliss said.

"The Hiding Place," a true story filmed in Holland and other European locations, is based on the experiences of Corrie ten Boom, who, with her father, sister and brother, provided refuge for countless Jewish families. A secret room was constructed in their home as a hiding place for use during Gestapo raids. The ten Booms' activities were discovered and they were sent to prisons and concentration camps.

DEVIL'S ADVOCATE — The Devil's advocate was originally the name given the person appointed by the state to oppose a proposed canonization in the Roman Catholic church. The person who undertook the defense was God's advocate.

Michigan Beans For New Year's Day

New Year's Day is not a time for doing anything too elaborate, according to Carl Olson of the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

It's a time to contemplate the coming year, to review the one just passed and, perhaps, to just consider the night before.

More important, it's a day to watch the bowl games on television. The secret for successful sustenance during what has to be the longest football day of the year is to make something that's simple, stays hot all day and is readily available.

Olson suggests a large pot of steaming hot chili or some hearty Michigan navy bean soup.

a little salt and pepper to taste. When finished, mash the beans lightly to cloud the water. Then, just leave on low heat and go back to dip the soup out often.

Michigan Department of Agriculture reports the state's crop is number one in the nation and that the 1975 crop was 450 million pounds valued at $131,850,000.

AMERICAN SLANG

A person from the Mair Line is wealthy and socially prominent, but a mainliner is someone who takes narcotics intravenously, according to the Dictionary of American Slang.

To make the famous House of Representatives bean soup, take two pounds of dry Michigan navy beans and cover with water in a large pot. Bring them to a boil and cook for two minutes, then remove and let stand for one hour. This way, you don't have to worry about soaking them overnight because, after all, who wants to be soaking beans New Year's Eve?

Using the same water, add a smoked ham hock and, if necessary some more water. Simmer slowly for four hours until the beans are tender. Add Brides-to-be planning engagement announcements and wedding stories in this newspaper are asked to observe the following rules:

Engagement and wedding forms are available in the women's department at The Herald-Palladium offices in Benton Harbor or St. Joseph. The pertinent information should be typed or plainly printed in filling out these forms to prevent errors.

Wedding forms should be picked up at least two weeks and turned in one week before the wedding is to take place.

When wedding information is sent within two months of the engagement announcement date, only ONE picture will be run. The bride-to-be may have her choice.

Use proper names — not nicknames. In wedding information, use husband's names for married attendants.

Only pictures of the bride in her wedding dress will be used. Formal glossy black and white portraits are preferred.

Engagement and wedding pictures are usually available at this newspaper office after publication for a short time.

Wedding

BANGOR — Miss Robin Kay Hessey and Michael Newbury were married Dec. 18 in the Church of Christ, Bangor. Andrew Hansen, associate minister of Kentwood Christian church, Grand Rapids, performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hessey of Bangor. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newbury of Kalamazoo.

The bride wore an antique Muslim gown trimmed with lavender lace and designed with a flounce at the hemline. She carried orchids.

Miss Peggy Hessey was maid of honor for her sister.

Carl Zittel served as best man. Ushers were Harry Newbury, brother of the groom, and Dennis Hessey, brother of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The couple is residing in Grand Rapids.

The bride is a graduate of Bangor high school and attended Kendall School of Design, Grand Rapids. She is self-employed and operates the Cleaning Machine, Grand Rapids. Her husband is a graduate of Portage high school and served in the United States Air Force. He is employed by Foremost Insurance company, Grand Rapids.

Wedding

BANGOR — Miss Robin Kay Hessey and Michael Newbury were married Dec. 18 in the Church of Christ, Bangor. Andrew Hansen, associate minister of Kentwood Christian church, Grand Rapids, performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hessey of Bangor. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newbury of Kalamazoo.

The bride wore an antique muslin gown trimmed with lavender lace and designed with a flounce at the hemline. She carried orchids.

Miss Peggy Hessey was maid of honor for her sister.

Carl Zittel served as best man. Ushers were Harry Newbury, brother of the groom, and Dennis Hessey, brother of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The couple is residing in Grand Rapids.

The bride is a graduate of Bangor high school and attended Kendall School of Design, Grand Rapids. She is self-employed and operates the Cleaning Machine, Grand Rapids. Her husband is a graduate of Portage high school and served in the United States Air Force. He is employed by Foremost Insurance company, Grand Rapids.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Clerks Take A Beating

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest your column on "the value of a customer." I agree with many points made in that piece, but may I express another point of view — from the other side of the counter?

I am a salesperson. I, too, am human and have feelings. Customers have blown smoke in my face, dropped ashes on my hands, thrown change at me and used foul language when they've had to wait in line behind someone with a large order.

Dozens of customers have called me names when I've told them they can't buy beer or dog food with food coupons. At least three times today I've had to void out my register when customers learned, too late, they didn't have enough money to pay for their purchases. (To go $17 over one's budget is ridiculous.) Common courtesy should be practiced by both the customer and the salesperson. Do you agree? — Give Us A Break

Dear G.U.: I do — and I'm happy to provide you with equal time. I've observed first-hand a few of the abuses you've mentioned in your letter and I must say some salespeople deserve combat pay for what they put up with in a day's work.

Loves Daddy

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know if I have a problem or not. It's our beautiful 12-year-old daughter. I've seen girls who are crazy about their fathers, but never anything quite like this.

Donna sits next to (or on top of) him at every opportunity. They play with each other's hands and act kittenish, like a couple of goofy kids. She hangs on her father when they walk or their arms are around one another's waists. Is this normal? — Sign Me Worried

Dear W: Sounds to me as if there's entirely too much touching. Today a girl of 12 is more of a woman than a child.

Donna needs to be talked to, but it would be better if the word did not come from you.

Perhaps an enlightened relative or an adult friend could tell Donna it is unbecoming and unhealthy for a young girl to have so much physical contact with her father. (Surely this behavior has been observed by others.)

If you know of no person you might call on to communicate the message tactfully but firmly, by all means enlist the help of the school counselor. I believe Donna should be approached rather than your husband. He is apt to be resentful and defensive.

A Low Blow

Dear Ann Landers: Three weeks ago I started to do waitress work. It's a lot harder than it looks but I'm determined to put myself through college.

Saturday night two parties walked out without paying their checks. I hope you will print this letter because I'm sure a lot of people don't know that each waitress is responsible for the tables she serves. When a customer sneaks out, the waitress has to make it good.

The characters who pulled this fast one probably thought they were doing it to the "establishment" but actually I'm the one who got — Stuck in Westport, Conn.

Dear Stuck: Here's your letter — and I'm sure the information will be news to many. Waiters and waitresses work awfully hard and to get stiffed with a check is a low blow.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing up for one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. SJ Elks Party Planned Bye-Bye Bicentennial will be the theme of the St. Joseph Elks Lodge No. 541 New Year's party, according to Exalted Ruler Warren Shafer.

Dancing will be to the Ray Norberg band featuring "Jeanie," and the party will include favors, hors d'oeuvres, a midnight buffet and beverages.

Tickets are limited to 150 couples and are available at the lodge lounge. Elks and their guests are invited.

Indestructible?

If you are like millions of average parents you are sitting there today in the midst of toys that are solid, child-proof, indestructible and built-to-be-abused.

A wheel has fallen off the Last-A-Lifetime car. The mend-itself, puncture-proof inflatable ball didn't and wasn't. The reinforced heavy-duty cardboard castle with 260 lifelike warriors, 38 weapons and 180-piece cavalry blew over when the furnace went on, and one of the kids has swallowed a one-piece durable, no-moving-parts barnyard guaranteed safe for toddlers.

You are naive if you believe there is any such toy as one that is "child-proof." I have seen sweet, shy precious little girls who did not have the strength to put their arm in a coat punch out the eyes of a doll and within minutes have her insides stacked neatly into three piles.

I have seen little boys small enough to walk under a coffee table pull a jungle gym set out of the ground and tie the swings into square knots.

Somewhat, I've always identified with the commercial where they put a suitcase in a cage with a gorilla to see how sturdy the luggage stands up. Two minutes with my middle child and it wouldn't stand a chance. For that matter, neither would the luggage.

My mother once bought our children a Music Forever phonograph, touted to transcend those "terrible twos." It was like waving a flag in front of Atilla and Hun. Within minutes, they were whining, "Grandma, the needle is bent." (An occasion marked by my mother's famous observation, "Don't ever turn your back on them!")

When you think about it, most toys don't die from old age. In fact, most of the dolls I have discarded have fear in their eyes. (Also hair torn out by the roots, dislocated joints and teethmarks on 95 per cent of their bodies.)

Do not be misled by children who feign helplessness at not being able to get a band-aid out of the wrapper. Have you ever seen them tear into a package of gum? It's enough to make your blood run cold.

To my knowledge, we only owned one toy that lasted longer than 15 minutes. It was a robot monster that ran on batteries and held me at bay in the sink for eight hours with a laser gun pointed at my head.

Now that I think of it... it was probably running for its life from the children.

Excessive Drinking Leads To Defects

Excessive drinking during pregnancy can lead to birth defects, James W. Hanson, MD, assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Iowa, Iowa City, told a postgraduate conference on pediatrics at the university.

Forty-one babies born to women with severe alcoholic problems have been found to be smaller than average, have heart defects, and have poor facial and head growth, he reported.

Describing a second study, Dr. Hanson said that 17 per cent of infants of alcoholic mothers died in the newborn period. Of the babies that survived, 44 per cent developed IQs of 80 or below.

As reported in the "American Family Physician," Dr. Hanson said that "we know that alcohol easily crosses the placental barrier, but we don't know what a safe level of alcohol is for the pregnant woman and her baby."

Oswald: "The suicide squeeze is usually worked by a defender, but here is one that declarer worked out against himself."

Jim: "It certainly is one of the most unusual hands of 1976. South took East's queen of clubs with the king, led the nine of clubs, covered with dummy's ten, cashed the ace of clubs while discarding his four of hearts, led a fourth club to set up dummy's last one and suddenly found he could not afford to discard from his own hand. A diamond discard would make it impossible for him to collect three diamond tricks and a spade discard would cost him a spade trick. So, he discarded a second heart."

Oswald: "This would have given him nine tricks except that West diagnosed the problem and led his deuce of hearts. This set up three heart tricks for West while he still held his ace of spades and South was down one."

Jim: "South could have made the hand by leading a low club instead of the ace from dummy at trick three. This would have kept him from squeezing himself and he would have made the game."

Ask the Jacobys

A Nebraska reader wants to know if we would open three spades with:

KQJ10xxx Ax xx xx

if vulnerable.

The answer is what we certainly would. In fact this is just about a standard vulnerable three-level preempt. We don't have enough high cards for a one bid and we do expect to score seven tricks in our own hand with spades as trumps.

BERRIEN SPRINGS — "Visions of Eight," a film study of the 1972 Olympic games in Munich, will be shown at Andrews university in Johnson auditorium Saturday, Jan. 8, and Sunday, Jan. 9, at 8 p.m.

The film portrays eight separate phases of the games as seen through the camera lenses of eight of the world's finest cinema photographers. Each segment is photographed in the style of the cinematographer and in some cases is narrated by the same person.

The fastest, the highest, the winners, the losers, the biggest, the strongest, the women's entries and some views of behind-the-scenes training are included in the composite.

The film attempts to show the personal drama of the Olympics. With its excellent filming, colorful action and slow-motion photography, it shows the concentration of the athletes and the agony through which many participants pass while competing.

ten, cashed the ace of clubs while discarding his four of hearts, led a fourth club to set up dummy's last one and suddenly found he could not afford to discard from his own hand. A diamond discard would make it impossible for him to collect three diamond tricks and a spade discard would cost him a spade trick. So, he discarded a second heart."

Oswald: "This would have given him nine tricks except that West diagnosed the problem and led his deuce of hearts. This set up three heart tricks for West while he still held his ace of spades and South was down one."

Jim: "South could have made the hand by leading a low club instead of the ace from dummy at trick three. This would have kept him from squeezing himself and he would have made the game."

Ask the Jacobys

A Nebraska reader wants to know if we would open three spades with:

if vulnerable.

The answer is that we certainly would. In fact this is just about a standard vulnerable three-level preempt. We don't have enough high cards for a one bid and we do expect to score seven tricks in our own hand with spades as trumps.

Excessive Drinking Leads To Defects

Excessive drinking during pregnancy can lead to birth defects. James W. Hanson, MD, assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Iowa, Iowa City, told a postgraduate conference on pediatrics at the university.

Forty-one babies born to women with severe alcoholic problems have been found to be smaller than average, have heart defects, and have poor facial and head growth, he reported.

Describing a second study, Dr. Hanson said that 17 per cent of infants of alcoholic mothers died in the newborn period. Of the babies that survived, 44 per cent developed IQs of 80 or below.

As reported in the "American Family Physician," Dr. Hanson said that "we know that alcohol easily crosses the placental barrier, but we don't know what a safe level of alcohol is for the pregnant woman and her baby."

Blacks, Whites Split On Who'll Succeed Daley

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The battle line has been drawn in the struggle to succeed Richard J. Daley as mayor of the nation's second largest city, with blacks on one side and whites on the other.

Black leaders were united behind Alderman Wilson Frost of the South Side, while white leaders backed Alderman Michael Bilandic of Daley's 11th Ward.

The City Council was scheduled to meet Tuesday to elect an acting mayor from among the aldermen to serve until a special election is held in six months. Black supporters of Frost, who appeared to be the underdog, brought their campaign to the public, while the Bilandic supporters met behind the scenes to line up the 25 votes he needs.

In an advertisement in today's Chicago newspapers, the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, national president of Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity), said, "Wilson Frost should not be the interim mayor because he is black, nor any person because of his ethnic heritage. But neither should he be denied the ascendancy because he is black."

The advertisement, signed by more than 100 community leaders, most of them black, criticized a reported agreement under which two key City Hall power brokers, Aldermen Edward R. Vrdolyak and Edward Burke, reportedly agreed to support Bilandic in return for increased importance in the council.

"This back-room deal assumes that might at night is right," Jackson said.

There were reports that a similar deal might be lined up — offering Frost greater power in the City Council — to head off his candidacy and preserve Democratic unity against a possible Republican challenge in the special election by former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Others suggested that Frost, who was not available for comment, already had realized he could not win the acting mayor election but would seek the post to set himself up for a serious run in the Democratic primary for the special election.

Blacks, once the reliable backbone of the regular organization, have become increasingly independent. They make up the largest ethnic bloc in the city.

Speculation about the special election also includes independent Democrats William S. Singer and Edward V. HANRAHAN. They are not aldermen, but they have hinted that they might run in the primary.

a heart attack. He was in his sixth four-year term when stricken in his doctor's office.

George W. Dunne, president of the Cook County Board, emerged as the likely successor to Daley as county Democratic chairman.

Carter Cabinet Choices Rapped By Ralph Nader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says President-elect Carter's cabinet choices were "with a few exceptions, not in accordance with the positions he espoused during the campaign."

Nader was asked Sunday about the cabinet on the CBS interview program, "Face the Nation."

He singled out James Schlesinger, the former secretary of defense who will be Carter's assistant on energy matters, and W. Michael Blumenthal, chairman of the Bendix Corp., named secretary of the treasury.

He said Schlesinger is "known for condoning secrecy and supporting atomic energy."

Asked if he thought Schlesinger's appointment meant Carter was backing away from his criticism of nuclear power, Nader replied, "We have to believe he meant what he (Carter) said — nuclear power will be the last resort." Blumenthal, he said, "does not have a strong commitment for using the Treasury as something other than a plantation for bankers."

He did not specify his objections to any other cabinet appointments.

However, he said he approved of the naming of F. Ray Marshall as secretary of labor and praised his understanding of the poor and unemployed.

He said he also favored the naming of Joseph Califano as secretary of health, education and welfare — "I think Joe Califano will add compassion to HEW" — and of Rep. Bob Bergland of Minnesota as secretary of agriculture.

Bergland has an excellent record on environmental questions and will represent small family farmers and oppose agribusiness, he said.

He said he did not think his criticisms were "premature. If criticism is not raised now, it may be too late."

Nader said he would take no government post himself. "I will be an outsider. In my last conversation with Mr. Carter, I indicated to him how vital it was for him to have outside views." He said Carter in response had invited him to "call and come over on 30 minutes' notice" when he had something to say.

Michigan Spends 1976 Grappling With Hazards

By MALCOLM JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State government found itself bombarded with threats to the health of Michigan residents and the environment in 1976, although some hazards seemed beyond the control of state officials.

Many of the problems continue to baffle medical experts and bureaucrats as a new year approaches. The cloud of PBB poisoning and the swine flu vaccination program hover overhead, while concerns remain about a possible nuclear waste disposal site, the effects of Project Seafarer, pollution by such toxic chemicals as PCBs and the approving of expanded drilling in Pigeon River Country State Forest.

The legislature and governor, however, grappled mainly with budget problems and other pressing issues, while politicians across the state focused on the election.

The year also saw a federal threat to close two Air Force bases, a welfare scandal in Detroit, utility refunds and rate increases, court rulings on political reform and auto repair, State Police on Detroit freeways and a governmental efficiency study.

But much of the year seemed to be spent fighting off health and environment hazards, with state government soothing the rattled nerves of Michigan residents. Among the most serious alarms were:

—The continuing tragedy of PBB poisoning. The problem shifted from disposal of cattle to the first large-scale testing of humans for possible effects of the toxic fire-retardant chemical. Results are due in the spring, but meanwhile the substance has turned up in mother's milk.

—The swine flu inoculation program. The first scare which halted the program came as numerous deaths followed the shots — including three men in Michigan. The program got restarted, only to founder on a possible link to the paralyzing Guillain-Barre syndrome, which affected at least 28 in Michigan. State officials confided the program likely is dead.

—A federal proposal to bury radioactive nuclear wastes in northeastern Lower Michigan. That touched off an outcry against such a disposal site, and Gov. William Milliken wrangled a pledge from Washington that he would have veto power. A bill was sponsored to give the legislature power to approve it.

—The Seafarer Project. Milliken obtained veto power here, too, although he has declined to use it despite local opposition to the mammoth underground communications grid in the Upper Peninsula. Initial studies showed it would have insignificant health or environmental impacts, but both citizens and state officials were skeptical.

—Newly disclosed pollution problems from the toxic chemicals PCBs. The industrial chemical has been found in high concentrations in Great Lakes fish and birds, and the legislature hastened a bill to outlaw use of PCBs in Michigan. It also approved a bill to ban aerosol spray devices using fluorocarbons in a push for a national ban.

—Opening Pigeon River to drilling. The Natural Resources Commission capped a months-long controversy by permitting expanded drilling in the wilderness area in northeastern Lower Michigan. Environmentalists blasted the decision and filed suit, but lost in court.

—The Seney fire. Because of a federal policy of letting self-starting forest fires burn themselves out, the fire raged out of control in the Seney Wildlife Refuge for two months — costing the state and Washington millions of dollars.

While the state bureaucracy struggled with those problems, the legislature was involved only peripherally. It spent most of its time fighting to balance the budget as the state slowly moved out of the recession.

The books finally were balanced with spending cutbacks, the extension of the fiscal year and some borrowing. The state's voters approved a ban on nonreturnable bottles and cans — taking effect in two years — and rejected proposals to authorize a graduated income tax and restrict state spending.

Slain Girl's Body Found Near Troy

TROY, Mich. (AP) — The body of a girl found off I-75 near Troy Sunday has been tentatively identified as 12-year-old Jill Robinson, who police said ran away from home after a fight with her mother.

Police said the girl had been killed by a shotgun blast to her head and positive visual identification was impossible. But her clothing and a blanket and backpack found nearby matched that of the Robinson girl, authorities said.

The girl had not been sexually assaulted, according to a spokesman for the Oakland County Medical Examiner's Office.

Police said a check of fingerprints and dental records should yield positive identification sometime today.

Police in Royal Oak, where the girl lived, said the Robinson girl ran away Wednesday after arguing with her mother, Karol Robinson. The argument apparently started when the girl refused to make biscuits for dinner.

Police said the girl was shot before 6 a.m. Sunday. The body was found by a passing motorist.

Michigan Spends 1976 Grappling With Hazards

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State government found itself bombarded with threats to the health of Michigan residents and the environment in 1976, although some hazards seemed beyond the control of state officials.

Many of the problems continue to baffle medical experts and bureaucrats as a new year approaches. The cloud of PBB poisoning and the swine flu vaccination program hover overhead, while concerns remain about a possible nuclear waste disposal site, the effects of Project Seafarer, pollution by such toxic chemicals as PCBs and the approving of expanded drilling in Pigeon River Country State Forest.

The legislature and governor, however, grappled mainly with budget problems and other pressing issues, while politicians across the state focused on the election.

The year also saw a federal threat to close two Air Force bases, a welfare scandal in Detroit, utility refunds and rate increases, court rulings on political reform and auto repair, State Police on Detroit freeways and a governmental efficiency study.

But much of the year seemed to be spent fighting off health and environment hazards, with state government soothing the rattled nerves of Michigan residents. Among the most serious alarms were:

—The continuing tragedy of PBB poisoning. The problem shifted from disposal of cattle to the first large-scale testing of humans for possible effects of the toxic fire-retardant chemical. Results are due in the spring, but meanwhile the substance has turned up in mother's milk.

—The swine flu inoculation program. The first scare which halted the program came as numerous deaths followed the shots — including three men in Michigan. The program got restarted, only to founder on a possible link to the paralyzing Guillain-Barre syndrome, which affected at least 28 in Michigan. State officials confined the program likely is dead.

—A federal proposal to bury radioactive nuclear wastes in northeastern Lower Michigan. That touched off an outcry against such a disposal site, and Gov. William Milliken wrangled a pledge from Washington that he would have veto power. A bill was sponsored to give the legislature power to approve it.

—The Seafarer Project. Milliken obtained veto power here, too, although he has declined to use it despite local opposition to the mammoth underground communications grid in the Upper Peninsula. Initial studies showed it would have insignificant health or environmental impacts, but both citizens and state officials were skeptical.

—Newly disclosed pollution problems from the toxic chemicals PCBs. The industrial chemical has been found in high concentrations in Great Lakes fish and birds, and the legislature hastened a bill to outlaw use of PCBs in Michigan. It also approved a bill to ban aerosol spray devices using fluorocarbons in a push for a national ban.

—Opening Pigeon River to drilling. The Natural Resources Commission capped a months-long controversy by permitting expanded drilling in the wilderness area in northeastern Lower Michigan. Environmentalists blasted the decision and filed suit, but lost in court.

—The Seney fire. Because of a federal policy of letting self-starting forest fires burn themselves out, the fire raged out of control in the Seney Wildlife Refuge for two months — costing the state and Washington millions of dollars.

While the state bureaucracy struggled with those problems, the legislature was involved only peripherally. It spent most of its time fighting to balance the budget as the state slowly moved out of the recession.

The books finally were balanced with spending cutbacks, the extension of the fiscal year and some borrowing.

The state's voters approved a ban on nonreturnable bottles and cans — taking effect in two years — and rejected proposals to authorize a graduated income tax and restrict state spending.

Slain Girl's Body Found Near Troy

TROY, Mich. (AP) — The body of a girl found off I-75 near Troy Sunday has been tentatively identified as 12-year-old Jill Robinson, who police said ran away from home after a fight with her mother.

Police said the girl had been killed by a shotgun blast to her head and positive visual identification was impossible. But her clothing and a blanket and backpack found nearby matched that of the Robinson girl, authorities said.

The girl had not been sexually assaulted, according to a spokesman for the Oakland County Medical Examiner's Office.

Police said a check of fingerprints and dental records should yield positive identification sometime today.

Police in Royal Oak, where the girl lived, said the Robinson girl ran away Wednesday after arguing with her mother, Karol Robinson. The argument apparently started when the girl refused to make biscuits for dinner.

Ford To Carter --Promises Are Hard To Keep

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford says his greatest contribution while in office was reuniting a divided country, while his greatest disappointments were his inability to turn the economy around as "effectively as I hoped" and failure to obtain a second strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union.

Ford also said President-elect Carter will soon find that promises he made in the heat of the presidential campaign are going to be hard to keep once he enters the Oval Office.

Concerning campaign promises of his own, Ford said he still intends to ask the new Congress, which meets Jan. 4, for a tax cut that will consist of "increasing personal exemptions and reducing corporate rates."

The President made his observations during an interview with ABC newswoman Barbara Walters. The text of the interview, taped with the President and Mrs. Ford in the White House before they left for a Vail, Colo., vacation, was released Sunday. ABC will air the discussion Sunday, Jan. 2.

Recalling Aug. 9, 1974, when he took over the presidency from Richard M. Nixon, Ford said, "People were angry with one another, there was a divisiveness among our people, there was distrust of people for their government and Washington, as an institution, I think, was in great disrepute."

"So the last two and a half years, I feel, has changed the whole atmosphere very significantly."

The President also again defended his decision to pardon Nixon while admitting that the action had an "adverse impact" on his chances in the election.

"I issued the pardon," he explained, "because in the first month that I was president, we had horrendous problems in Southeast Asia and Vietnam. And all the time in that first month there was controversy day after day...."

"I was spending at least 25 per cent of my time listening to legal arguments about what we would do with the Nixon papers at a time when I should have been working 100 per cent of the time on the war in Vietnam and the problems of the economy and that is the only reason that I really made the decision."

Aside from the pardon, Ford said the most difficult decision that confronted him during his administration was ordering the operation to rescue American merchant seamen in the Mayaguez incident and that one of the most difficult tasks was to gain Israeli and Egyptian consent to the Sinai II agreement.

Ford characterized some statements made by Carter during the presidential campaign as "purely political comment" whose meaning would become "significantly different" in the reality of being in the White House.

"I think he is going to find that you can't turn a switch and automatically increase employment and decrease unemployment; he can't, by the waving of a wand, eliminate a deficit even over a period of time," the outgoing president said.

Their Holidays A Time Of Tragedy

FAIRFIELD, Maine (AP) — Holiday tragedy struck Dorothy Reynolds' family for the third straight year when a fire, apparently begun in a Christmas tree, killed her three youngest sons, and injured her and her seven other children.

"They'll never smile again," said a close friend who watched ambulances take the surviving family members to the hospital.

Last year, on Thanksgiving Day, Mrs. Reynolds' 36-year-old husband, William, died of a heart attack while recovering from a serious snowmobile accident.

And it was the Fourth of July 1974 holiday period when another Reynolds child, 9-year-old Dwayne, drowned with a cousin when they fell into a hole filled with water while playing in the woods.

On Sunday morning, when fire units arrived at the Reynolds' home in a rural section of Fairfield, they found the two-story wood-frame house ablaze.

"Flames were shooting out from all sides of the house," said Fire Chief Benjamin Leighton. "We knew that some of the kids were still trapped inside and though it only took us five minutes to get to them, we were still too late."

He said more people might have died had it not been for the quick thinking of one of the girls.

"I'm sure that Melody saved several lives," he explained.

"She's only 12, but she forced her brothers and sisters out the windows or they also might have been trapped. She tried to save the three young boys, but they panicked and ran away from her."

FREEDOM MAP: Map based on information from Freedom House, a privately financed organization, indicates areas of the world that they consider free, partially free and not free. According to Freedom House fewer than 20 per cent of the world's four billion people share the liberties that are enjoyed by Americans. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Only Fifth Of World Is Free

NEW YORK (AP) — At the close of the Bicentennial, Americans enjoy liberties that are shared by fewer than 20 per cent of the world's four billion people, according to Freedom House.

The privately financed organization said the percentage of free peoples in the world is lower than at any time since it began taking surveys in 1952.

The organization says its ratings are based on citizen participation in choosing national and local leaders and policies; latitude given opposition forces; and freedom of religion, movement and voluntary association.

Only one country, Portugal, was raised to the "free" category. Seven dropped to "not free" or "partially free": Thailand, El Salvador, Argentina, Kuwait, Malagasy, Paraguay and Uruguay.

In the Soviet Union, as well as the rest of Eastern Europe, the report said, "repression continued apace."

In Asia, only Japan, Sri Lanka, The Seychelles, Israel and Turkey were listed as free. Freedom House was established to honor the memory of Wendell Willkie, author of "One World" and Franklin D. Roosevelt's Republican opponent in the 1940 election.

Health News . . .

Regarding That Old Bugaboo: Bursitis

Particularly during this period of the year, that old bugaboo bursitis rears its ugly head to cause pain and suffering.

Although many people, particularly of middle age or past, suffer an attack of bursitis, few are aware of exactly what it is.

"Because it can occur in different areas of the body, a victim may think he has arthritis, rheumatism or neuritis," says Dr. Ackerman.

"The pain may be familiar in all of these, but the difference lies in the cause of the pain," says Dr. Ackerman.

Bursitis must frequently flares up in the shoulder, knee or elbow areas which accounts for such terms as "housemaid's knee," "tennis elbow," or "shoulder strain."

According to Dr. Ackerman, whenever muscles, tendons, or joints need protection from friction or shocks, there are flat sacs so tiny they may not even show up on X-ray. Each tiny sac or bursa contains sufficient fluid to lubricate the area to prevent friction when pressure is applied.

"In other words," says Dr. Ackerman, "the bursa can be described as nature's shock absorbers. They cushion the area vulnerable to stress."

If a bursa becomes irritated due to excessive stress, inflammation develops. "And this is what we call bursitis."

Dr. Ackerman adds that when bursitis reaches this state, pain is felt as friction develops between the bursa walls and tendons and muscles, which are no longer cushioned by fluid.

"Failure to seek proper treatment at this time to reduce the inflammation and start the process of healing, may lead to eventual overstretching and consequent rupture of the walls of the bursa," notes Dr. Ackerman.

Bursitis can be caused in many ways. "An injury or shock can start an irritation," says Dr. Ackerman. "So can a sprain, strain, joint or continual stress. Or it can be irritated by unusual exercise or effort, or by overuse."

What are the symptoms of bursitis? Dr. Ackerman says that usually even limited movement in an affected part is painful. There may be swelling and tenderness. At first, the pain may be a gnawing ache, eventually blossoming into sharp and excruciating agony. Such simple acts as combing the hair, shaving, or putting on one's coat becomes difficult if a shoulder bursa is involved. Sleeping is a painful process as it hard to find a comfortable position.

As far as treatment is concerned, Dr. Ackerman warns that the inflammation must be reduced quickly and effectively.

"And the sooner the better after the first symptoms are noticed. If care is obtained when pain first develops there's a good chance this painful condition can be ripped in the bud."

Whatever the case, proper treatment is the best precautionary measure to reduce the possibility of the case becoming chronic and resulting in permanent disability.

Girl Dies In Idling Car

ROSEVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Police have ruled accidental the death of a 4-year-old girl who died while sleeping in a running car parked in a garage. Officials did not identify the child or her 21-year-old mother, who also was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes and treated at a Warren hospital after the incident Friday. Police said the mother told them she drove to a friend's house and found no one home. She then drove the car into the garage and closed the door behind her. She told authorities she turned the engine on for a few minutes to get warm, but police theorize she must have fallen asleep.

Bedroom Fire Kills Two

DETROIT (AP) — An elderly Detroit couple died Sunday after fire broke out in the bedroom of their east side home, according to police. William and Mary Moore, both in their 70s, were pulled from the burning room, but died at Detroit General Hospital of burns and smoke inhalation, police said. Authorities said the blaze appeared to have started in a mattress and was confined to the bedroom. Two other Detroit residents were killed in Christmas Day fires. Jessie Ann Jackson, 26, died in a fire that swept her home early Saturday, police said. Her two children were rescued. Arnold O'Dell, 51, died in an apartment house fire the same morning.

FREEDOM MAP: Map based on information from Freedom House, a privately financed organization, indicates areas of the world that they consider free, partially free and not free. Only Fifth Of World Is Free

NEW YORK (AP) — At the close of the Bicentennial, Americans enjoy liberties that are shared by fewer than 20 per cent of the world's four billion people, according to Freedom House.

The privately financed organization said the percentage of free people in the world is lower than at any time since it began taking surveys in 1952.

The organization says its ratings are based on citizen participation in choosing national and local leaders and policies; latitude given opposition forces; and freedom of religion, movement and voluntary association.

Only one country, Portugal, was raised to the "free" category. Seven dropped to "not free" or "partially free": Thailand, El Salvador, Argentina, Kuwait, Malagasy, Paraguay and Uruguay.

In the Soviet Union, as well as the rest of Eastern Europe, the report said, "repression continued apace."

In Asia, only Japan, Sri Lanka, The Seychelles, Israel and Turkey were listed as free.

Freedom House was established to honor the memory of Wendell Wilkie, author of "One World" and Franklin D. Roosevelt's Republican opponent in the 1940 election.

Regarding That Old Bugaboo: Bursitis

Particularly during this period of the year, that old bugaboo bursitis rears its ugly head to cause pain and suffering.

Although many people, particularly of middle age or past, suffer an attack of bursitis, few are aware of exactly what it is. "Because it can occur in different areas of the body, a victim may think he has arthritis, rheumatism or neuritis."

"The pain may be familiar in all of these, but the difference lies in the cause of the pain," says Dr. Ackerman.

Bursitis most frequently flares up in the shoulder, knee or elbow areas-which accounts for such terms as "housemaid's knee," "tennis elbow," or "shoulder strain."

According to Dr. Ackerman, whenever muscles, tendons, or joints need protection from friction or shocks, there are flat sacs so tiny they may not even show up on X-ray. Each tiny sac or bursa contains sufficient fluid to lubricate the area to prevent friction when pressure is applied.

BROWN PRO-MASSIVE RETALIATION

U.S. Nuclear War Policy Shift?

by FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The selection of Dr. Harold Brown as defense secretary probably means that massive retaliation again will become the dominant U.S. plan for deterring a Soviet nuclear attack.

Under this concept of "mutually assured destruction," both superpowers are afraid to attack because each has enough protected strategic nuclear weapons to ride out a surprise blow and to devastate the attacker's cities in return.

This long was the pre-eminent concept in U.S. deterrence doctrine. But former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger pushed to the front nearly three years ago a different option called "flexible response," and that policy was retained by his successor, Donald Rumsfeld.

Brown, a senior Pentagon official for eight years in the 1960s, has shown in the past that he disagrees with Schlesinger's approach and that he believes "assured destruction" is the surest policy for discouraging Soviet attack.

Schlesinger changed U.S. targeting doctrine to emphasize a capability for selective, relatively small-scale nuclear retaliatory strikes at Soviet military and military-related targets.

He argued that this would give the United States flexibility to reply to possible limited Soviet nuclear strikes on U.S. military forces, or to overwhelming conventional aggression against U.S. allies in Europe, without launching massive attacks on Soviet cities.

Schlesinger contended this flexibility — and Soviet awareness that the United States was prepared to resort to it — would reduce the danger of nuclear conflict.

"The aim of this modification of policy is to make lower level nuclear conflicts as well as conflicts involving the large-scale destruction of cities even less likely," Schlesinger wrote Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., in early 1974.

Brown's disagreement with the emphasis on a "flexible response" policy was expressed in a talk he made last year before the Soviet Academy of Sciences in Moscow.

Brown said contingency planning for possible strategic nuclear strikes against military targets "ought to be severely limited" because it may erode deterrence and thus "increase the likelihood of catastrophe."

He said, "A nation confronted with the fact of a strategic nuclear attack will indeed want to have assured itself of options other than an immediate all-out retaliatory attack on urban-industrial targets."

"But every examination I have seen of the various possible subsequent courses of events indicates that it is unlikely that the other options will in the end avoid mutual destruction of the attacker and the attacked."

Mother Learns Son Is Dead-- Then She Dies

BANGOR — An 82-year-old Bangor woman collapsed and died here Thursday morning when she was told that her son had died of pneumonia just hours earlier in South Haven Community hospital.

Her son, Fred P. Williams, 61, of the same address, died at 7 a.m. Thursday in South Haven Community hospital of pneumonia. He had been rushed to the hospital about two hours earlier, authorities said. Mrs. Williams was told of the death by her daughter, Mrs. Raimon (Barriett) Yieder, of Bangor, who returned home from the hospital with the news. Mr. Williams was born July 27, 1915, in Bangor. His mother, Mrs. Williams, was born April 18, 1894, in Bangor.

Surviving are Mrs. Ellen Braddon, Coloma, and Mrs. Raimon (Barriett) Yieder, Bangor, and Frank Jr., Bangor. They are the daughters and son of Mrs. Williams and the sisters and brother of Fred Williams. Mrs. Williams' husband and Fred Williams' father, Frank, preceded them in death in 1967.

Double funeral services for Mrs. Williams and her son, Fred, will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Stafford-Robbins funeral home, Bangor. Burial will be in the family lot of Monk cemetery.

Sen. Philip Hart Is Dead At 64

Leader Mike Mansfield was moved to call him "the best senator of us all." Hart headed the Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on antitrust and monopolies for years, staging hearings on big business that he called "poorly attended lectures on the evils of economic concentration."

"These hearings produced what Hart called 'a modest little bill' to break up the nation's largest and most powerful conglomerates, including General Motors, the single most powerful economic influence in Hart's home state. For 10 years he fought for the idea, finally coming close to victory in September when the Senate came within five votes of adopting his proposal to break up the 20 largest oil companies."

"In theory, we have a free enterprise system," Hart once said. "But in fact, in each of our basic industries, a handful of corporations calls the shots, immune from the pressures of competition."

He said his efforts to break up huge corporations "simply goes back to what has been the credo of this country since its birth: too much power in the hands of too few is a danger to the public interest." Taking firm stands on issues that endangered his political career was not unusual for Hart.

He fought efforts to curb school busing, even after it became a political issue in Michigan, and was a strong gun control advocate, though he represented a state populated with hundreds of thousands of gun-owning hunters. He opposed the Detroit auto makers' efforts to scuttle or slow laws on pollution control and safety standards.

He was floor manager of the 1965 Voting Rights Act and the 1968 open housing bill, a sponsor of truth in lending and packaging bills and an early backer of the school lunch program for poor children.

Born Dec. 10, 1912, in Bryn Mawr, Pa., he was the son of a banker, the grandson of an Irish immigrant who did landscape gardening and managed a private estate. Hart was president of the student body at Georgetown University in Washington, a Jesuit institution, where he graduated cum laude and met the brother of Jane C. Briggs, the woman he later married. She was the daughter of Detroit millionaire industrialist Walter C. Briggs, who owned the Detroit Tigers baseball team.

Hart graduated from the University of Michigan law school in 1937 and entered law practice in Detroit. He compiled a distinguished Army record in World War II, emerging in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel. He became Michigan's corporation and securities commissioner in 1949, and until his election to the Senate in 1958 he served as director of the Office of Price Stabilization in Michigan. U.S. attorney for eastern Michigan, legal adviser to Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams, and was twice lieutenant governor of Michigan.

Lions Fire All Their Coaches

coaches have been fired," the News quoted Hudspeth as saying. "That was not discussed. The coaches were given the right to look elsewhere."

Knox is under a multi-year contract with the Rams, who lost the National Football Conference championship Sunday to the Minnesota Vikings. He is a former Lions assistant coach.

When the Lions finished the season two weeks ago with a 6-8 record, owner Ford said he would be taking more control of the club. Ford said he wanted to discuss the situation with Hudspeth before deciding on a permanent coach.

The News said Ford and Hudspeth met last Monday, but there has been no official announcement of any decision for next year's coaching position.

"I would rather not talk about my situation," Hudspeth told the News. "I know what I am going to do, but I think there should be an announcement from the club."

Hudspeth had been the Lions' personnel director before he was named interim coach.

derailed cars were returned to Grand Rapids while the rest of the train finished the run to New Buffalo.

A.R. Carpenter, superintendent of operations for C&O, was dispatched from Southfield to St. Joseph the night of the accident and is supervising operations for the removal of the boxcars.

He said Sunday the railroad bridge has been closed until suspected electrical damage that prevents the bridge from opening and closing is repaired. The derailment was the ninth reported on C&O tracks in Berrien county in 1976. Others were:

Jan. 18 — 16 boxcars of 70-car freight, a mule south of Stevensville.

April 19 — five cars and caboose of 80-car freight, south of Hawthorne avenue, St. Joseph.

June 10 — seven freight cars at New Buffalo.

June 11 — 10 cars carrying 120 new 1976 automobiles in downtown Watervliet.

June 18 — one car of 100-car freight at Hilltop road crossing, St. Joseph.

Aug. 1 — one car of freight at Stevensville.

Nov. 11 — one freight car at Upton drive crossing, St. Joseph.

Nov. 19 — five cars of 70-car freight near St. Joseph avenue crossing, Stevensville.

Mother Learns Son Is Dead-- Then She Dies

BANGOR — An 82-year-old Bangor woman collapsed and died here Thursday morning when she was told that her son had died of pneumonia just hours earlier in South Haven Community hospital.

Mrs. Hattie Williams, Route 2, Bangor, was pronounced dead at her home by Van Buren county medical authorities. Sheriff's deputies said her death was attributed to heart failure.

Her son, Fred P. Williams, 61, of the same address, died at 7 a.m. Thursday in South Haven Community hospital of pneumonia. He had been rushed to the hospital about two hours earlier, authorities said. Mrs. Williams was told of the death by her daughter, Mrs. Raimon (Harriett) Yieder, of Bangor, who returned home from the hospital with the news. Mr. Williams was born July 27, 1915, in Bangor. His mother, Mrs. Williams, was born April 18, 1894, in Bangor.

Surviving are Mrs. Ellen Braddon, Coloma, and Mrs. Raimon (Harriett) Yieder, Bangor, and Frank Jr., Bangor. They are the daughters and son of Mrs. Williams and the sisters and brother of Fred Williams. Mrs. Williams' husband and Fred Williams' father, Frank, preceded them in death in 1967.

Double funeral services for Mrs. Williams and her son, Fred, will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Stafford-Robbins funeral home, Bangor. Burial will be in the family lot of Monk cemetery.

Sen. Philip Hart Is Dead At 64

Leader Mike Mansfield was moved to call him "the best senator of us all." Hart headed the Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on antitrust and monopolies for years, stating's hearings on big business that he called "poorly attended lectures on the evils of economic concentration."

Those hearings produced what Hart called "a modest little bill" to break up the nation's largest and most powerful conglomerates, including General Motors, the single most powerful economic influence in Hart's home state. For 10 years he fought for the idea, finally coming close to victory in September when the Senate came within five votes of adopting his proposal to break up the 20 largest oil companies.

"In fact, we have a free enterprise system," Hart once said. "But in theory, in each of our basic industries, a handful of corporations calls the shots, immune from the pressures of competition."

He said his efforts to break up huge corporations "simply goes back to what has been the credo of this country since its birth: too much power in the hands of too few is a danger to the public interest." Taking firm stands on issues that endangered his political career was not unusual for Hart.

He fought efforts to curb school busing, even after it became a political issue in Michigan, and was a strong gun control advocate, though he represented a state populated with hundreds of thousands of gun-owning hunters. He opposed the Detroit auto makers' efforts to scuttle or slow laws on pollution control and safety standards.

He was floor manager of the 1965 Voting Rights Act and the 1968 open housing bill, a sponsor of truth in lending and packaging bills and an early backer of the school lunch program for poor children.

Born Dec. 10, 1912, in Bryn Mawr, Pa., he was the son of a banker, the grandson of an Irish immigrant who did landscape gardening and managed a private estate. Hart was president of the student body at Georgetown University in Washington, a Jesuit institution, where he graduated cum laude and met the brother of Jane C. Briggs, the woman he later married. She was the daughter of Detroit millionaire industrialist Walter C. Briggs, who owned the Detroit Tigers baseball team.

Hart graduated from the University of Michigan law school in 1937 and entered law practice in Detroit. He compiled a distinguished Army record in World War II, emerging in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel. He became Michigan's corporation and securities commissioner in 1949, and until his election to the Senate in 1958 he served as director of the Office of Price Stabilization in Michigan. U.S. attorney for eastern Michigan, legal adviser to Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams, and was twice lieutenant governor of Michigan.

Riegle Will Have Tough Time Filling Hart's Shoes

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ambitious, aggressive and abrasive are the adjectives most often used by some political observers in referring to 38-year-old Donald Riegle, who inherits Philip Hart's U.S. Senate seat

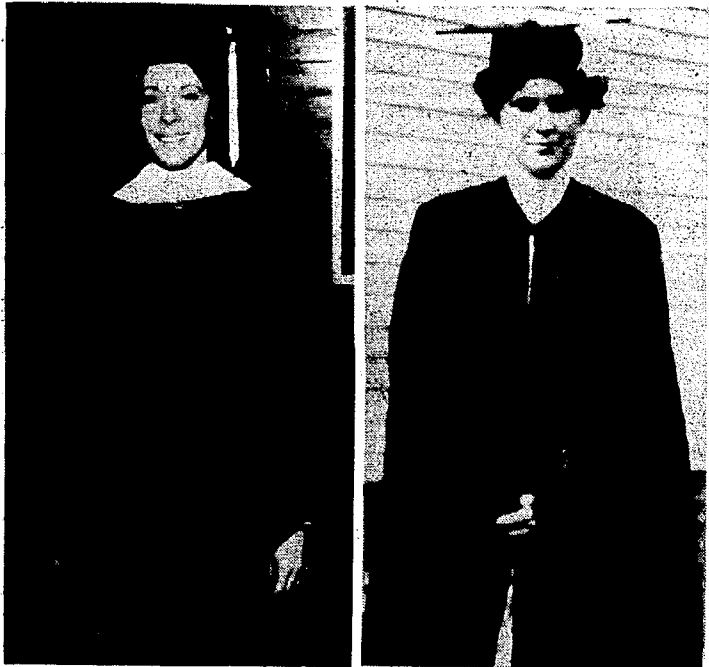

DONALD RIEGLE
Big Shoes To Fill

next month.
In a bitter campaign sprinkled with reports of extramarital affairs, Riegle was elected in November to fill the position Hart had announced he was relinquishing because of ill health.
Hart, a Democrat, died of cancer on Sunday after serving in the Senate since 1959. He was 64.
Gov. William Milliken said there would be no comment on appointing a successor for the brief remainder of Hart's term until after the senator's funeral.
Riegle has been a congressman — both as a Republican and a Democrat — for the past 10 years. He switched parties in 1973.
Hart was one of the most respected and universally lauded men in the Senate.
But Riegle, a loner and a maverick, faces a tough battle to earn similar regard from those members of both parties who question his ambitions and maturity.
Political observers say one of Riegle's biggest hurdles will be overcoming the animosity gained from colleagues when he authored a frank and critical book, "O, Congress," written while still a Republican.
Earlier in his congressional career, criticism followed an interview in which he aspired to the presidency.
In last fall's campaign Democratic eyebrows were raised when reports of a 1969 extramarital affair said he had allowed his lover to tape-record intimate conversations and talk of his ambition to be President by 1980.
Voters in the Flint area who sent Riegle to Congress for five consecutive terms like his rolled-up shirtsleeves style of campaigning, and they swear he gets things done and solves their problems.
But as a relative newcomer, Riegle doesn't have the respect that regulars give to someone who worked his way up through the Democratic party ranks.
Many Republicans have a particular dislike for Riegle, who they regard as a political turncoat.

William McLaughlin, state GOP chairman, contends Riegle switched parties because — with Republican fortunes fading at the time — he knew it would be easier to get re-elected as a Democrat.

And according to one GOP leader, even Milliken has described Riegle as having "fewer" redeeming human qualities than anyone else I know.
Milliken is not known for voicing personal criticism of politicians of either party.
Some political observers expect Riegle to continue to be outspoken, irreverent of Senate tradition and his elders, and quick to jump on an issue for publicity.

One of his House colleagues, Rep. Morris Udall, once compared Riegle to the Old West scouts that preceded the wagon train.
They were not the workers who kept the wagon train moving at a slow but steady pace, he said. Rather, they saw things before others saw them.

Carpet Of Oil Advances, Then Halts Off Nantucket

BOSTON (AP) — A vast carpet of thick oil, spilled from the wrecked tanker Argo Merchant and pushed to within 19 miles of Nantucket Island by a southerly wind, retreated a few miles seaward today and halted, the Coast Guard said.
"We're right back to where we started," a spokesman said of the ship's 7.6-million gallon cargo of industrial oil that has formed a slick estimated at 30 by 100 miles. "There hasn't been much further movement."
Meanwhile, in New York, George Papadopoulos, captain of the Argo Merchant, was to resume testimony today on the grounding of the Liberian-flag tanker on Dec. 15.
U.S. District Court Judge Thomas P. Griesa on Friday ordered the testimony moved from Boston to New York, saying that having courts supervising the litigation in both New York and Boston would lead "to a state of confusion."
Cape Cod fishermen have filed two lawsuits seeking a total of $120 million in damages from the captain and owners of the ship. Depositions on those suits began last Wednesday in Boston.
The company that was to have received the cargo, Northeast Petroleum Corp. of Chelsea, Mass., has filed suit in New York against the tanker's owners, the Thebes Shipping Co., to recover the lost oil. Thebes also has filed suit in New York, to limit the amount it can be assessed.

At the spill site Sunday night, the cutter Vigilant reported winds from the northwest at 40 knots and seas running at about five feet. Those conditions could push the oil farther toward the open ocean.
The National Weather Service predicted gale force winds of up to 45 knots out of the northwest today. Seas could range up to 16 feet before subsiding tonight.

College Dropout Finds His Niche As Tinsmith

By BOB CAMPBELL
The Macomb Daily
EAST DETROIT (AP) — Gordon Brugman gets angry when antique dabblers say it was a tin lamp like he fashions in a cramped backyard workshop that lit the way on a famous midnight ride 200 years ago.

"Paul Revere had a glass lamp," Brugman says, vehemently. "I don't know how long it'll take people to get it right."

Brugman tells that story and others from the unwritten history of tinsmiths with the same pride he takes eyeing his latest hole-peppered barn lamp.

One of less than two dozen tinsmiths left in a country filled with machine-stamped imitations of his 18th century craft, the lean 6-footer has found his niche.

At 26, Brugman is a college dropout who has tried ditch digging, trailer fixing, folk singing and pretzel, leather and auto making.

But being a cog on the line at Chrysler's Lynch Road assembly plant in Detroit finally forced him to look for a new life.

"That's where I realized I must have been born at the wrong time because it wasn't where I belonged," he said. "On the line I never got to begin or finish anything—always somewhere lost in the middle."

"I don't have a temperament to work for somebody else. If there is such a thing as reincarnation, I figure I already built my pyramids in the last life and don't need to build anybody else's," he said.

He turned first to leather-making but found the competition from beltmakers cutting corners to turn out cheap products too tough.

"I grew up with the idea that you not only do a job but do it well," he said. "That certainly wasn't possible on the assembly line, and if you wanted to compete you can't even take that attitude as a leathermaker."

In August 1975, he was hired as an apprentice tinsmith at Dearborn's Greenfield Village, working under Robert Jones. There he learned the patience a smith needs, making more than 1,000 relatively simple candleholders before going on to barn lamps and a tin chandelier he made with Jones.

About four months ago, he moved into his own quarters in a small workshop behind his father's home.

Spending only about $300, he built what he calls the world's only portable tinsmithing shop.

Brugman and his father made a tin roller which would have cost about $1,000 to buy from a dealer out of a 6-foot pipe and an old bed frame.

Luck again was with him when he found a set of bonafide tinsmith punches and chisels at a local flea market.

"They were all antiques probably worth hundreds of dollars, but when the guy found out I was really going to use them, he let me have everything for $5," Brugman said. "It turned out his great-grandfather had been a tinsmith."

The chisels and punches are used for pounding designs on work like the barn lamp, which is the most popular item in the tinsmith's repertoire.

In some parts of the country, it's called the hurricane lamp because some say even hurricane force winds can't blow out the candle inside the conical cylinder.

Light passes through thousands of individually punched holes and fans out in the sunburst and flower designs stamped on the tin. Brugman said the lamps first were designed to provide just enough light to prevent travelers from tripping over rocks in the dark.

His lamps vary in size from about 15 to 30 inches tall and in price from $20 to $55 apiece. Matched sets sell for a little less.

College Dropout Finds His Niche As Tinsmith

By BOB CAMPBELL

The Macomb Daily

EAST DETROIT (AP) — Gordon Brugman gets angry when antique dabblers say it was a tin lamp like he fashions in a cramped backyard workshop that lit the way on a famous midnight ride 200 years ago.

"Paul Revere had a glass lamp," Brugman says, vehemently. "I don't know how long it'll take people to get it right."

Brugman tells that story and others from the unwritten history of tinsmiths with the same pride he takes in his latest hole-peppered barn lamp.

One of less than two dozen tinsmiths left in a country filled with machine-stamped imitations of his 18th century craft, the lean 6-footer has found his niche.

At 26, Brugman is a college dropout who has tried ditch digging, trailer fixing, folk singing and pretzel, leather and auto making.

But being a cog on the line at Chrysler's Lynch Road assembly plant in Detroit finally forced him to look for a new life.

"That's where I realized I must have been born at the wrong time because it wasn't where I belonged," he said. "On the line I never got to begin or finish anything—always somewhere lost in the middle."

"I don't have a temperament to work for somebody else. If there is such a thing as reincarnation, I figure I already built my pyramids in the last life and don't need to build anybody else's," he said.

He turned first to leather-making but found the competition from beltmakers cutting corners to turn out cheap products too tough.

"I grew up with the idea that you not only do a job but do it well," he said. "That certainly wasn't possible on the assembly line, and if you wanted to compete you can't even take that attitude as a leathermaker."

In August 1975, he was hired as an apprentice tinsmith at Dearborn's Greenfield Village, working under Robert Jones. There he learned the patience a smith needs, making more than 1,000 relatively simple candleholders before going on to barn lamps and a tin chandelier he made with Jones.

About four months ago, he moved into his own quarters in a small workshop behind his father's home.

Spending only about $300, he built what he calls the world's only portable tinsmithing shop.

Brugman and his father made a tin roller which would have cost about $1,000 to buy from a dealer out of a 6-foot pipe and an old bed frame.

Luck again was with him when he found a set of bonafide tinsmith punches and chisels at a local flea market.

"They were all antiques probably worth hundreds of dollars, but when the guy found out I was really going to use them, he let me have everything for $5," Brugman said. "It turned out his great-grandfather had been a tinsmith."

The chisels and punches are used for pounding designs on work like the barn lamp, which is the most popular item in the tinsmith's repertoire.

In some parts of the country, it's called the hurricane lamp because some say even hurricane force winds can't blow out the candle inside the cone-topped cylinder.

Light passes through thousands of individually punched holes and fans out in the sunburst and flower designs stamped on the tin. Brugman said the lamps first were designed to provide just enough light to prevent travelers from tripping over rocks in the dark.

His lamps vary in size from about 15 to 30 inches tall and in price from $20 to $55 apiece. Matched sets sell for a little less.

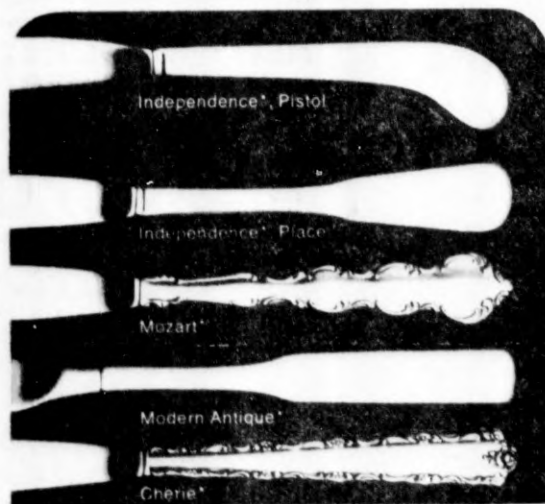

MELTING SOLDER: Gordon Brugman uses tin pipe to blow flame from alcohol lamp which precisely melts solder along metal seams. (AP Wirephoto)

WANING TRADE: Gordon Brugman, one of few remaining tinsmiths in the country, learned his trade at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. (AP Wirephoto)

MIDNIGHT MASS: Pope Paul VI, carried on his portable throne, waves to the faithful as he enters St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City to celebrate Christmas midnight Mass beamed live to world-wide television audience of about one billion people. (AP Wirephoto)

Civil War Over Quebec Possible, Trudeau Says

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau says he would not lead Canadians into a civil war if predominantly French-speaking Quebec tries to break away from the rest of Canada. But he says he does not treat the possibility of such a war lightly.

"We have the examples of Lebanon and Cyprus and Northern Ireland and Bangladesh," Trudeau said in a television interview Sunday. "We have all kinds of contemporary examples of the absurdity of trying to solve the differences of ethnic and religious principles by arms. You start shooting and you don't easily stop."

"I'm just saying that I would not be the man to lead Canada into a civil war, but I don't say there wouldn't be others who would want to take up arms, and hence the danger is not one that I am minimizing."

Trudeau said he was determined to counter the separatist movement in Quebec by working through Canada's democratic structures.

However, the prime minister cautioned that merely giving provincial governments more power in some form of federalism would not be enough to sway Quebec's new ruling party away from its policy of eventual independence.

Rene Levesque of the separatist Parti Quebecois (PQ) was elected premier of the province last month, after his French-speaking party scored an upset victory in provincial elections. Levesque said he plans to call a referendum on independence within two years. Trudeau has said a national referendum would follow if separation was endorsed by a strong majority in Quebec.

"My course is to keep a strong federal government but to make Quebecers feel that they have a role to play in that government," Trudeau said in the interview.

However, he said, "If there is a referendum (on Quebec independence), I think we can clobber the PQ so badly at the referendum that they will no longer have any leg to stand on, and either they'll resign or have to renege on their separatist commitment."

quietest Christmases since the troubles began," said a spokesman for the Belfast, Northern Ireland, police headquarters.

The Irish Republican Army announced no cease-fire over the holidays, but IRA sources confirmed that the word had been passed to observe a holiday truce.

A prominent Palestinian leader and his fiancée were murdered, the only incident in an otherwise peaceful Lebanon.

Rocket and bazooka explosions along the Jordan river could be heard in Bethlehem, birthplace of Jesus, where an estimated 15,000 to 20,000 pilgrims gathered for a Christmas Eve celebration.

President Ford spent Christmas Day on the ski slopes at Vail, Colo., where a much needed snow fell Friday, and he joined millions of other Americans Sunday in watching the televised football games.

One of the gifts Ford received was a humorous present from daughter Susan. She gave him a black bath towel embroidered with the initials "MCP" — "Male Chauvinist Pig."

Ford has been a proponent of the equal rights amendment, but he continues to play golf at Burning Tree Country Club in Bethesda, Md., which excludes women.

President-elect Carter's 9-year-old daughter, Amy, kept his Plains, Ga., household hopping. She awakened her family at 5 a.m. Saturday, but still was rewarded with a doll house and her own telephone.

The President-elect also spent part of his Christmas day at the hospital bedside of his mother. The 78-year-old Mrs. Carter traditionally had prepared Christmas breakfast for the Carter clan, but her doctor thought it would be too much for her this year.

Carter's mother, widely known as "Miss Lillian," was admitted to Americus-Sumter Hospital near Plains on Wednesday. She is undergoing heat treatment for arthritic discomfort. Friends said she was exhausted from signing autographs for tourists who went to Plains shortly after her son won the Democratic presidential nomination in July.

The Christmas weekend was a white one over much of the Northeast and parts of the Midwest, providing a testing ground for new sleds and hazardous driving conditions in many places.

About 400 persons were killed in traffic accidents over the three-day holiday, the National Safety Council reported.

The council had estimated that 400 to 500 persons would be killed during the counting period that began at 6 p.m. Thursday and ended midnight Sunday, local time.

Some 397 persons died last year in traffic accidents when Christmas was observed as a four-day weekend.

Tragedy in the form of fire marked the holiday for some families across the nation. Twelve persons, including 10 children, died when a fire swept the Chicago apartment building where Jesus Garcia was celebrating his 11th birthday on Christmas Eve. And three young boys died and their widowed mother was injured in a Fairfield, Maine, fire that officials believe started in the family's Christmas tree.

Christmas 1976: Leftovers And Bills

By SAM BOYLE

Memories, leftovers and drying Christmas trees filled American homes at the end of the holiday weekend and left many a family waiting for the new year and the bills of Christmas past.

Many who had spent weeks battling department store crowds celebrated the end of the Christmas season by returning to the fray to look for post holiday bargains. For those, there are only four more shopping days until 1977.

And for those who got the oversized sweater or just had a "reject," there was the customary wait in exchange lines.

The Christmas weekend was one in which most of the world was peaceful, if not at peace.

NEW REMEDY STUDIED

Headache Is Underrated

By HARRY ATKINS

Associated Press Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — That common malady, the headache, has been greatly underrated as far as Dr. Joel Saper is concerned.

The University of Michigan neurologist insists that headaches are disabling and disruptive, and can disturb a person's marriage, job or social life.

DR. JOEL SAPER
The pain is real

"Headache pain is just as legitimate, just as real as any other pain," Dr. Saper said. "Maybe it's worse. After all, when the head hurts, the whole body suffers."

Dr. Saper is chief investigator in a study which is being conducted to test a new drug for the treatment of headaches. He also is writing a book on headaches, for the lay public, which is scheduled to be published in the spring.

"Upwards of 40 million Americans suffer from periodic, disabling headaches," Dr. Saper said. "Such headaches are difficult to deal with. Migraine, for example, has been diagnosed much too narrowly, and traditional medicines are not always successful."

What is needed, Dr. Saper said, is a new approach to headache, one which affords a closer doctor-patient relationship and allows doctors to tailor new therapies for individual patients.

"Some of my patients are in a pathetic state while suffering their headaches and literally cannot work or otherwise function normally," the assistant professor in the U-M Medical School said. "They are grateful for any relief."

Dr. Saper said he thinks that most recurring headaches are probably due to migraine or to muscle contraction — so-called tension headaches.

Migraine, he said, is a complex malady involving genetic factors, personality patterns, and precipitating events which might include eating the wrong foods, weather changes and menstrual cycles.

He finds that migraine sufferers frequently are perfectionists, compulsive people who are easily bothered by everyday events in their lives and who tend to internalize their anger rather than expressing it.

"We are relatively close to understanding the biochemistry of some headaches, but we really haven't solved the problem yet," Dr. Saper said. "There are still a great many patients we have not been able to help."

The new headache medicine Dr. Saper is testing, called Inderal, was originally intended for use in heart disease, but appeared to eliminate migraine in many of his patients.

His study is intended to document whether Inderal's side effects on headache are just coincidence or whether it was another example of true medical serendipity — a treatment that is effective in ways not originally intended or sought.

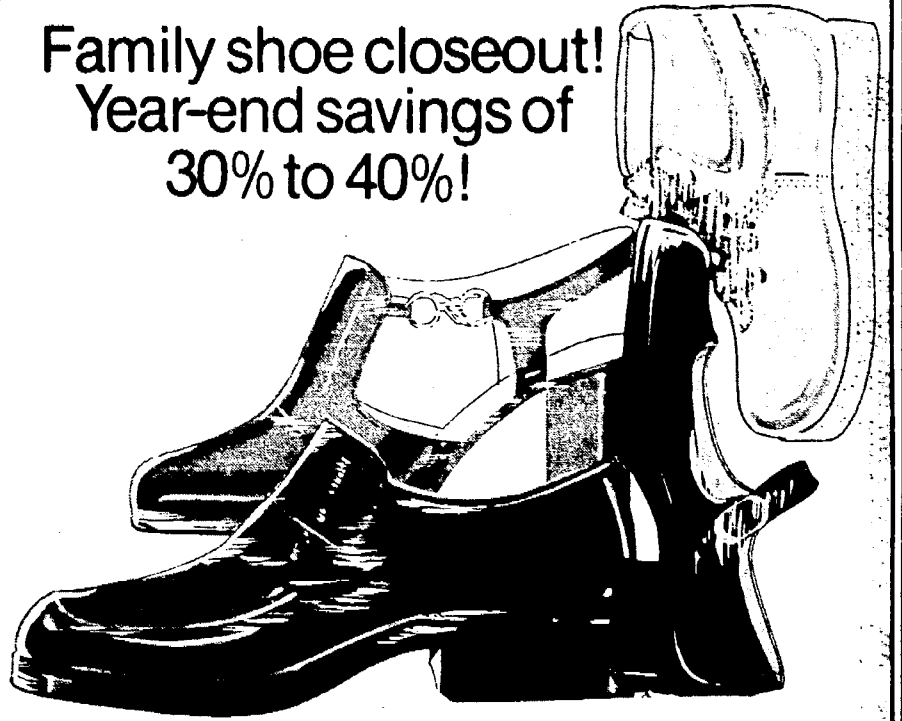

Record Number Of Visitors

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A record 1.5 million motorists have visited Michigan's 12 highway travel information centers this year, the State Highway Commission reports. The previous record was 1.3 million in 1973, before the Arab oil embargo and large increases in gasoline prices. The visitor count has more than doubled since 1967, the commission said. The travel centers, most of them along state borders, distributed more than 3.7 million maps and pieces of travel literature, another record.

NEW REMEDY STUDIED

Headache Is Underrated

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — That common malady, the headache, has been greatly underrated as far as Dr. Joel Saper is concerned.

The University of Michigan neurologist insists that headaches are disabling and disruptive, and can disturb a person's marriage, job or social life.

DR. JOEL SAPER
The pain is real

"Headache pain is just as legitimate, just as real as any other pain," Dr. Saper said. "Maybe it's worse. After all, when the head hurts, the whole body suffers."

Dr. Saper is chief investigator in a study which is being conducted to test a new drug for the treatment of headaches. He also is writing a book on headaches, for the lay public, which is scheduled to be published in the spring.

"Upwards of 40 million Americans suffer from periodic, disabling headaches," Dr. Saper said. "Such headaches are difficult to deal with. Migraine, for example, has been diagnosed much too narrowly, and traditional medicines are not always successful."

What is needed, Dr. Saper said, is a new approach to headache, one which affords a closer doctor-patient relationship and allows doctors to tailor new therapies for individual patients.

"Some of my patients are in a pathetic state while suffering their headaches and literally cannot work or otherwise function normally," the assistant professor in the U-M Medical School said. "They are grateful for any relief."

Dr. Saper said he thinks that most recurring headaches are probably due to migraine or to muscle contraction — so-called tension headaches.

Migraine, he said, is a complex malady involving genetic factors, personality patterns, and precipitating events which might include eating the wrong foods, weather changes and menstrual cycles.

He finds that migraine sufferers frequently are perfectionists, compulsive people who are easily bothered by everyday events in their lives and who tend to internalize their anger rather than expressing it.

"We are relatively close to

The new headache medicine Dr. Saper is testing, called Inderal, was originally intended for use in heart disease, but appeared to eliminate migraine in many of his patients.

His study is intended to document whether Inderal's side effects on headache are just coincidence or whether it was another example of true medical serendipity — a treatment that is effective in ways not originally intended or sought.

CARTER, CABINET MEETING

Tax Cut High On Agenda

By LAWRENCE L. KNUSTON
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter is convening a series of pre-inauguration meetings of his cabinet at a secluded island plantation, with discussions of possible tax cuts and the general state of the economy expected to be high on the agenda.

Carter was scheduled to fly to St. Simons Island near Brunswick, Ga., aboard a commercial chartered airliner today after spending a quiet Christmas with his family in Plains.

Vice President-elect Walter Mondale and most of the new cabinet members were to fly to the island estate from Washington on an Air Force jet.

Carter begins his three-day series of meetings by conferring on economic problems with Michael Blumenthal, the Bendix Corp. chairman named Treasury secretary; Thomas B. Lance, the Atlanta banker chosen as director of the Office of Management and Budget; and Charles Schultz, the economist who will be chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers.

The sessions with the cabinet members, who take over the federal government with Carter on Jan. 20, were planned as free-wheeling and informal. Carter aides said they were designed to let the President-elect and his appointees discuss policies and get to know each other.

"This is the start of his treatment of the cabinet officers as the principal staff and the main means of carrying out what he hopes to do in his administration," said Rex Granum, a Carter spokesman.

But the man Carter defeated in last month's election says Carter probably will have trouble fulfilling his campaign promises.

President Ford said in an ABC-TV interview to be aired Jan. 2: "I think he is going to find that you can't turn a switch and automatically increase employment and decrease unemployment; he can't, by the waving of a wand, eliminate a deficit, even over a period of time."

Meanwhile, Time magazine named Carter as its "Man of the Year," and in an interview, Carter told the magazine he hopes to complete an agreement with the Soviet Union on limiting strategic arms before the current arms pact expires next October.

He said he this could mean a meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, "probably before September" and that "my own preference would be in this country."

On Middle East peace talks, Carter said he thought he should meet with some of the area's leaders and then "decide what public proposals we might make to initiate any peace talks."

An informal buffet supper is planned for all the appointees tonight. They will meet with Carter as a group on Tuesday and Wednesday for working sessions.

The President-elect is scheduled also to discuss the financial problems of New York State and New York City with Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham Beame in a private meeting Tuesday.

Lance attended Sunday school with Carter at the Plains

Methodist Church to hear a sermon by Methodist Bishop William R. Cannon of Atlanta, who has been chosen to offer a prayer at Carter's inauguration on the steps of the U.S. Capitol.

Carter told the Sunday school class that his mother, "Miss Lillian" Carter, would remain hospitalized for two or three days. She was hospitalized last Wednesday, and Carter said she has been suffering from "muscular spasms" in her left leg that cause her pain when she walks.

Carter said his mother is resting.

America's New U.N. Man Sees Vietnam As 'Buffer'

By BARBARA WASHINGTON
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Andrew Young, who has been selected by President-elect Carter to be U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, says repairing American relations with Vietnam could make that country "a buffer against China" and an outlet for U.S. trade.

"We need a strong Vietnam, and President-elect Carter already has said if the Vietnamese give an accounting of those Americans missing in action, he'd see what was necessary to move on normalization of relations," Young said in an interview with The Associated Press. The 44-year-old Georgia congressman said he believes Vietnam's status will continue to be an issue in the United Nations. The United States twice has vetoed Vietnam's application to join the world body.

Getting Communist nations "to relate to the United States instead of each other" should be the Carter administration's primary goal in foreign policy, he said. "It's important for us to continue relations with China and other Communist countries, but we must keep them looking to us."

"Vietnam could develop into an independent Communist nation like Yugoslavia and be a buffer against China."

Young said Vietnam, with its untapped oil in the Gulf of Tonkin, and Cuba, with its sugar revenues and need for American-made products, could both provide new avenues for U.S. trade.

"The only people who have the technology to drill on the ocean floor are in the United States," he said.

France Is Probing Arms Fraud Case

PARIS (AP) — French authorities are investigating a complicated international swindle by a group that allegedly sold fake American military equipment to the Libyan government for $15 million, according to official sources.

The group allegedly had another swindle in the works involving a fake delivery to Libya of American-designed 155mm and 175mm cannons worth $151 million.

No formal charges have been filed, but several French-based arms dealers and their Libyan contacts are suspected of a conspiracy to defraud Col. Muammar Khadafi's government, the sources said. They did not name any of those involved.

According to the sources, the affair began in 1974, when the group successfully circumvented American export controls, delivering to Libya 110 "Startron" night-vision binoculars manufactured by the Smith and Wesson Corp., for $7,000 each.

The Startron, which operates through magnification of light, was developed for the Vietnam war and successfully used by the Israeli army in the 1973 October war.

Delivery of the 110 binoculars to Libya via France was possible because at that time French authorities did not classify the Startron as war equipment banned for re-export, the sources said.

He said he this could mean a meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, "probably before September" and that "my own preference would be in this country."

On Middle East peace talks, Carter said he thought he should meet with some of the area's leaders and then "decide what public proposals we might make to initiate any peace talks."

An informal buffet supper is planned for all the appointees tonight. They will meet with Carter as a group on Tuesday and Wednesday for working sessions.

The President-elect is scheduled also to discuss the financial problems of New York State and New York City with Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham Beame in a private meeting Tuesday.

CARTER, CABINET MEETING Tax Cut High On Agenda

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter is convening a series of pre-inauguration meetings of his cabinet at a secluded island plantation, with discussions of possible tax cuts and the general state of the economy expected to be high on the agenda.

Carter was scheduled to fly to St. Simon's Island near Brunswick, Ga., aboard a commercial chartered airliner today after spending a quiet Christmas with his family in Plains.

Vice President-elect Walter Mondale and most of the new cabinet members were to fly to the island estate from Washington on an Air Force jet.

Carter begins his three-day series of meetings by conferring on economic problems with Michael Blumenthal, the Bendix Corp. chairman named Treasury secretary; Thomas B. Lance, the Atlanta banker chosen as director of the Office of Management and Budget; and Charles Schultze, the economist who will be chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers.

The sessions with the cabinet members, who take over the federal government with Carter on Jan. 20, were planned as free-wheeling and informal. Carter aides said they were designed to let the President-elect and his appointees discuss policies and get to know each other.

"This is the start of his treatment of the cabinet officers as the principal staff and the main means of carrying out what he hopes to do in his administration," said Rex Granum, a Carter spokesman.

But the man Carter defeated in last month's election says Carter probably will have trouble fulfilling his campaign promises.

President Ford said in an ABC-TV interview to be aired Jan. 2: "I think he is going to find that you can't turn a switch and automatically increase employment and decrease unemployment; he can't, by the waving of a wand, eliminate a deficit, even over a period of time."

Meanwhile, Time magazine named Carter as its "Man of the Year," and in an interview, Carter told the magazine he hopes to complete an agreement with the Soviet Union on limiting strategic arms before the current arms pact expires next October.

He said he this could mean a meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, "probably before September" and that "my own preference would be in this country."

On Middle East peace talks, Carter said he thought he should meet with some of the area's leaders and then "decide what public proposals we might make to initiate any peace talks."

An informal buffet supper is planned for all the appointees tonight. They will meet with Carter as a group on Tuesday and Wednesday for working sessions.

The President-elect is scheduled also to discuss the financial problems of New York State and New York City with Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham Beame in a private meeting Tuesday.

Lance attended Sunday school with Carter at the Plains

Methodist Church to hear a sermon by Methodist Bishop William R. Cannon of Atlanta, who has been chosen to offer a prayer at Carter's inauguration on the steps of the U.S. Capitol.

Carter told the Sunday school class that his mother, "Miss Lillian" Carter, would remain hospitalized for two or three days. She was hospitalized last Wednesday, and Carter said she has been suffering from "muscular spasms" in her left leg that cause her pain when she walks.

Carter said his mother is resting.

America's New U.N. Man Sees Vietnam As 'Buffer'

By BARBARA WASHINGTON

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Andrew Young, who has been selected by President-elect Carter to be U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, says repairing American relations with Vietnam could make that country "a buffer against China" and an outlet for U.S. trade.

"We need a strong Vietnam, and President-elect Carter already has said if the Vietnamese give an accounting of those Americans missing in action, he'd see what was necessary to move on normalization of relations," Young said in an interview with The Associated Press.

The 44-year-old Georgia congressman said he believes Vietnam's status will continue to be an issue in the United Nations. The United States twice has vetoed Vietnam's application to join the world body.

Getting Communist nations "to relate to the United States instead of each other" should be the Carter administration's primary goal in foreign policy, he said. "It's important for us to continue relations with China and other Communist countries, but we must keep them looking to us."

"Vietnam could develop into an independent Communist nation like Yugoslavia and be a buffer against China."

Young said Vietnam, with its untapped oil in the Gulf of Tonkin, and Cuba, with its sugar revenues and need for American-made products, could both provide new avenues for U.S. trade.

"The only people who have the technology to drill on the ocean floor are in the United States," he said.

France Is Probing Arms Fraud Case

PARIS (AP) — French authorities are investigating a complicated international swindle by a group that allegedly sold fake American military equipment to the Libyan government for $15 million, according to official sources.

The group allegedly had another swindle in the works involving a fake delivery to Libya of American-designed 155mm and 175mm cannons worth $151 million.

No formal charges have been filed, but several French-based arms dealers and their Libyan contacts are suspected of a conspiracy to defraud Col. Moammar Khadafi's government, the sources said. They did not name any of those involved.

According to the sources, the affair began in 1974, when the group successfully circumvented American export controls, delivering to Libya 110 "Startron" night-vision binoculars manufactured by the Smith and Wesson Corp. for $7,000 each.

The Startron, which operates through magnification of light, was developed for the Vietnam war and successfully used by the Israeli army in the 1973 October war.

Delivery of the 110 binoculars to Libya via France was possible because at that time French authorities did not classify the Startron as war equipment banned for re-export, the sources said.

On Middle East peace talks, Carter said he thought he should meet with some of the area's leaders and then "decide what public proposals we might make to initiate any peace talks."

An informal buffet supper is planned for all the appointees tonight. They will meet with Carter as a group on Tuesday and Wednesday for working sessions.

The President-elect is scheduled also to discuss the financial problems of New York State and New York City with Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayor Abraham Beame in a private meeting Tuesday.

Giant NEA Now Becoming Militant Teachers' Union

By ROBERT A. DORRIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Once a slumbering giant, the National Education Association has awakened as a fiercely aggressive union with clout at both the bargaining table and in national politics.

With 1.8 million members in nearly every community across the country, the NEA emerged as a nationwide political force in the 1976 elections, putting together the money, manpower and political savvy to help elect its friends to Congress and the White House.

"We asked for their help, and they delivered," said an appreciative Hamilton Jordan, President-elect Carter's campaign director.

The NEA is headed by John Ryor, 41, a Battle Creek, Mich.,

high school math teacher. Its executive director is Terry Herndon, 37, a one-time Warren, Mich., math and science teacher.

For most of its 119 years, the NEA was regarded as a staid, tea and sandwich organization with no more clout than the PTA. But over the last few years, it has suddenly become a militant union, in everything but name, and second in size only to the Teamsters.

In 1976, it threw its weight behind a presidential candidate for the first time.

It is the nation's fastest growing labor organization, claiming an average of about 4,000 new members a week, in part the result of a no-holds-barred jurisdictional war with the AFL-CIO American Federation of Teachers headed by New York teachers leader Albert Shanker.

For the future, its ambitious leaders — the youngest on the national labor scene — seek a coalition of all 14 million workers in the public sector, rivaling in size an-power the AFL-CIO itself.

"We're sort of like a sleeping giant that's awakening. We're learning that teachers are people, too," said Jill Ireland, a Ft. Lauderdale kindergarten teacher who staffed a telephone bank last spring to urge fellow NEA members to vote for Carter in the Florida primary.

What woke them up? The same bread and butter motives that spurred union organizing drives in the private sector during the Depression years of the 1930s: jobs and wages.

The cities, caught in a financial squeeze, are cutting back on their budgets and laying off workers, including teachers, for the first time since the Depression. At the same time, school enrollments are declining, meaning fewer teacher positions. Some experts estimate that teaching jobs will decline by 250,000 to 300,000 over the next five years.

The increasing dependence of elementary, secondary and higher education on federal financing has also been a factor.

Teacher groups believe more federal aid will help protect their jobs and salaries and lead to better-quality schools as well as ease the burden of local property taxes. Their critics contend that as the aid increases, teachers and educators will gradually take control of the schools from the parents and local taxpayers.

Carter won the NEA's support after promising to push for a program that will raise the government's share of the total U.S. public education budget from 9 per cent to about 33 per cent, or about $20 billion a year.

Teachers' attitudes have also changed.

"For years," says Herndon, "teachers regarded themselves as little more than collectively employed domestic servants."

But that self-image began changing in the '50s and '60s as teaching requirements increased and they became better educated. "They don't see themselves as domestic servants any more," asserts Herndon. "They're competent professionals."

Herndon runs the NEA along with its elected president, Ryor. Both are militant. Both believe that little progress in teachers' goals and educational reform can be achieved without money, and that little money can be generated for education without political clout.

There are more than 2.3 million elementary and secondary school teachers in the country today — and they are already about 80 per cent unionized. As such, they represent a substantial voting bloc.

Although organized labor sent more delegates to the Democratic National Convention — about 600 — than at any time in recent history, the biggest single bloc of labor delegates — 135 — came from the NEA.

The teachers had only 36 delegates in 1972, when the NEA entered the political arena for the first time with an investment of $30,000 in political contributions. It increased its contributions to $250,000 in 1974 and donated $579,000 to House and Senate candidates this year.

That was only the tip of the iceberg. The NEA Political Action Committee estimates that candidates for congressional and state offices received an additional $2 million-plus through its state and local affiliates.

NEA endorsed 323 candidates in the House, of which 272 won. It endorsed 26 in the Senate, of which 19 won.

Apart from pressing for greatly expanded federal activities and appropriations in education, teacher groups, including the NEA and its rival, the AFT, expect to lobby on Capitol Hill for a separate department of education and a collective bargaining bill for state and local employees that would give them the same protection workers have had in private industry since passage of the Wagner Act in 1935.

Most state and local officials have opposed any federal law to regulate Civil Service labor relations, especially one that makes the right to strike a legally protected activity.

A recent Supreme Court decision is likely to make passage of such a law more difficult, but with their many friends in Congress, and now the White House, the NEA and other teacher groups are looking to cash in their political IOUs.

The NEA itself has 15 fulltime lobbyists at work on Capitol

Hill, the AFT has three.

The two organizations often work cooperatively on legislative matters in pursuing their goals, but that's where the cooperation stops.

After the collapse of merger talks in 1974, inter-union raids became more frequent, escalating make big gains in two other battlegrounds: California and Florida.

A proposal by Shanker to suspend bargaining for new contracts for New York's municipal employees, including teachers, for the duration of the city's fiscal crisis is being used

Florida, which also had links to the AFT. It started organizing from scratch and today, according to Herndon, now has about 30,000 members. The AFT affiliate — Florida Education Association-United — has some 30,000 members, but about 12,000 do not belong to the national organization.

In California, a new state labor law went into effect last January, touching off a heated battle between the two organizations for control of the state's 200,000 teachers.

NEA's California affiliate has so far won 44 elections covering 14,389 teachers and received uncontested recognition from 546 school districts with 96,138 teachers. However, since the organization had 150,000 members when the new law began operating, the victories were anticipated.

The AFT won six elections and received uncontested recognition from six other school districts, representing a total of 2,490 teachers. But the union contends it will be able to double its old membership of 36,000 before all major elections in the state are completed.

The big battle will come in January when 16,000 Los Angeles school teachers, currently affiliated with both organizations, vote on which group, if any, to represent them. Next to New York, they would make up the second largest teacher local in the country.

Three years ago, the NEA kicked out its state affiliate in as the NEA's main weapon.

The NEA, which fought collective bargaining and shunned strikes during its conservative years, called Shanker's proposal shocking and vowed it would never allow such a suspension if New York teachers were to oust Shanker's union and join the NEA.

Shanker had said that it is ridiculous to maintain a "bargaining-as-usual" posture when the community is in bankruptcy, and proposed instead that an agency similar to the War Labor Board be created "to take care of inequities" which arise during contract negotiations.

But the NEA regards the proposal as a sign of weakening militancy of the AFT.

Three years ago, the NEA kicked out its state affiliate in

With the majority of elementary and secondary teachers organized, the NEA has its sights set on college faculties, where it already represents about 65,000 members of a potential of 300,000. It has proposed a formal alliance with the 80,000-member American Association of University Professors.

Herndon envisions welding all federal, state and city workers into a Coalition of American Public Employees (CAPE), unaffiliated with the rest of organized labor.

Already part of the coalition are the NEA, the 700,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers, the 205,000-member American Nurses Association, and several smaller public employee groups.

"I'm persuaded that all public employees have a similar plight and they probably have a similar destiny," Herndon says. "Even though the different groups have special problems, we work within a statutory environment that's totally different from that in the private sector."

"CAPE could evolve into a bonafide public sector labor center and all that that entails — a common effort by all organizations made up of public employees that recognizes the political, economic and statutory chasm that separates them from workers in private industry."

Retrial Ends In Conviction

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit man who police say once headed a $1.5 million-a-year drug operation in the city's Cass Corridor has been convicted of selling heroin.

The U.S. District Court conviction of Kenneth Garrett, 27, came in a retrial ordered by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The jury found Garrett innocent of a second charge of selling cocaine.

Giant NEA Now Becoming Militant Teachers' Union

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Once a slumbering giant, the National Education Association has awakened as a fiercely aggressive union with clout at both the bargaining table and in national politics.

With 1.8 million members in nearly every community across the country, the NEA emerged as a nationwide political force in the 1976 elections, putting together the money, manpower and political savvy to help elect its friends to Congress and the White House.

"We asked for their help, and they delivered," said an appreciative Hamilton Jordan, President-elect Carter's campaign director.

The NEA is headed by John Ryor, 41, a Battle Creek, Mich.,

high school math teacher. Its executive director is Terry Herndon, 37, a one-time Warren, Mich., math and science teacher.

For most of its 119 years, the NEA was regarded as a staid, tea and sandwich organization with no more clout than the PTA. But over the last few years, it has suddenly become a militant union, in everything but name, and second in size only to the Teamsters.

In 1976, it threw its weight behind a presidential candidate for the first time.

It is the nation's fastest growing labor organization, claiming an average of about 4,000 new members a week, in part the result of a no-holds-barred jurisdictional war with the AFL-CIO American Federation of Teachers headed by New York teachers leader Albert Shanker.

For the future, its ambitious leaders — the youngest on the national labor scene — seek a coalition of all 14 million workers in the public sector, rivaling in size an-power the AFL-CIO itself.

"We're sort of like a sleeping giant that's awakening. We're learning that teachers are people, too," said Jill Ireland, a Ft. Lauderdale kindergarten teacher who staffed a telephone bank last spring to urge fellow NEA members to vote for Carter in the Florida primary.

What woke them up? The same bread and butter motives that spurred union organizing drives in the private sector during the Depression years of the 1930s: jobs and wages.

The cities, caught in a financial squeeze, are cutting back on their budgets and laying off workers, including teachers, for the first time since the Depression. At the same time, school enrollments are declining, meaning fewer teacher positions. Some experts estimate that teaching jobs will decline by 250,000 to 300,000 over the next five years.

The increasing dependence of elementary, secondary and higher education on federal financing has also been a factor.

Teacher groups believe more federal aid will help protect their jobs and salaries and lead to better-quality schools as well as ease the burden of local property taxes. Their critics contend that as the aid increases, teachers and educators will gradually take control of the schools from the parents and local taxpayers.

Carter won the NEA's support after promising to push for a program that will raise the government's share of the total U.S. public education budget from 9 per cent to about 33 per cent, or about $20 billion a year.

Teachers' attitudes have also changed.

"For years," says Herndon, "teachers regarded themselves as little more than collectively employed domestic servants."

But that self-image began changing in the '50s and '60s as teaching requirements increased and they became better educated. "They don't see themselves as domestic servants any more," asserts Herndon. "They're competent professionals."

Herndon runs the NEA along with its elected president, Ryor. Both are militant. Both believe that little progress in teachers' goals and educational reform can be achieved without money, and that little money can be generated for education without political clout.

There are more than 2.3 million elementary and secondary school teachers in the country today — and they are already about 80 per cent unionized. As such, they represent a substantial voting bloc.

Although organized labor sent more delegates to the Democratic National Convention — about 600 — than at any time in recent history, the biggest single bloc of labor delegates — 135 — came from the NEA.

The teachers had only 36 delegates in 1972, when the NEA entered the political arena for the first time with an investment of $30,000 in political contributions. It increased its contributions to $250,000 in 1974 and donated $579,000 to House and Senate candidates this year.

That was only the tip of the iceberg. The NEA Political Action Committee estimates that candidates for congressional and state offices received an additional $2 million-plus through its state and local affiliates.

NEA endorsed 323 candidates

in the House, of which 272 won. It endorsed 26 in the Senate, of which 19 won.

Apart from pressing for greatly expanded federal activities and appropriations in education, teacher groups, including the NEA and its rival, the AFT, expect to lobby on Capitol Hill for a separate department of education and a collective bargaining bill for state and local employees that would give them the same protection workers have had in private industry since passage of the Wagner Act in 1935.

Most state and local officials have opposed any federal law to regulate Civil Service labor relations, especially one that makes the right to strike a legally protected activity.

A recent Supreme Court decision is likely to make passage of such a law more difficult, but with their many friends in Congress, and now the White House, the NEA and other teacher groups are looking to cash in their political IOUs.

The NEA itself has 15 fulltime lobbyists at work on Capitol

Hill; the AFT has three.

The two organizations often work cooperatively on legislative matters in pursuing their goals, but that's where the cooperation stops.

After the collapse of merger talks in 1974, inter-union raids became more frequent, escalating make big gains in two other battlegrounds: California and Florida.

A proposal by Shanker to suspend bargaining for new contracts for New York's municipal employees, including teachers, for the duration of the city's fiscal crisis is being used

Florida, which also had links to the AFT. It started organizing from scratch and today, according to Herndon, now has about 30,000 members. The AFT affiliate — Florida Education Association-United — has some 30,000 members, but about 12,000 do not belong to the national organization.

In California, a new state labor law went into effect last January, touching off a heated battle between the two organizations for control of the state's 200,000 teachers.

NEA's California affiliate has so far won 44 elections covering 14,389 teachers and received uncontested recognition from 546 school districts with 96,139 teachers. However, since the organization had 150,000 members when the new law began operating, the victories were anticipated.

The AFT won six elections and received uncontested recognition from six other school districts, representing a total of 2,490 teachers. But the union contends it will be able to double its old membership of 36,000 before all major elections in the state are completed.

The big battle will come in January when 16,000 Los Angeles school teachers, currently affiliated with both organizations, vote on which group, if any, to represent them. Next to New York, they would make up the second largest teacher local in the country.

With the majority of elementary and secondary teachers organized, the NEA has its sights set on college faculties, where it already represents about 65,000 members of a potential of 300,000. It has proposed a formal alliance with the 80,000-member American Association of University Professors.

Herndon envisions welding all federal, state and city workers into a Coalition of American Public Employees (CAPE), unaffiliated with the rest of organized labor.

Already part of the coalition are the NEA, the 700,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers, the 205,000-member American Nurses Association, and several smaller public employee groups.

"I'm persuaded that all public employees have a similar plight and they probably have a similar destiny," Herndon says. "Even though the different groups have special problems, we work within a statutory environment that's totally different from that in the private sector."

"CAPE could evolve into a bonafide public sector labor center and all that entails — a common effort by all organizations made up of public employees that recognizes the political, economic and statutory chasm that separates them from workers in private industry."

Pennsylvania Derailment Hurts 36

PROBING RUINS: Firemen check through ruins of two-story wooden old-age home near the Newfoundland city of St. John's Sunday. Police said at least 20 people were killed when fire raged through the building early in the morning. (AP Wirephoto)

DOWNINGTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The derailment of a Philadelphia-to-Chicago train, added to Amtrak's schedule to deal with the holiday rush, sent 36 travelers to hospitals.

Four of the injured were hospitalized overnight. Spokesmen at Coatesville General Hospital and Chester County Hospital said none of the injuries was serious.

The five-car train, a special section of the Broadway Limited, derailed about 7:30 p.m. Sunday, said Lois Morasco, an Amtrak spokeswoman.

The injured were taken to hospitals by ambulance, and other passengers were taken to Downingtown Senior High School.

Amtrak estimated that there were about 200 people aboard, and said that about 95 were bused to Harrisburg, where they continued their trip by train. Four people were lodged overnight in a Chester County motel and about 100 people returned to homes in the Philadelphia area, Miss Morasco said.

The derailment pulled down overhead power lines, severing rail connections between Philadelphia and Harrisburg. It also knocked out electricity in the western end of Downing-town.

Power was restored within 2 1/2 hours in Downingtown, and train service was back to normal for this morning.

The derailment was the second delay for Amtrak travelers on the holiday weekend. All passenger service to and from the southeastern United States was delayed for about eight hours Friday when a freight train derailed and blocked the only bridge across the Potomac River near Washington, D.C.

Police To Sift Canadian Blaze Where 20 Died

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland (AP) — Police were to search the ruins of a nursing home again today for the bodies of more victims in a fire that killed at least 20 persons, including a 105-year-old woman and a 16-year-old boy.

Twenty bodies were recovered Sunday afternoon. A Royal Canadian Mounted Police spokesman said another search was scheduled for today, "just to be certain" there are no others.

Many of those killed were elderly women, some bedridden. The boy was among several young persons visiting relatives at the home.

After the fire broke out about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, Chafe's Rest Home was quickly engulfed in flames fanned by strong winds.

Firemen, hampered by sub-zero weather, chipped through six inches of ice on a pond to get water to fight the blaze, officials said. There were no fire hydrants in the rural area about six miles south of St. John's, the provincial capital of Newfoundland.

John Lee, a resident of the nearby farming village of Goulds, said the building collapsed an hour after the fire broke out and "there was no sound or sign of life."

Assistant Chief Leroy Soper of the St. John's Fire Department said all the elderly residents staying at the home at the time of the fire were killed. But Soper said he did not know how many of the 25 to 30 permanent residents were away visiting relatives for Christmas.

Lewis Dunphy, who operated the home, and two members of his family escaped unhurt, police said.

The fire was one of the worst such disasters in recent Canadian history. A fire in a home for the elderly killed 40 persons in the Quebec town of Notre Dame du Lac in 1969. Thirty-seven persons died in 1972 when a fire bomb was thrown into a cafe in Montreal.

ONLY TIME CAN BRING YOU BACK There's No Cure For Hangover

By WARREN E. LEARY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For many the New Year begins like this:

Blood-shot, watery eyes. Stomachs agitating like overloaded washing machines. Thumping heads that seem to bounce from ceiling to wall to floor. The body says: "You shouldn't have done this to me" and the muddled mind belatedly agrees.

At this point, minds still dulled by too much alcohol on New Year's Eve begin reaching for hangover "cures." Any cure — the more bizarre the better — begins taking on new credibility when seen through an alcoholic haze.

Some favorites: —Drink the "hair of the dog that bit you," meaning have another drink the next morning to help your body in its abrupt detoxification of alcohol. —Take two raw eggs, a dash of hot sauce and teaspoon of horseradish mixed in a glass of warm beer.

—Zake aspirin the next day and stuff yourself with all the dry toast you can cram down your throat. The list is endless. The surest way to start a barroom discussion — if not a brawl — is to tout your hangover cure as the best. Do any of these "cure" hangovers? The experts say no —

All Greek To Them

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — In the battle of no-smoking signs, the trustees of Elko General Hospital say the issues are all Greek. So is their sign. A 1975 state law requires no-smoking signs in places like the hospital in this small northeastern Nevada town. But the trustees call that an infringement of their freedoms. When officials demanded compliance, the trustees reluctantly posted a sign — in Hebrew, which nobody in Elko can read. But earlier this month someone stole the sign. Now, undaunted, the trustees have ordered another sign put up. The new one is written in Greek. It is also tiny and it is hidden behind a large plant. "The board felt it was a ridiculous law," says hospital administrator John Felker. "So we took ridiculous action."

Serving The Nation

GOES TO COLORADO

Airman Douglas Cerecky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley W. Cerecky, 7825 Meadowbrook road, Benton Harbor, has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

Airman Cerecky

During the six weeks training at Lackland AFB, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Cerecky will now receive specialized training in the munitions and weapons maintenance field.

COMPLETES NAVY TRAINING

Navy Seaman Recruit Steve E. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Miller, 4046 Red Arrow highway, Benton Harbor, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields. He joined the Navy in February 1976.

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — In the battle of no-smoking signs, the trustees of Elko General Hospital say the issues are all Greek. So is their sign. A 1975 state law requires nonsmoking signs in places like the hospital in this small northeastern Nevada town. But the trustees call that an infringement of their freedoms. "The board felt it was a ridiculous law," says hospital administrator John Felker. "So we took ridiculous action."

emphatically.

"The only thing that will cure a hangover is time," said Thomas Berquist of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

"All the coffee, 'hair of the dog,' aspirin, food and other things you can take are superficial things that may or may not make you feel better," Berquist said. "At best you're talking about relieving some symptoms, but the hangover goes on until the body metabolizes and kicks the alcohol out of the system."

Another NIAAA spokesman, Richard Bast, said occasionally getting drunk "gives your body quite a jolt, but it will repair itself — in time."

Alcohol constricts blood vessels, decreases oxygen to the brain, acts as a depressant on the central nervous system, alters perception and slows reflexes, he said.

"People start drinking coffee after getting drunk but coffee doesn't sober you up," Berquist said. "It makes you an alert drunk."

To lessen the impact of drinking, the experts suggest drinkers pace themselves and try not to drink in excess. An average 180-pound man can handle one cocktail an hour and not get drunk if he has eaten first and stays active — moving around or dancing, they said.

"If you are going to drink, coat the stomach with some food like milk, cheese or fish — something that mixes with alcohol in the stomach and keeps it from going into the blood so fast," Bast said. "Alcohol is an irritant and this also helps protect the stomach."

Shortage Of New CB Radios Expected

By JOHN D. MCCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is giving us 17 new Citizens Band channels on New Year's Day, but the CB industry doubts it can provide enough new radios immediately for all who want them.

Last July, the Federal Communications Commission approved expansion of the current 23-channel CB band to 40 channels, effective Jan. 1.

Since then, the industry has been struggling to meet what it figures will be a heavy demand for the new 40-channel sets. Most expect to come up short for some months.

"I think there will be an initial shortage based on several things," says John Sodolski, vice president of the Electronic Industries Association, a trade group.

"One, the FCC will not allow shipping the new 40-channel sets until Jan. 1, and then it will take some days to get them from warehouses to retail outlets.

"Also, the FCC has required new and tighter (anti-interference) standards on these sets and not every manufacturer is qualifying every set in his line. The result is a somewhat narrower selection, compared with the number of 23-channel sets still on the market.

The FCC is committed to complete by Jan. 1 its tests of the more than 400 models submitted by its Nov. 1 deadline. It expects to have approved more than 200 models by year's end.

Manufacturers with FCC approvals of their 40-channel models have geared up their production lines and, in the words of a spokesman for one manufacturer, "We're going like crazy.... We're producing them as fast as we can."

Others, still waiting for FCC approval, have taken a chance and begun production on the assumption they will get the okay in time.

Although Sodolski and other industry spokesmen say no one can forecast with certainty the demand for the new sets, they predict a shortage for at least three months while industry increases its supply.

The 40-channel sets will be priced 15 to 20 per cent over comparable 23-channel models. Some manufacturers have been selling new 23-channel sets meeting the tighter anti-interference specifications with the promise to remanufacture them for a fee after Jan. 1 to permit use of all 40 channels.

With the exception of the additional 17 channels and the tighter specifications, little else is expected to change on the CB band after the first of the year.

Channel 9 will continue to be used only for emergency and motorist-aid uses, and no serious effort has been made to move the truckers-travelers channel from Channel 19.

But the FCC and the CB industry expect the additional channels to relieve some of the congestion now experienced by CBers. A spokesman for one manufacturer said the new 40-channel models "are expected to go over well, particularly in metropolitan areas where the current 23 channels are especially crowded."

CB channels now range between 26.965 and 27.235 megahertz. The new channels will be located on now-unused space between 27.235 and 27.405 megahertz. Both AM and single-sideband transmissions will be permitted on both the new and the old channels.

The FCC has prohibited adding equipment to 23-channel sets that would permit use of the new channels as part of its attempt to phase out the older sets lacking the tighter anti-interference specifications and to prevent off-frequency transmissions and interference with other channels and radio and television broadcasts.

But some CB hobbyists are adding such equipment as variable frequency oscillators, known as sliders, to gain early access in the new channels.

Such use, the FCC says, is illegal and can be detected even if the sliders are exactly on frequency because they emit a wider bandwidth than FCC-approved CB sets. Violators are subject to confiscation of their equipment, fines and loss of licenses.

"WE WANT TO SETTLE A BET. DO YOU HAPPEN TO HAVE A PRINT OF 'SEPTEMBER MORN' HANGING SOMEWHERE IN YOUR HOUSE?"

Weekend Athletes Offered Some Tips On Easing Aches

CHICAGO (AP) — It usually happens on Mondays. A lot of weekend athletes begin thinking it's easier to live comfortably out of shape than trying to get into it.

It's a feeling you've been thrown into an automatic clothes dryer, and you begin wondering if that once-a-week shot at bowling, tennis or golf was worth it.

Aches and pains usually come on strong during the hunting season, says Dr. Allan N. Ryan of the University of Wisconsin, editor of Sportsmedicine.

"A guy walks seven or eight miles and he hasn't even walked a mile in six months," Ryan says. "What happens is that you are using muscles not usually used and it hurts. The swelling is due to strain the muscle isn't accustomed to, and there is not much you can do after it happens."

Ryan and Dr. David Bachman, who is team physician for the Chicago Bulls pro basketball team and director of the Northwestern School of Sports Medicine, offer this advice of precaution worth a pound of cure:

Before the season of hunting, bowling, racquetball, etc., begins, embark on a simple program of bending and stretching muscles. The exercises are the old standbys — pushups, situps, pullups, running-in-place, touching the toes. Swimming or cycling, slowly at first, also are fine conditioners for what's ahead.

Bowlers should run in place and lift their knees high to add flexibility to the hips. Tennis players should stretch leg muscles by standing an arm's length away from a wall then doing pushaways against it. Bowlers the toes is fine for the hamstrings (back of thighs). For once-a-weekers who won't take this advice, anyhow, here are some tips:

Bruises — Ice, nothing but ice. Put ice on the injury, wrap it up and prop it up. Ice also can help prevent blisters if it is rubbed on the "hot spots" as soon as you remove your shoes and socks.

Sore muscles — Rest is about the only thing that can cure them. Heat rubs don't go deep enough to help the muscle very much. The heat may take your mind off the sore muscle for a while, however.

Stiff joints (tennis elbow) — Stretching the joint, getting warmed up before play is important. Bachman also recommends running hot water over the stiff elbow or ankle before playing.

Blisters — Tennis and racquetball players would do well to wear gloves. For the feet, tight-fitting socks and right-fitting shoes will help prevent blisters. Ryan recommends a thumb's width between the big toe and the end of the shoe. Some petroleum jelly on the foot also helps.

The secret is to calous your hands or feet through continuous use. Then keep the calouses shaved down with a little sandpaper so they don't get too large and crack.

There's no reason that part of the trouble with exercising, like with drinking, should be the morning after, the doctors counsel.

Shortage Of New CB Radios Expected

By JOHN D. MCCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is giving us 17 new Citizens Band channels on New Year's Day, but the CB industry doubts it can provide enough new radios immediately for all who want them.

Last July, the Federal Communications Commission approved expansion of the current 23-channel CB band to 40 channels, effective Jan. 1.

Since then, the industry has been struggling to meet what it figures will be a heavy demand for the new 40-channel sets. Most expect to come up short for some months.

"I think there will be an initial shortage based on several things," says John Sodolski, vice president of the Electronic Industries Association, a trade group.

"One, the FCC will not allow shipping the new 40-channel sets until Jan. 1, and then it will take some days to get them from warehouses to retail outlets.

"Also, the FCC has required new and tighter (anti-interference) standards on these sets and not every manufacturer is qualifying every set in his line. The result is a somewhat narrower selection, compared with the number of 23-channel sets still on the market.

The FCC is committed to complete by Jan. 1 its tests of the more than 400 models submitted by its Nov. 1 deadline. It expects to have approved more than 200 models by year's end.

Manufacturers with FCC approvals of their 40-channel models have geared up their production lines and, in the words of a spokesman for one manufacturer, "We're going like crazy.... We're producing them as fast as we can."

They 'Had A Fine Time' On Ice-Bound Ship Off SJ

When you look back on the cold days of 1927, today is nothing compared to that winter when the Illinois, a year-around ship, got stuck in the ice just off the St. Joe harbor.

While people ashore drew their chairs closer to the fire those raw evenings to eat apples and popcorn and read, (they used to read in pre-television days), the sailor on the lake fought a battle with ice, fog and blizzards. That year the Illinois was stuck in ice for days off St. Joseph harbor.

Oldsters of the town woke up one morning and saw a ship stuck in the ice a good mile off the piers and wondered what in tarnation she was out on the lake for.

The ship was one of the charter vessels that picked up cargo at any port from Michigan City to the Straits. She was a regular tramp, along with her sister ship, the Missouri. The almost identical sister ships — 240 feet overall with one stack and two masts — had extra heavy hulls for year-around service. They were both built at the South Chicago shipyard. The Illinois came out in 1900 and the Missouri in 1904. They were very popular, almost always hauling capacity loads.

They operated from Chicago to Ludington, Manistee, Traverse City, Charlevoix and Mackinac. If they loaded cargo at Milwaukee they smelled like a beauty parlor, carrying tons of Palmolive soap from the factory there. Then, in another hold up forward, chocolate candy gave off the fragrance of a candy factory.

When your ship neared Milwaukee harbor you frequently could smell soap and candy all the way out into the lake, coming from two factories that are gone and forgotten now. Then there was the Plankinton packing plant alongside of the harbor with cheese plants at the entrance to the harbor. And if cheese was brought aboard that was really something.

When stuck in ice out in the lake sailors had plenty to eat even if they had to break into the cargo.

Ashore that winter folks enjoyed sleigh rides and skating on the canal and Paw Paw river. Ice cutting was also going on. Aboard ship, some passengers really made the best of the situation. Most of the passengers passed time at bridge tables over coffee (five cents for all you wanted) or just talking. Some women danced with crew members. The second cook aboard the ship said there were few problems in feeding the passengers and crew.

"We've still got some food left in the galley and could have stayed out a while longer," he said. "In a way we really kind of hated to see them (passengers) go."

But while stuck off the harbor, they drifted with the ice and enjoyed every day. Below, the chief engineer spent most of the time running the engines at full speed forward and backward, trying to break her loose. "The men on the ship did everything they could and we finally made it." They even had some of the men passengers giving a hand shoveling coal into the boilers. Some women even said, "We really had a fine time. I hate to go home to my own cooking and housework." When the Illinois finally freed herself and moved into the harbor, folks hurried to see what happened to the ship. To the accompaniment of automobile horns, the ship's whistle and cheering onlookers, the ship steamed into the harbor under her own power.

Nearly all the passengers said the four days of being stranded were "really kind of fun," and had nothing but compliments for the crew of the old lady.

While laying at the dock in Muskegon with the Missouri

were damaged beyond repair.

The Illinois was taken later to South Chicago where it was stripped, and then taken with ten by people who rode them in those happy days. Just like the old railroad steam engine, so went the steamboat of long ago, out by the automobile, bus and plane.

Many honeymooners rode those old ships, and many children who rode them are grown and think of those days. There's still 85,000 square miles of open Lake Michigan but nary a passenger ship in these vast waters.

Thus an era had ended to the elderly who patronized those ships and crews of long ago. They still talk about those days. It is with regret we miss those days.

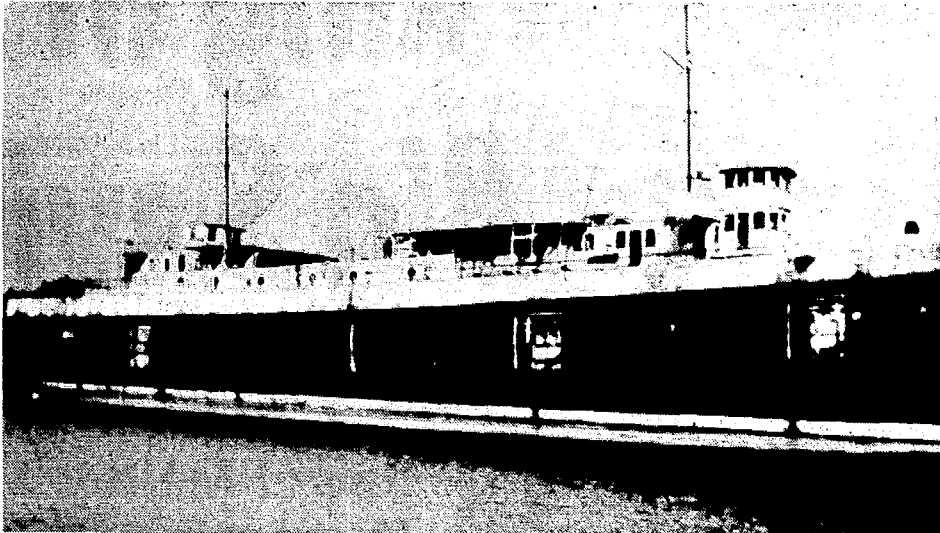

Another Vargo Saga

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Vargo, author of this tale from the Great Lakes, is a former sailor and a historian of the lakes and their ships. Retired ashore, he lives at 1499 Jennings, Benton Harbor. In this article he tells of a cold winter when one ship got locked in the ice just off the St. Joseph harbor.

before World War II, both ships caught on fire. They were to have gone to the coast when World War II started, but they

the Missouri to be scrapped at a shipyard in Canada. This was in 1948.

They are gone but not forgot-

SISTER SHIP: The Missouri, virtual twin to Illinois, is seen after fire gutted both ships as they laid at dock in Muskegon before World War II. Two firemen lost their lives fighting fire. The Missouri and Illinois both eventually went to the scrapping yard in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1948.

BY BERRIEN HEALTH DEPARTMENT Ailing Offered Home Care

The Berrien county health department is offering skilled health care services to patients at home through its Home Health Services program, according to Mike Wood, health educator at the county health department.

Wood said registered nurses, home health aides and speech, occupational and physical therapists are available to perform services at a patient's home.

The program is non-profit, according to Wood, and the county health department charges $18 per visit for the service.

Wood said patients can pay for the service through medicare, Medicaid, veterans benefits or private health insurance. He noted supervised home care can reduce length of stays in hospitals and nursing homes.

Among services available,

according to Wood, are diabetic teaching, colostomy care, catheter care, dressing changes, diet teaching, medical equipment set-up and teaching, and preparation of the home and family members for bed-ridden patients. Also available are speech therapy, physical therapy and occupational therapy, Wood said.

Wood said the county health department works with local hospitals on discharge planning to provide for continuity of care. Referrals are made and visits planned by the attending physician in conjunction with the public health nurses, he said. A plan for care is then drawn up and periodically reviewed during the patient's recovery period, he said.

If the uninsured person cannot afford the regular fee of $18 per visit, a sliding fee based on the patient's ability to pay is charged, Wood said. Services are never denied because of inability to pay, he said.

Wood said referrals can be made by calling the county health department in Benton Harbor or in Niles and asking for the Home Health Services program. Arrangements will be made to consult the person's physician to determine home care needs, he said.

Shooting Suspect Arrested In Barn

DECATUR — A seemingly routine report of an abandoned pick-up truck led to the arrest Sunday of a man wanted by South Bend, Ind. authorities for questioning in connection with the shooting deaths of his stepmother and father last week.

State police at Paw Paw said Edward LeRoy Beghan, 31, South Bend, was taken into custody in an abandoned barn about five miles west of here by Tpr. John McKenzie at 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

Police said the arrest came after they had received a call earlier from Charles Brown, maintenance supervisor at the state highway department's Dowagiac garage, about a pick-up truck which was blocking snowplowing operations on M-51 near Knickerbocker lake. Brown told troopers the truck had been there for several days.

Mckenzie said he ran a computer check on the vehicle and found that the owner, Beghan, was wanted by police in connection with the shootings of his father and stepmother.

The trooper said he searched a barn about 50 yards from the truck, and found Beghan inside in a hay loft. Tpr. George Crouse said Beghan surrendered without a struggle and that a 12-gauge shotgun was found in the barn.

Sgt. Richard Senif of the St. Joseph county, Ind. sheriff's department indicated last night that charges would be filed today against Beghan in connection with the deaths of his stepmother, Ethel May Beghan, 58, and his father, Adrain C. Beghan, 61, with whom he lived in South Bend.

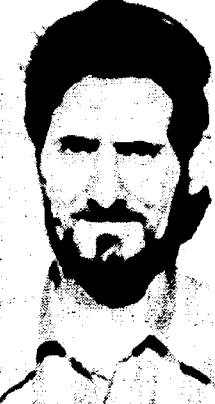

Senif said the bodies of the couple were discovered by Mrs. Beghan's son, Charles Lewis, about 9:30 p.m. on Dec. 20 at their home. Senif said Lewis had gone to the home after he had been unable to contact them.

Senif said the couple were believed to have been killed by shotgun blasts on the morning of Dec. 19.

Senif questioned Beghan last night at the Van Buren county jail, where he is being held pending the filing of charges. The officer said the motive for the slayings had not yet been determined.

Beghan, according to Senif, had been in the barn since last Tuesday.

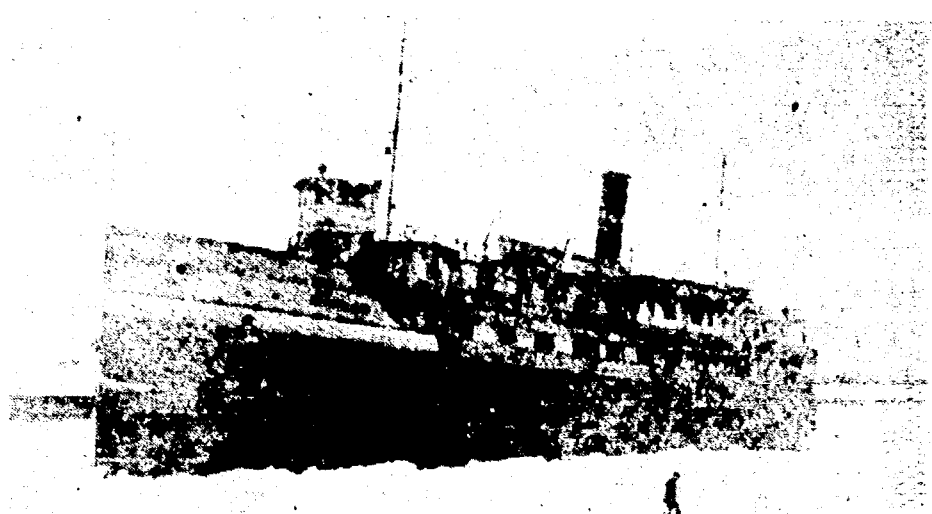

Police said they had determined no reason why Beghan was in the Decatur area

Cass Woman Dies In Head-On Crash

A Cass county woman was among the 11 people killed in Michigan traffic accidents during the long Christmas weekend, according to Associated Press.

Mrs. Jennie Nella Guis, 74, Bear Lake road, Jones, was fatally injured in a two-car crash Sunday afternoon, on M-60, about two miles west of Three Rivers in St. Joseph county.

There were no other reported traffic deaths in Berrien, Allegan, Cass or Van Buren counties during the long holiday period which began at 6 p.m. Thursday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The St. Joseph county sheriff's department told this newspaper Mrs. Guis was a passenger in a car that skidded on slippery roads and hit an oncoming car head-on in the opposite traffic lane. The car in which Mrs. Guis was riding was driven by Linda Griffith, 17, Chicago, deputies.

Driver of the second car involved was identified as Ross Young, 68, Plainwell. He and Miss Griffith were treated and released from Three Rivers hospital.

A passenger in the Young auto, Bernice Cox, 65, Minden, remains in guarded condition today at the hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Associated Press reported state police identified the other Christmas weekend traffic victims as:

Betty Bieri, 45, of Saginaw, was struck by a car Thursday night on a road in Saginaw County's James Township.

Charles J. Beaudrie, 51, of Trenton, was killed Friday when he was hit by a car at Outer Drive and Interstate 75 in Melvindale.

William F. Milarch, 19, of Arcadia, died when his snowmobile struck a parked vehicle along Michigan 22 Thursday night.

Edward J. Oesterle, 25, of Pinckney, killed Thursday night when his car ran off a Livingston County road and hit a tree.

Phillip E. Klingaman, 33, and Sheryl L. Klingaman, 26, both of Tekonsha, killed in a two-car head-on collision Friday at the intersection of old U.S. 27 and Interstate 90 in Calhoun County.

William Morrell, 53, of Garden City, died Saturday when the car he was riding in collided with another vehicle in Garden City.

Gary W. Church, 28, of St. Helen, killed Sunday in a head-on collision in Ogemaw County.

Fredrick Schindler, 25, of Grand Rapids, died Friday in a two-car accident at a Grand Rapids intersection.

Louise Easterline, 74, of Belleville, killed Sunday in a three-car, head-on collision on U.S. 12 in Lenawee County.

Bloom'dale Students Will Get TB Tests

BLOOMINGDALE — TB tests for students at the Bloomingdale high school and middle school will be conducted Monday, Jan. 10. Permission is required from parents, according to Dr. Stanley Bushouse, high school principal, and forms will be sent home prior to the test day. The tests are being conducted at schools throughout Van Buren county by the county health department. The program was started because of an increase in active tuberculosis cases in the county this year.

Spawr Leaving State Police

State Police Det. Sgt. Charles E. Spawr of the Jackson post will retire Jan. 7 after nearly 26 years with the department, Col. George Halverson announced. Spawr, 53, is a Benton Harbor native and the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. C.V. Spawr. He is a brother of Clarence Spawr, retired state police lieutenant.

Spawr enlisted in the state police in February, 1951, and served at the Manistiquette post before transfer to Paw Paw in 1954. He was promoted to detective in 1969 and transferred to Jackson, and the rank in 1971 was changed to detective sergeant.

Halverson, department director, said Spawr earned two honorable mention citations during his career.

Spawr was graduated from Benton Harbor high school and attended Western Michigan university and Olivet college. He joined the Navy in 1942 and served 33 months.

He and his wife, Margaret, have a son and daughter.

Crackup Hurts 4 In Bangor Twp.

SOUTH HAVEN — Four people were injured yesterday in a two-car collision about 12:30 p.m. in Bangor township.

One of the four, Mrs. Cathy Hampton, 22, route 2, Covert, was listed in fairly good condition at the hospital this morning. The other three people were treated and released yesterday. They were identified as Sherry Parrish, 28, route 5, South Haven, the driver of one of the cars; and two passengers in the other car, Margaret Yates, 23, of 501 Green street, South Haven, and Danny Hampton, 24, route 2, Covert.

State police at South Haven said the crash occurred at the intersection of 34th avenue and 66th street when a car driven

Gary Yates, 21, collided with the Parrish vehicle.

No tickets were issued and the accident remains under investigation.

Neither Yates nor Mrs. Parrish's four-year-old daughter, Stacy, who was riding with her, were reported injured.

Volunteers Needed For Coloma Center

COLOMA — A request for volunteers to operate the North Berrien County S.O.S. (Share Our Service) office here in January and February has been issued by Mrs. Norman (Barbara) Carrothers, organization executive director. Mrs. Carrothers said the volunteers are needed to operate the center during its regular 1 to 4 p.m. hours Monday through Friday each week. People interested should contact Mrs. Carrothers at the center at 134 North Church street.

They 'Had A Fine Time' On Ice-Bound Ship Off SJ

When you look back on the cold days of 1927, today is nothing compared to that winter when the Illinois, a year-around ship, got stuck in the ice just off the St. Joe harbor.

While people ashore drew their chairs closer to the fire those raw evenings to eat apples and popcorn and read, (they used to read in pre-television days), the sailor on the lake fought a battle with ice, fog and blizzards. That year the Illinois was stuck in ice for days off St. Joseph harbor.

Oldsters of the town woke up one morning and saw a ship stuck in the ice a good mile off the piers and wondered what in tarnation she was out on the lake for.

The ship was one of the charter vessels that picked up cargo at any port from Michigan City to the Straits. She was a regular tramp, along with her sister ship, the Missouri. The almost identical sister ships — 240 feet overall with one stack and two masts — had extra heavy hulls for year-around service. They were both built at the South Chicago shipyard. The Illinois came out in 1899 and the Missouri in 1904. They were very popular, almost always hauling capacity loads.

They operated from Chicago to Ludington, Manistee, Traverse City, Charlevoix and Mackinac. If they loaded cargo at Milwaukee they smelled like a beauty parlor, carrying tons of Palmolive soap from the factory there. Then, in another hold up forward, chocolate candy gave off the fragrance of a candy factory.

When your ship neared Milwaukee harbor you frequently could smell soap and candy all the way out into the lake, coming from two factories that are gone and forgotten now. Then there was the Plankinton packing plant alongside of the harbor with cheese plants at the entrance to the harbor. And if cheese was brought aboard that was really something.

When stuck in ice out in the lake sailors had plenty to eat even if they had to break into the cargo.

Ashore that winter folks enjoyed sleigh rides and skating on the canal and Paw Paw river. Ice cutting was also going on.

Aboard ship, some passengers really made the best of the situation. Most of the passengers passed time at bridge tables over coffee (five cents for all you wanted) or just talking. Some women danced with crew members. The second cook aboard the ship said there were few problems in feeding the passengers and crew.

"We've still got some food left in the galley and could have stayed out a while longer," he said. "In a way we really kind of hated to see them (passengers) go."

But while stuck off the harbor, they drifted with the ice and enjoyed every day. Below, the chief engineer spent most of the time running the engines at full speed forward and backward, trying to break her loose. "The men on the ship did everything they could and we finally made it." They even had some of the men passengers giving a hand shoveling coal into the boilers. Some women even said, "We really had a fine time. I hate to go home to my own cooking and housework." When the Illinois finally freed herself and moved into the harbor, folks hurried to see what happened to the ship. To the accompaniment of automobile horns, the ship's whistle and cheering onlookers, the ship steamed into the harbor under her own power.

Nearly all the passengers said the four days of being stranded were "really kind of fun," and had nothing but compliments for the crew of the old lady.

While laying at the dock in Muskegon with the Missouri

were damaged beyond repair.

The Illinois was taken later to South Chicago where it was stripped, and then taken with ten by people who rode them in those happy days. Just like the old railroad steam engine, so went the steamboat of long ago, out by the automobile, bus and plane.

Many honeymooners rode those old ships, and many children who rode them are grown and think of those days. There's still 95,000 square miles of open Lake Michigan but nary a passenger ship in these vast waters.

Thus an era had ended to the elderly who patronized those ships and crews of long ago. They still talk about those days. It is with regret we miss those days.

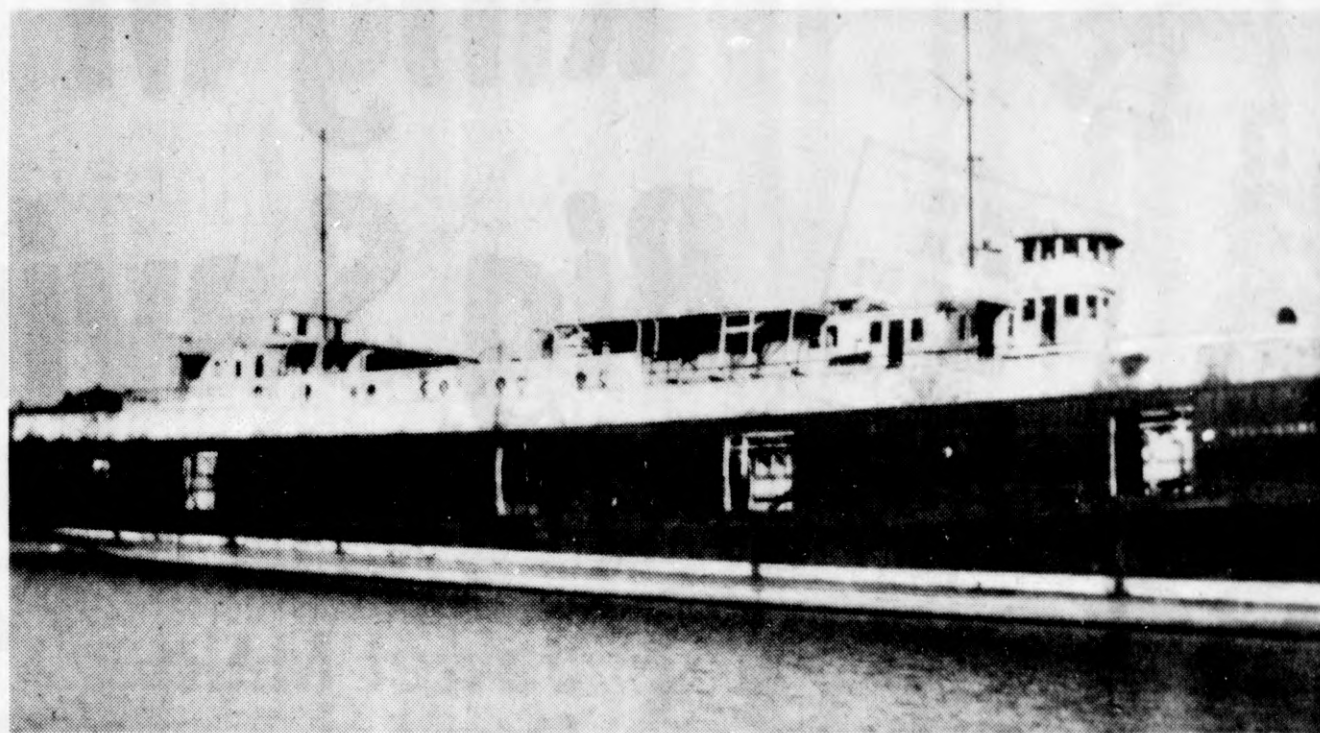

Another Vargo Saga

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Vargo, author of this tale from the Great Lakes, is a former sailor and a historian of the lakes and their ships. Retired ashore, he lives at 1499 Jennings, Benton Harbor. In this article he tells of a cold winter when one ship got locked in the ice just off the St. Joseph harbor.

before World War II, both ships caught on fire. They were to have gone to the coast when World War II started, but they

the Missouri to be scrapped at a shipyard in Canada. This was in 1948.

They are gone but not forgot-

SISTER SHIP: The Missouri, virtual twin to Illinois, is seen after fire gutted both ships as they laid at dock in Muskegon before World War II. Two firemen lost their lives fighting fire. The Missouri and Illinois both eventually went to the scrapping yard in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1948.

BY BERRIEN HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Ailing Offered Home Care

The Berrien county health department is offering skilled health care services to patients at home through its Home Health Services program, according to Mike Wood, health educator at the county health department.

Wood said registered nurses, home health aides and speech, occupational and physical therapists are available to perform services at a patient's home.

The program is non-profit, according to Wood, and the county health department charges $18 per visit for the service.

Wood said patients can pay for the service through medicare, Medicaid, veterans benefits or private health insurance. He noted supervised home care can reduce length of stays in hospitals and nursing homes.

Among services available,

according to Wood, are diabetic teaching, colostomy care, catheter care, dressing changes, diet teaching, medical equipment set-up and teaching, and preparation of the home and family members for bed-ridden patients. Also available are speech therapy, physical therapy and occupational therapy, Wood said.

Wood said the county health department works with local hospitals on discharge planning to provide for continuity of care. Referrals are made and visits planned by the attending physician in conjunction with the public health nurses, he said. A plan for care is then drawn up and periodically reviewed during the patient's recovery period, he said.

If the uninsured person cannot afford the regular fee of $18 per visit, a sliding fee based on the patient's ability to pay is charged, Wood said. Services are never denied because of inability to pay, he said.

Wood said referrals can be made by calling the county health department in Benton Harbor or in Niles and asking for the Home Health Services program. Arrangements will be made to consult the person's physician to determine home care needs, he said.

Shooting Suspect Arrested In Barn

DECATUR — A seemingly routine report of an abandoned pickup truck led to the arrest Sunday of a man wanted by South Bend, Ind. authorities for questioning in connection with the shooting deaths of his stepmother and father last week.

State police at Paw Paw said Edward LeRoy Beghan, 31, South Bend, was taken into custody in an abandoned barn about five miles west of here by Tpr. John McKenzie at 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

Police said the arrest came after they had received a call earlier from Charles Brown, maintenance supervisor at the state highway department's Dowagiac garage, about a pickup truck which was blocking snowplowing operations on M-51 near Knickerbocker lake. Brown told troopers the truck had been there for several days.

Mckenzie said he ran a computer check on the vehicle and found that the owner, Beghan, was wanted by police in connection with the shootings of his father and stepmother.

The trooper said he searched a barn about 50 yards from the truck, and found Beghan inside in a hay loft. Tpr. George Crouse said Beghan surrendered without a struggle and that a 12-gauge shotgun was found in the barn.

Sgt. Richard Senif of the St. Joseph county, Ind. sheriff's department indicated last night that charges would be filed today against Beghan in connection with the deaths of his stepmother, Ethel May Beghan, 58, and his father, Adrain C. Beghan, 61, with whom he lived in South Bend.

Senif said the bodies of the couple were discovered by Mrs. Beghan's son, Charles Lewis, about 9:30 p.m. on Dec. 20 at their home. Senif said Lewis had gone to the home after he had been unable to contact them.

Senif said the couple were believed to have been killed by shotgun blasts on the morning of Dec. 19.

Senif questioned Beghan last night at the Van Buren county jail, where he is being held pending the filing of charges. The officer said the motive for the slayings had not yet been determined.

Beghan, according to Senif, had been in the barn since last Tuesday.

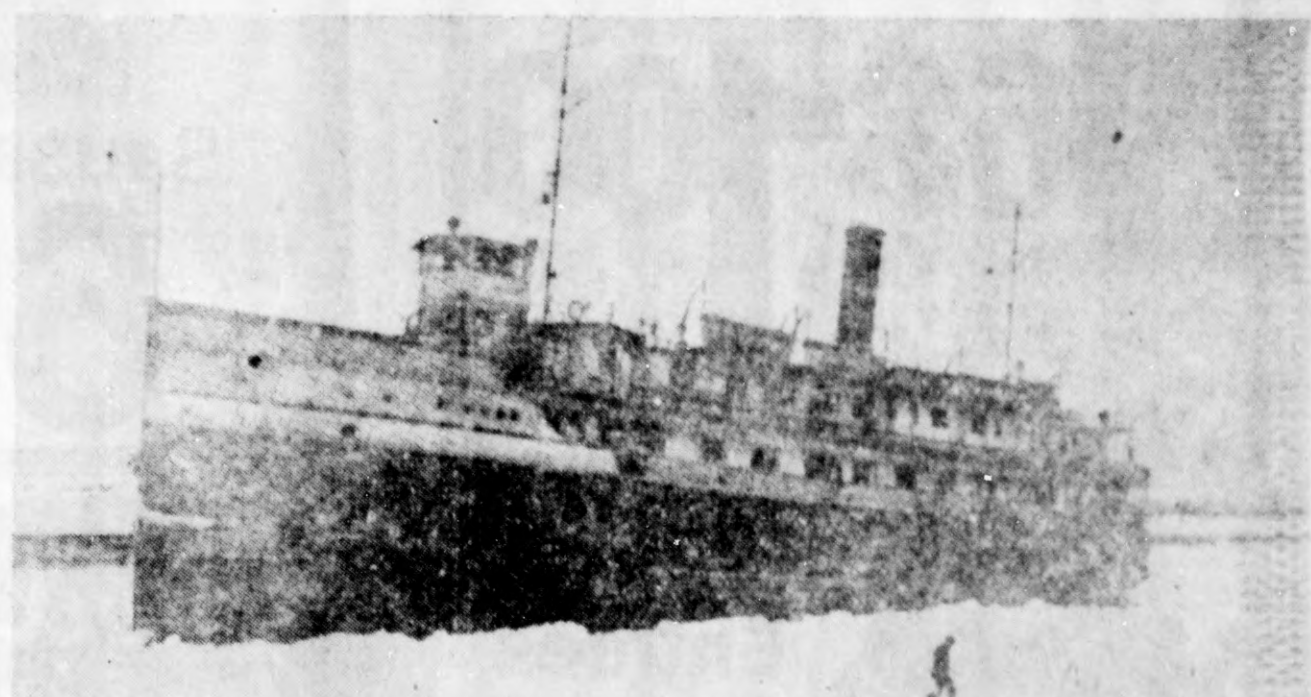

Police said they had determined no reason why Beghan was in the Decatur area.

Cass Woman Dies In Head-On Crash

A Cass county woman was among the 11 people killed in Michigan traffic accidents during the long Christmas weekend, according to Associated Press.

Mrs. Jennie Nella Guis, 74, Bear Lake road, Jones, was fatally injured in a two-car crash Sunday afternoon, on M-60, about two miles west of Three Rivers in St. Joseph county.

There were no other reported traffic deaths in Berrien, Allegan, Cass or Van Buren counties during the long holiday period which began at 6 p.m. Thursday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The St. Joseph county sheriff's department told this newspaper Mrs. Guis was a passenger in a car that skidded on slippery roads and hit an oncoming car head-on in the opposite traffic lane. The car in which Mrs. Guis was riding was driven by Linda Griffith, 17, Chicago, deputies.

Driver of the second car involved was identified as Ross Young, 68, Plainwell. He and Miss Griffith were treated and released from Three Rivers hospital.

A passenger in the Young auto, Bernice Cox, 65, Minden, remains in guarded condition today at the hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Associated Press reported state police identified the other Christmas weekend traffic victims as:

Betty Bierni, 45, of Saginaw, was struck by a car Thursday night on a road in Saginaw County's James Township.

Charles J. Beaudrie, 51, of Trenton, was killed Friday when he was hit by a car at Outer Drive and Interstate 75 in Melvindale.

William F. Milarch, 19, of Arcadia, died when his snowmobile struck a parked vehicle along Michigan 22 Thursday night.

Edward J. Oesterle, 25, of Pinckney, killed Thursday night when his car ran off a Livingston County road and hit a tree.

Phillip E. Klingaman, 33, and Sheryl L. Klingaman, 26, both of Tekonsha, killed in a two-car head-on collision Friday at the intersection of old U.S. 27 and Interstate 69 in Calhoun County.

William Morrell, 53, of Garden City, died Saturday when the car he was riding in collided with another vehicle in Garden City.

Gary W. Church, 28, of St. Helen, killed Sunday in a head-on collision in Ogemaw County.

Fredrick Schindler, 25, of Grand Rapids, died Friday in a two-car accident at a Grand Rapids intersection.

Louise Easterline, 74, of Belleville, killed Sunday in a three-car, head-on collision on U.S. 12 in Lenawee County.

Bloom'dale Students Will Get TB Tests

BLOOMINGDALE — TB tests for students at the Bloomingdale high school and middle school will be conducted Monday, Jan. 10. Permission is required from parents, according to Dr. Stanley Bushouse, high school principal, and forms will be sent home prior to the test day. The tests are being conducted at schools throughout Van Buren county by the county health department. The program was started because of an increase in active tuberculosis cases in the county this year.

Spawr Leaving State Police

State Police Det. Sgt. Charles E. Spawr of the Jackson post will retire Jan. 7 after nearly 26 years with the department, Col. George Halverson announced. Spawr, 53, is a Benton Harbor native and the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. C.V. Spawr. He is a brother of Clarence Spawr, retired state police lieutenant.

Spawr enlisted in the state police in February, 1951, and served at the Manistique post before transfer to Paw Paw in 1954. He was promoted to detective in 1969 and transferred to Jackson, and the rank in 1971 was changed to detective sergeant.

Halverson, department director, said Spawr earned two honorable mention citations during his career.

Spawr was graduated from Benton Harbor high school and attended Western Michigan university and Olivet college. He joined the Navy in 1942 and served 33 months.

He and his wife, Margaret, have a son and daughter.

Crackup Hurts 4 In Bangor Twp.

SOUTH HAVEN — Four people were injured yesterday in a two-car collision about 12:30 p.m. in Bangor township.

One of the four, Mrs. Cathy Hampton, 22, route 2, Covert, was listed in fairly good condition at the hospital this morning. The other three people were treated and released yesterday.

They were identified as Sherry Parrish, 28, route 5, South Haven, the driver of one the cars; and two passengers in the other car, Margaret Yates, 23, of 501 Green street, South Haven, and Danny Hampton, 24, route 2, Covert.

State police at South Haven said the crash occurred at the intersection of 34th avenue and 66th street when a car driven Gary Yates, 21, collided with the Parrish vehicle.

No tickets were issued and the accident remains under investigation.

Neither Yates nor Mrs. Parrish's four-year-old daughter, Stacey, who was riding with her, were reported injured.

Berrien Unemployment Rate Is Up Slightly In November

Berrien county's unemployment rate rose in November from October, but was 3.3 per cent less than November of 1975, according to the Michigan Employment Securities Commission (MESC). The MESC reported 64,700 people were employed in Berrien county in November — 1,400 more than in November of 1975. However, the number of employed during November of this year was 300 less than October. The unemployment rate rose from 9.7 per cent in October to 10.1 per cent in November. The unemployment rate in November, 1975, was 13.6 per cent. The MESC reported that last month metal industries were down 100 jobs, printing, publishing and allied fields lost 200 jobs and in non-manufacturing, wholesale trade lost 100 jobs. The only increase in jobs, according to the MESC, occurred in industries manufacturing transportation equipment which increased employment by 100.

Holiday Crime
Report Is Short

Crime almost took a holiday over the Christmas weekend in the Twin City area.
Police reports showed there was one complaint of a crime against a person (a man beaten on a Benton Harbor street); four reports of thefts; and two Ben-

BH Garage Destroyed
By Blaze

Fire Sunday morning destroyed a garage and its contents at a Benton Harbor home, city firemen reported.

Cause of the 8:15 a.m. blaze is undetermined and an investigation is underway, firemen said.

The garage owned by Ida Cole, 1014 Superior street, was located at the rear of her residence. Firemen listed contents destroyed in the fire as furniture, a television, bedding, tools and other goods. Electrical and telephone lines to another house were burned, but restored soon after the blaze, firemen reported.

In a fire Friday, firemen said a bed in the apartment of Jessica E. Johnson, 142 East Britain avenue, was damaged. She was not home, firemen reported, and cause of the 3:09 p.m. blaze, was believed to have been from a discarded cigarette. Damage was confined to the bed.

SJ Fire Damage Is 'Moderate'

St. Joseph firefighters reported they extinguished a kitchen fire at an apartment at 809 Main street Friday about 9:30 a.m.

Firemen said those present in the apartment were Georgia Little and Marilyn Miller and their two children. None was injured. Firefighters said the fire apparently started when a paper bag and purse were left on a stove and one of the burners was turned on by one of the children. Firemen termed the damage "moderate".

Milliken Hails
'People-Mover'
Plan In Detroit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A "people-mover" system planned for downtown Detroit "will contribute substantially to downtown development and renovation," Gov. William Milliken says.

"With this announcement, the federal government is recognizing that the people-mover will be an integral part of the comprehensive rapid transit system being developed by the Southeast Michigan Transportation Authority," Milliken said.

The U.S. Department of Transportation, which has already promised $800 million for a Detroit-area rapid transit system, that Detroit is also one of the cities approved for construction of a people-mover system.

Two Benton township boys, age 14 and 15, were arrested and a number of suspected stolen items seized as the result of Benton township police following tracks in the snow from the scene of a burglary Saturday about 10 p.m.

Police reported they followed the tracks after investigating a burglary at the apartment of Minnie Tyson, 1814 Crystal court. The tracks led to a nearby house. Subsequent investigation led to the arrests and the seizure of allegedly stolen goods from 1814 Crystal court and three other recent burglaries in the Crystal court - Council drive area, police reported.

Police said items seized by officers included stereos, an electric typewriter, cameras and radios.

The boys were released to custody of their parents, pending petitioning to juvenile court on charges of breaking and entering. The investigation was conducted by Patrolmen Kim Fowler and Steve Hansen and Det. Dan Peppel.

Benton Harbor police reported James Ray, 23, of 1453 Highland avenue, Benton township, sustained facial cuts and bruises in a beating Friday about 10 p.m.

Ray told police he and another man were standing in front of a house on Buss avenue when a third man drove up in an auto. The man got out of the car and struck Ray with his fists and a gun after threatening to kill Ray. No shots were reported fired and no arrest was made.

Police did not indicate if Ray received hospital treatment. Police reported the assault was believed caused by a previous dispute between Ray and his assailant.

Cash and checks were stolen in three thefts reported to Benton township police and Berrien sheriff's deputies, and a box of fruit was reported stolen in Benton Harbor over Christmas weekend.

Township police said a woman reported jewelry and her wallet containing $58 in cash were stolen after four men helped her carry packages from her car to her apartment Sunday.

Ruth Wade, 1946 East Britain avenue, told police she accepted an offer of assistance then invited them inside. One used the restroom, she said, and she noticed the goods missing from her bedroom after they left shortly before 5 p.m. Police said it was reported one of the four men was in a wheelchair.

Coins from a piggy bank, amounting to about $150, were reported stolen Sunday to Berrien sheriff's deputies. Bob Ellerton, 5558 Tulip, Hagar township, said his residence was broken into while his family was away during Christmas.

Another theft reported to Berrien deputies was cash, checks and credit card receipts totaling $250.25 stolen from the Arco service station at Red Arrow highway and Glenford road, Lincoln township. The theft was reported Friday.

Frank Milton, 770 Ogden avenue, told Benton Harbor police the front door of his residence was kicked in and the entire house ransacked, but the only thing stolen appeared to be a box of oranges and tangerines.

when army intelligence reported the enemy was planning an attack. I was ordered back to the main lines to stand, too, with the rest of the men and help repel the enemy. The enemy gave us an awful bombardment but that was all. They literally picked up some of our boys and blew them out of the trench into no-man's land. On this occasion, I only received a splashing of dirt on my head as these 250mm howitzers dug great holes in the ground and the explosion threw it far and wide.

About 1 p.m., the all clear was sounded and we were ordered back to the dugout for a rest. The dugout was round like a silo and the men who slept in them formed the spokes of a gigantic wheel; head to the wall and feet center on the hub. I had just started to doze off, when I felt something on my face, right cheek near the forehead. I subconsciously gave it a brush with my hand and it must have been fairly brisk for the rat squealed when he hit the cement wall. I cursed him blue and woke up some 18 or 20 other boys. Now, normally, all would have been angry at having a sleep interruption but this time all roared with laughter.

Of the two weeks I was on trench warfare duty, I spent 26 days and nights on sentry duty in no-man's land, about 50 yards in front of the main trenches. I could sleep daytimes. One day I lay on the ground sleeping when a German flier tried to shoot me. He swooped almost straight down with guns roaring. He tried it 3 times, then zoomed back to Mulhauser on the Rhine or thereabouts. It was very difficult to successfully strafe from a plane those days as the bullets of the gun were synchronized to pass between the prop blades. I did have quite an arsenal out there: a rifle, a sack of grenades, a Colt .45 revolver and a set of field glasses.

'AN IDEA WHOSE TIME HAS GONE'

Editor,
Jeffrey Hart suggest that the Minimum School is an idea whose time has come. One shouldn't need more than a moment's reflection to agree that something like minimum or limited or dispersed and versatile schools ought to be the goal now, because the existing public education system is certainly an idea whose time has gone.

Like the Dead Sea which has no outlet, public education has a propensity for accumulating any and all materials. Water which brings minerals into the Dead Sea eventually escapes by evaporation, and the spirit which brings innovations to education eventually departs, leaving nothing but empty forms to clutter up the system.

There ought to be a way to systematically discard the unwanted, unneeded, and irrelevant elements, or at least a way to experiment with alternatives, such as the Minimum School which Hart suggests.

LET GILMORE'S DECISION STAND

Editor,
I've written before about capital punishment and where I think it should be used. I refer now to the Gary Gilmore case and the efforts of people to stop his date with the executioner.

This guy wants to get his sentence carried out as soon as possible, instead of spending the rest of his life behind bars. In a world where every man or woman is supposed to make his own decisions I don't understand why he can't make his. Prison is no fun, especially when you know you'll never get out so I see why Gilmore feels the way he does. The American Civil Liberties Union and all of the anti-capital punishment groups that are trying to stop the Gilmore execution are doing nothing but meddling and trying to get recognition. If Gary Gilmore wants to die, then he ought to be allowed to. He is entitled to justice the same as everyone else and if it's not given then he should be awarded his freedom.

SAYS UNIONS WORTH THE DUES

Editor,
An open letter to the people of Monroe and all other workers and their families.

In regards to the article in the paper about the people joining a union or not. I have been there myself, as I was born and raised in the "dear old South", and at times I held jobs that the masters would not have their slaves do, and the pay was just as bad. Also, I have worked and am at present on union jobs, and believe me, it is worth a few bucks for union dues.

You say they take your money, who doesn't. There are crooks in all walks of life. The guy who takes welfare and could be working, the companies that jack-up your bills. The crooks in Washington and Lansing who let them for so much under the table. The doctor who frauds on their bills of welfare patients. You see, the list is endless.

As a union member, I know some jerk is not about to fire me because he does not like the way I comb my hair or smile. This does not mean that the union will uphold a guy that is too lazy to work. The unions were formed by men that we, as American workers, should be proud of. They were beaten, thrown in jail and even killed.

Sure the companies would like to get their goods made for nothing, if possible. I say that this country is rich enough and large enough to have all workers receive a decent wage, as well as companies to make a profit. So more power to unions of this great land, and may they get stronger, so we may all have a better way of life.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Holiday Crime Report Is Short

Crime almost took a holiday over the Christmas weekend in the Twin City area.

Police reports showed there was one complaint of a crime against a person (a man beaten on a Benton Harbor street); four reports of thefts; and two Benton township boys were arrested on burglary charges.

Two Benton township boys, age 14 and 15, were arrested and a number of suspected stolen items seized as the result of Benton township police following tracks in the snow from the scene of a burglary Saturday about 10 p.m.

BH Garage Destroyed By Blaze

Fire Sunday morning destroyed a garage and its contents at a Benton Harbor home, city firemen reported.

Cause of the 8:15 a.m. blaze is undetermined and an investigation is underway, firemen said.

The garage owned by Ida Cole, 1014 Superior street, was located at the rear of her residence. Firemen listed contents destroyed in the fire as furniture, a television, bedding, tools and other goods. Electrical and telephone lines to another house were burned, but restored soon after the blaze, firemen reported.

In a fire Friday, firemen said a bed in the apartment of Jessica E. Johnson, 142 East Britain avenue, was damaged. She was not home, firemen reported, and cause of the 3:09 p.m. blaze, was believed to have been from a discarded cigarette. Damage was confined to the bed.

SJ Fire Damage Is 'Moderate'

St. Joseph firefighters reported they extinguished a kitchen fire at an apartment at 809 Main street Friday about 9:30 a.m.

Firemen said those present in the apartment were Georgia Little and Marilyn Miller and their two children. None was injured. Firefighters said the fire apparently started when a paper bag and purse were left on a stove and one of the burners was turned on by one of the children. Firemen termed the damage "moderate".

Milliken Hails 'People-Mover' Plan In Detroit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A "people-mover" system planned for downtown Detroit "will contribute substantially to downtown development and renovation," Gov. William Milliken says.

"With this announcement, the federal government is recognizing that the people-mover will be an integral part of the comprehensive rapid transit system being developed by the Southeast Michigan Transportation Authority," Milliken said.

The U.S. Department of Transportation, which has already promised $600 million for a Detroit-area rapid transit system, that Detroit is also one of the cities approved for construction of a people-mover system.

WASHINGTON GOVERNOR'S SCRAPBOOK

Sweet, Bitter Both Remembered

By DAVID AMMONS
Associated Press Writer
OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Queen Elizabeth cordially invites you to supper on her royal yacht.

President Nixon confides: "Your friendship means a great deal."

A Walla Walla man wants you impeached.

Those vignettes are among thousands Dan and Nancy Evans have recorded in 24 red leather scrapbooks, concrete reminders of 12 years in the governor's mansion.

Some of the pages are terribly ordinary. Old birthday cards, menus, snapshots of the summer vacation. Pictures of the kids growing up.

Others provide a private look at the days of meeting kings and queens, dining at the White House, globetrotting and getting notes signed "RN" or "Betty and Jerry" or "Nelson."

Says Nancy Evans: "Dan and I have been scrap-bookkeepers ever since we were children."

The couple saved practically everything of personal or historic value. Perhaps the most interesting pages cover Watergate.

On July 25, 1974, two weeks before Richard M. Nixon resigned, Evans received a note from Washington's senior senator, Warren G. Magnuson: "I had a talk (informal) with Ford, Laird, etc., at Burning Tree yesterday. I don't know what's going to happen."

He rejected Evans' plea for amnesty for Nixon.

"I believe that the constitutional process of impeachment must go forward. I do hope we can finish this matter before Congress adjourns."

The next page is a banner headline from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer: "Nixon Resigns." And one from the Seattle Times: "Ford Sworn in as President."

There are dozens of notes, telegrams and photographs sent by Watergate figures. There are letters from Nixon; messages from John Ehrlichman, who called Evans "my kind of Republican;" and notes from "Ted" Agnew, John Mitchell and others.

They relate to Evans' governorship, suggestions for federal actions and to various elections. There is no mention of the Watergate scandal itself.

Among some other highlights of the scrapbooks:

—The Evanses nobody knows. There's a picture of the Burt Reynolds nude centerfold — with Evans' face pasted over Reynolds'. Another series of photos shows a clowning Evans in his bathrobe, shaving off his much-celebrated beard in stages. In one, he's a Smith brother. In another, Fu Manchu. In another, Hitler.

—Evans the Republican. One previously undisclosed item: the governor's popular keynote address at the 1968 Republican National Convention was in part drafted by a Rockefeller aide. Evans supported the New York governor even though Nixon was a shoo-in for the nomination.

—The Evanses and celebrities. They have souvenirs of meeting all the "name" politicians and stars such as Robert Redford, Pearl Bailey, Tony Bennett, Mary Martin and others.

—The globetrotters. Trade missions and trips to the People's Republic of China, Soviet Union, Great Britain, Canada and Japan. They made a Bicentennial tour of New England and were wine and directed by Queen Elizabeth. They went to the Olympics in Montreal.

No Place Like Home

SEATTLE (AP) — A Seattle couple will soon be moving into a city park to live as part of an experiment aimed at reducing vandalism in parks. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill will move into a 70-foot mobile home as participants in a Vandal Watch program initiated by the Seattle City Council. Rent and utilities are free, but the Hills must open the park's restrooms every day and remain in the area during the evenings to watch for vandals.

—The sportsman. There are dozens of photos of the family skiing, sunning, fishing, swimming and hiking.

—Evans and the press. The family's scrapbooks include thousands of news accounts and editorials — some negative. There also are private notes of encouragement or appreciation from newsmen and publishers, including Lou Guzzo, now top aide to Dixy Lee Ray.

David Broder of the Washington Post, wrote several times. When Evans said he planned to leave public life, Broder wrote: "There is no one in government or politics I have covered who gave me greater reason for optimism about the quality of leadership in this country or the decency of people in public life."

—Evans and the little guy. There are numerous letters from state residents. One Seattle woman wrote: "Whenever I am tempted to dismiss all politicians as crooks, you restore my faith in the system."

There are dozens of notes, telegrams and photographs sent by Watergate figures. There are letters from Nixon; messages from John Ehrlichman, who called Evans "my kind of Republican;" and notes from "Ted" Agnew, John Mitchell and others.

They relate to Evans' governorship, suggestions for federal actions and to various elections. There is no mention of the Watergate scandal itself.

Among some other highlights of the scrapbooks:

—The Evans nobody knows. There's a picture of the Burt Reynolds nude centerfold — with Evans' face pasted over Reynolds'. Another series of photos shows a clowning Evans in his bathrobe, shaving off his much-celebrated beard in stages. In one, he's a Smith brother. In another, Fu Manchu. In another, Hitler.

—Evans the Republican. One previously undisclosed item: the governor's popular keynote address at the 1968 Republican National Convention was in part drafted by a Rockefeller aide.

Evans supported the New York governor even though Nixon was a shoo-in for the nomination.

—The Evanses and celebrities. They have souvenirs of meeting all the "name" politicians and stars such as Robert Redford, Pearl Bailey, Tony Bennett, Mary Martin and others.

—The globetrotters. Trade missions and trips to the People's Republic of China, Soviet Union, Great Britain, Canada and Japan. They made a Bicentennial tour of New England and were wined and dined by Queen Elizabeth. They went to the Olympics in Montreal.

—The sportsman. There are dozens of photos of the family skiing, sunning, fishing, swimming and hiking.

—Evans and the press. The family's scrapbooks include thousands of news accounts and editorials — some negative. There also are private notes of encouragement or appreciation from newsmen and publishers, including Lou Guzzo, now top aide to Dixy Lee Ray.

David Broder of the Washington Post, wrote several times. When Evans said he planned to leave public life, Broder wrote:

"There is no one in government or politics I have covered who gave me greater reason for optimism about the quality of leadership in this country or the decency of people in public life."

No Place Like Home

SEATTLE (AP) — A Seattle couple will soon be moving into a city park to live as part of an experiment aimed at reducing vandalism in parks. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill will move into a 70-foot mobile home as participants in a Vandal Watch program initiated by the Seattle City Council. Rent and utilities are free, but the Hills must open the park's restrooms every day and remain in the area during the evenings to watch for vandals.

ARRAIGNED: Antonio (Tony) Ruggirello, 42, and his brother, Antonio (Toto), 39, are shown after arraignment in Detroit on murder conspiracy charges. The two were arrested after a four-month undercover investigation by the Wayne County Organized Crime Task Force. The Ruggirello brothers are charged with conspiracy to kill Ralph Proctor, 57, of Flint, by trying to plant a bomb in his car. (AP Wirephoto)

'Bomb' Leads To 2 Arrests

DETROIT (AP) — Two Detroit brothers, reputed underworld leaders, are free on $100,000 surety bonds after being arrested on murder conspiracy charges.

The arrests of Antonino (Tony) Ruggirello, 42, and his 39-year-old brother Antonio (Toto) Ruggirello, capped a four-month undercover investigation by the Wayne County Organized Crime Task Force.

The Ruggirello brothers are charged with conspiring to kill Ralph Proctor, 57, an admitted Flint numbers man, by trying to plant a bomb in his car.

The two were arrested two blocks from a Detroit carwash owned by Proctor. They were carrying a device that looked like 10 sticks of dynamite rigged to a detonator.

But police said the "bomb" was a convincing fake the two men allegedly got through a pair of undercover police officers.

The "bomb", put together by the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau of the U.S. Treasury Department, was armed with a timing device that allowed Task Force agents to follow the brothers.

Tony and Toto Ruggirello are reputed rising stars in Detroit organized crime, police say, with alleged involvement in illegal gambling and other criminal activities.

The brothers also are former partners in a pest removal business with reputed Detroit Mafia bosses Anthony and Vito Giacalone.

Police said undercover officer Michael Sud posed as a Lebanese smuggler, with officer Thomas Pennypacker posing as his associate.

Also involved in the probe was an unidentified police informant, who police say wore a radio transmitter strapped to his body during conversations with the Ruggirello brothers.

Police said the investigation also netted two other arrests of persons arraigned Thursday on heroin sales charges. Edith Mundy and Raymond Thomas, both of Detroit, were charged with attempting to sell $800,000 worth of heroin.

Neither Mrs. Mundy nor Thomas was connected with the Ruggirellos, police said, although their arrests came through tips from the same informant used in the murder conspiracy case.

Police said four other drug-related arrests are expected within the next few days.

LMC Announces Personnel Shifts

Dr. Thomas P. McCourt, Lake Michigan college registrar and admissions officer, has been named acting assistant dean of the Division of Arts and Sciences.

Margaret Crisshal, assistant dean of students, will assume the registrar's previous record-keeping functions. Tony Swerlinsky, LMC counselor, will handle the college's admissions procedures and Sylvia Coleman, LMC counselor, will assume the duties of financial aids officer, work previously performed by Dean Crisshal.

"We are accomplishing two things in this personnel change," said Dr. Walter F. Browe, executive vice-president. "One is to add a qualified and trained administrator to the arts and sciences staff to help out with the affairs of the college's largest academic division.

"The second is to divide the increasingly complicated job of admissions and record-keeping among two persons, thus providing, fast, efficient service in admissions and registration, on the one hand, and transcript updating and safekeeping, on the other."

McCourt received his doctoral degree last fall in the field of counseling and personnel. In his new position he will work under Dr. James Bekkering, dean of the Arts and Sciences division.

Michiganders In Majority

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — It all began when Abraham Lincoln once referred to residents of Michigan as "Michiganders." Since then the debate continues to rage: is it Michigander or Michiganian? President Ford says Michigander, but Gov. William Milliken thinks it should be Michiganian. Now, a Northern Michigan University linguist says he's completed a survey showing residents of Michigan prefer the term "Michigander." Professor George Javor said he sent out more than 500 questionnaires on the subject. Ninety per cent of those responding favored "Michigander," while only seven per cent said they prefer "Michiganian," Javor said. The remaining three per cent opted for such tags as Michiganites, Michiganese and — for residents of the Upper Peninsula — Upperties.

Holiday Road Toll 398

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snowy weather made driving difficult in the Northeast and Midwest, and the death toll from traffic accidents climbed as the three-day Christmas weekend ended. The Associated Press counted 398 deaths on the nation's roads between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday. The National Safety Council had predicted between 400 and 500 traffic deaths. During last year's four-day Christmas holiday, 397 people were killed in traffic. The worst Christmas holiday for motorists was in 1965, when 720 persons died in three days.

By John Roche

One of the main problems in defusing adequate salaries for Washington officials is that Einstein's theory of relativity has never been applied to the issue. If, for example, in 1967 I had wandered around among average Americans, complaining bitterly that I was going broke on $30,000, the predictable response would have been a horse-laugh. It just happened to be true: during my spell in the White House, we almost exhausted our savings.

As a number of witnesses can testify, this was not a function of high living, trips to the race-track, or shifting from a Plymouth to a Continental. We were trapped in the incredible Washington housing bind. Leaving our home in Massachusetts (with its 5 percent mortgage), we had to find a place to rent. Given my job, there were certain geographical imperatives — we could not live in the suburbs of Baltimore. After discovering one could rent a broom closet in Georgetown for about $500 a month, we leased a nice house convenient to the public school.

It was comfortable, but I soon realized that (with add-ons such as utilities) housing was taking about a third of my gross income. Then there were the unpredictable. A presidential aide has little time to keep the yard up and the grass down, but his home can't look like it's nestled in a cow pasture. Solution: $1,000 a year to some entrepreneurs who maintain the property, shovel snow, and generally fend off a reputation as a slovenly neighbor.

The point of this autobiographical safari is not to highlight the life and hard times of John Roche. What I am suggesting is something more basic: that incredible Washington living costs tend to prevent a lot of able men and women from accepting high-level jobs.

The background of this housing racket is interesting. It seems that virtually nobody who ever held a high federal office moved out of Washington when the axe fell. They became "public affairs consultants," and, of course, the numerous lawyers went into practice. In general, this is a high-class way of saying they are lobbyists.

In short, a political geologist finds the Washington rock configuration fascinating. Like in the excavation of Troy, you can find this underlayer (the old pre-World War II Southern Washington), then the wartime accretion, and then successive layers representing every immigration since. Since much of the District is composed of slums, desirable locations are increasingly hard to find and correspondingly expensive.

The Carter administration reportedly has already had difficulty establishing a beachhead. Several able persons have taken a look at the bottom line and said, in effect, "Two years of this and I'll be on welfare." Inflation has taken an astronomical bite! As the "Economist" (12-11-76) points out since the last significant pay raise was implemented in 1969, the consumer price index has gone up 60 per cent. While the federal government has put through one a percent increment, private sector executive salaries have increased 52 per cent!

To put it graphically, a cabinet secretary who in 1969 was assigned a $63,000 annual salary would "require" $95,540 in 1976 to avoid a cut in real income. Unless we want the nation to be run by public-spirited millionaires or characters on the take, Einstein's theory of relativity must be applied to Washington-based federal executives.

One of the main problems in defending adequate salaries for Washington officials is that Einstein's theory of relativity has never been applied to the issue. If, for example, in 1967 I had wandered around among average Americans, complaining bitterly that I was going broke on $30,000, the predictable response would have been a horse laugh. It just happened to be true: during my spell in the White House, we almost exhausted our savings.

As a number of witnesses can testify, this was not a function of high living, trips to the race-track, or shifting from a Plymouth to a Continental. We were trapped in the incredible Washington housing bind. Leaving our home in Massachusetts (with its 5 percent mortgage), we had to find a place to rent. Given my job, there were certain geographical imperatives — we could not live in the suburbs of Baltimore. After discovering one could rent a broom closet in Georgetown for about $500 a month, we leased a nice house convenient to the public school.

It was comfortable, but I soon realized that (with add-ons such as utilities) housing was taking about a third of my gross income. Then there were the unpredictable. A presidential aide has little time to keep the yard up and the grass down, but his home can't look like it's nestled in a cow pasture. Solution: $1,000 a year to some entrepreneurs who maintain the property, shovel snow, and generally fend off a reputation as a slovenly neighbor.

The point of this autobiographical safari is not to highlight the life and hard times of John Roche. What I am suggesting is something more basic: that incredible Washington living costs tend to prevent a lot of able men and women from accepting high-level jobs.

The background of this housing racket is interesting. It seems that virtually nobody who ever held a high federal office moved out of Washington when the axe fell. They became "public affairs consultants," and, of course, the numerous lawyers went into practice. In general, this is a high-class way of saying they are lobbyists.

In short, a political geologist finds the Washington rock configuration fascinating. Like in the excavation of Troy, you can find the underlayer (the old pre-World War II Southern Washington), then the wartime accretion, and then successive layers representing every immigration since. Since much of the District is composed of slums, desirable locations are increasingly hard to find and correspondingly expensive.

The Carter administration reportedly has already had difficulty establishing a beachhead. Several able persons have taken a look at the bottom line and said, in effect, "Two years of this and I'll be on welfare." Inflation has taken an astronomical bite! As the "Economist" (12-11-76) points out since the last significant pay raise was implemented in 1969, the consumer price index has gone up 60 per cent. While the federal government has put through one 5 percent increment, private sector executive salaries have increased 52 per cent!

To put it graphically, a cabinet secretary who in 1969 was assigned a $63,000 annual salary would "require" $95,540 in 1976 to avoid a cut in real income. Unless we want the nation to be run by public-spirited millionaires or characters on the take, Einstein's theory of relativity must be applied to Washington-based federal executives.

At That Moment

WYNKEN, BLYNKEN AND NOD

For the United Nations, it is another classic moment of arrested motion, numbing futility, weary bombast, parliamentary pretzels.

The question before the U.N. General Assembly is of major consequence: whether neutral nations, specifically India, should participate along with the belligerents in the forthcoming peace conference to settle the Korean war. Even so, debate can be wearing, especially should it include a 71-minute harangue by the Soviet delegate, white-thatched Andrei Vishinsky. For the United States delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, it is especially trying because it represents the first time in the seven and a half years of U.N. existence that the United States has found itself in a minority on a major issue. The delegate from the United Kingdom, Sir Gladwyn Jebb, is in the equally unsettling position of splitting with the Americans over the matter.

From the American point of view, "two sides" should negotiate the Korean peace — on the one side, the 16 nations that sent troops to Korea; on the other, the Communist foe. Lodge feels that Communists would be more likely to yield ground in two-party talks — as indeed they had after two years of wrangling over a Korean truce at Pusanjorn — than they would at a round-table affair. The British see advantages in the latter, viewing a broad-scale conference on many global matters as a prelude to a general "settlement of the Cold War." The Russians, for their part, are primarily anxious to enlarge any potential split among the western allies.

A dicey moment, then, this day of debate, August 26, 1953, and visitors who pour into the air-conditioned chamber from New York's 85-degree summer are treated to an equally heated exchange inside.

Shouts the Soviet delegate, shaking his fist: "You cannot dictate the terms of this conference. You didn't win a victory. Are you flying through the clouds on wings of ideas that you represent the master race?"

Replies the United States delegate, in icy Bostonian tones:

"Mr. Representative of the Soviet Union... has missed another one of several great opportunities in his life to keep quiet."

The result: 21 votes for the U.S. position; 27 against; 11 abstaining; 1, India, not participating. Thus, neither side wins the two-thirds majority necessary to carry the day and the matter is put aside to debate anew. But the spectacle of watching old friends — England, Norway, Mexico, Canada, indeed all except two of the 16 nations with troops in Korea — depart from the U.S. position in the vote is enough for Americans to count it as their first U.N. defeat.

Don't Let Bills, Money Worries Spoil Christmas

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Look at it this way: You've gone through the worst of the planning and spending and you've survived, so now try to immerse yourself in the spirit of Christmas. Sit back and enjoy it.

The litter of wrappings and packing materials will get cleaned up, somehow, and, somehow, you'll get the bills paid. You've always managed to do that and you've survived. There's a fair chance you will again.

And you'll even regain some of your zest for life if you think of all the little gifts that might be spread in your path during the coming days and weeks. Like a little tax cut or a rebate.

Don't be cynical. Sure the money's yours anyway; we agree, it never did belong to the government, which we all know doesn't have a nickel to its name except what it grabs from you and me. But be happy with small joys.

Right after Christmas, you should keep in mind, there are all sorts of bargains to be had. So you don't have any money to spend, but you've got credit, haven't you? Credit is useless if unused.

You're still unconvinced? Then why do you think all those merchants advertise as they do? They want you to buy. They want you to possess. They want you to do your bit to keep this economy moving and producing jobs for your fellow man.

You can look forward to your New Year's resolutions, too. Next year is the year when all the nonsense stops and you become the person you really know you're capable of being: successful, well paid, admired, free of debt.

If you're smart, and you are, you'll plan right now to take a little, inexpensive break in the routine for one of those mid-

February vacations your friends seem to manage. You're right; it'll make you a better person.

And think of the way the house is going to look next year. Interest rates are less usurious now and the banks are pushing money, so a small loan makes sense. The place will look handsome with a new roof, paint job and interior decoration. Perhaps even a pool.

You could even imagine a case for the stock market rising in 1977, pumping some life into those shares you bought on margin back in the 1960s — "Here are a couple of really live ones," said the salesman — and which have lain unresponsive as mummies ever since.

Christmas magic makes anything possible. Look into the ornaments and see your future: The long-delayed pay raise, the new sense of security, the transition of the kids from adolescent spendthrifts to income producers, if only part-time.

Now you can plan things better, having the money and some of the worries off your mind. You won't feel guilty over taking a vacation or feel you're undermining your family's security by sneaking a day off for the ballgame.

Summertime can be serenely beautiful under such conditions. And you can look forward to autumn, glorious in its colors.

All this is possible at Christmas time, amid the red and green lights, if you just sit back and relax and soak up the spirit.

Do it now, because on the day after the spirit disappears into a sea of red ink, and all the green stuff you need to refloat yourself will have been left behind, far back in those dreams.

But don't be vanquished. You've survived in the past and you can again.

HISTORICAL NOTE: When Paul Revere made his famous midnight ride, he was on a $16 horse and had exactly 35 cents in his pocket for a sandwich and a tankard of ale at Lexington! . . . If you consider yourself to be observant, what do the following words have in common: deft, sighing, canopy, first and stun? (See the answer at the end of this paragraph.) . . . Sudden Thought: When our new President addresses our Representatives, won't that be putting the Carter before the House? . . . One born under Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) is inclined to avoid details, hates to be bothered by trifles — but is far from being superficial! . . . Graphology Note: Lots of curlicues and flourishes on letter formations show the writer to be coquettish — and seeking admiration . . . Tea leaf readers say if the leaves take the shape of a church, it indicates an unexpected windfall . . . Confusing Language: vie, sigh, my, why . . . Answer to above question — re what the words have in common: Each word contains three letters in alphabetical order.

EXERCISE tip from Terry (Century West club) Robinson: A girl can improve the shape of her bust by sitting at a table or desk, arms straight out in front at chest level with palms flat against each side of a typewriter, sewing machine or other heavy object. Press hands together hard — hold for count of six, then relax . . . Bar-Snooping at the Assembly Steakhouse, NYC: Try a dash of cream or milk in your next after-dinner brandy . . . Over-worked Expression: "So what else is new?" . . . Famous Last Words: "This time I won't do any gambling while we're in Las Vegas — I'm just going there to catch all the shows." . . . Beauty Hint from Sandy Dennis: Your neck will stay slim if you open and close your jaws to the fullest 20 times — at three periods a day.

SMATTERING OF SIGNS The Aries child will seldom be found on the sidelines; he's highly competitive, no matter what other qualities he may lack. The Virgo native is not aggressive and does not promote himself as he should, considering all his talent. If you are looking for a shoulder to cry on, hunt your Pisces friends, as these people have understanding and sympathy to share with all.

GRADUATES: Beth Ann Fietz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fietz, 1417 Monroe avenue, Benton township, was graduated from Central Michigan university recently with bachelor's degree in secondary education. She is a 1972 graduate of Benton Harbor high school.

Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS Today is Monday, Dec. 27, the 362nd day of 1976. There are four days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1949, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands signed an act granting sovereignty to Indonesia after nearly 350 years of Dutch rule. On this date: In 1571, the pioneer German astronomer Johannes Kepler was born in Buitemberg. In 1822, the scientist known as the founder of preventive medicine, Louis Pasteur, was born in the French city of Dole. In 1900, prohibitionist Carrie Nation staged her first raid on a saloon, smashing bottles at a bar in Wichita, Kans. In 1944, in World War II, an American tank column smashed across the German bulge in Belgium and relieved U.S. troops who had been under siege at Bastogne. In 1945, after World War II, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union announced they would govern Korea as joint trustees for five years, then grant independence. In 1973, Federal energy director William Simon announced that his agency had developed a stand-by system for gasoline rationing. Ten years ago: A rally of 100,000 Red Guards in Peking denounced China's President Liu Shan-Chi. Five years ago: It was announced that the U.S. military draft call would not be issued in January. One year ago: China released a Soviet helicopter that had flown into Chinese territory. Today's birthday: Entertainer Marlene Dietrich is 72. Thought for today: You don't have to say "no." You can always take the matter under advisement. — Anonymous. Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, General George Washington returned to his headquarters in Pennsylvania's Bucks County after capturing Trenton, N.J.

Dandy Detroit Duo In St. Joe Holiday Tournament

The St. Joseph Holiday Tournament will again have some of the best brand of basketball available, thanks mainly to a dandy duo from Detroit.

Defending tourney champion Detroit Denby and defending Class A state champion Detroit Catholic Central, both unbeaten and ranked No. 2 and 5, respectively, in the latest Associated Press poll are coming to town for the Tuesday and Wednesday tourney at the St. Joe high school gym.

Host St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, which tangle opening night, round out the four-team event now in its fifth year.

"Once again we haven't chosen an easy task," declares St. Joseph coach George Gaucher, "but it makes for good basketball. It looks like one of the best as far as quality."

Action opens at 7 p.m. Tuesday with Denby trying to snap Catholic's 13-game winning streak over the past two seasons. St. Joe will then pit its 3-3 record against Benton Harbor's 2-3 mark. The championship clash between Tuesday's winners will be at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, following a 7 p.m. consolation contest.

Defending state champion Catholic has rolled to a 5-0 record while posting a winning margin of more than 26 points per game and a scoring average of more than 80 points per game.

Leading pointmakers for second-year Catholic coach Bernie

Holowicki are 6-7 junior forward Robert Gonzalez and 6-3 senior forward Alan Mitchell. They are averaging about 17.0 points per game.

Dave Abel, a 6-7 senior, and Rick Kaye, a 6-7 senior, who run at the post positions in the Catholic offense, provide rebounding strength, and 6-0 senior guard Dan Fitzgerald and 6-11 senior guard Bill Parran provide floor leadership.

The only player Catholic lost from last year's first seven was 6-6 guard Mike Prince, and he was a good one. He earned all-state honors and is now a starter for Western Kentucky.

Holowicki says his Shamrocks haven't completely adjusted to the loss of Prince's floor leadership and scoring punch. "But we are getting there," he adds. "We are getting better every day."

Denby lost four of five starters from last year, including 6-11 all-star Stuart House, now a starter at Washington State, but the Tigers have continued their winning ways. They are 4-0 with a 77.8 scoring average and a winning margin of 17.3.

Returning to the Denby team, which downed Benton Harbor 72-57 in last year's tourney championship tilt, is senior guard James "Sonny" Newman. He scored 20 points in each tourney game here last year and has been a potent pointmaker this season. He scored 33 in one game and had 27 points in the first half of another.

Benton Harbor coach Earl McKee talked to the Detroit Southeastern coaches about Denby after last Tuesday's game and learned that coach Robert Shannon's Tars are as "good or better than last year's team... they're not as big but they work the ball better."

But McKee's immediate concern is St. Joseph in Tuesday night's game.

The Tigers showed signs of living up to McKee's expectations in the 79-76 victory over Southeastern, and the coach hopes his team has turned the corner toward a winning campaign.

"I don't think we have played to our potential," says McKee. "We are not playing with the enthusiasm that we've got to have. Only in that third quarter last Tuesday (the Tigers scored 31 points) have we played with any inspiration."

"Boy, I wish we could come to life and really play a couple of good games in the Christmas tournament. I think we have ability around. If we put to all out there at one time, I think we can win."

McKee started Kevin Sterling and James Potts against Southeastern and they responded with 10 and 12 points, respectively. They'll probably start again Tuesday.

The other three Tiger regulars are scoring in double figures, with Steve McNutt averaging 17.4, Ronald Page 16.6 and Keith Taylor 12.8.

St. Joseph will counter with an all senior line up, with Mike Tinberg replacing Jeff Beal at center. Tinberg is still hobbled by a bad knee, but he has rebounded well in brief playing stints this year. And fans may recall that he scored a career-high 22 points in last season's holiday tournament.

Dale Wright continues to lead St. Joseph scorers with a 20.8 average. The only other Bear in double digits is Pat Weber (10.7).

St. Joe had trouble with Niles' quickness and zone defense in its last game, and Gaucher expects to encounter the same problems against Benton Harbor.

"Against them we've got to play somewhat errorless ball and hope we can do things we want to make up for our lack of speed in comparison with them," declares the veteran Bear mentor.

St. Joe has also been working on its rebounding, especially on the defensive board. "We haven't done too badly overall on defense in stopping initial thrusts of opponents," adds Gaucher, "but we have been weak in stopping second and third shots."

Tourney tickets are priced at $2.50 for one night and $4.50 for both nights.

Hobbled Pittsburgh Falls, 24-7

Oakland Looks Super!

OAKLAND (AP) — For the Pittsburgh Steelers, the magic Super Bowl number ended at two — two championships won but not a third because of two stars who couldn't run.

And for the Oakland Raiders, the number two may be only the beginning.

Sunday's American Conference championship, the final step before the National Football League extravaganza with the Roman numerals, was painfully one-sided, painfully decided by the pain Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier endured.

Between them, they had rolled up 2,164 rushing yards during the regular season, two massive reasons why the Steelers had averaged 212 yards per game on the ground, why quarterback Terry Bradshaw could be selective and successful in his passing, why the defense, so well rested between appearances, could do its job so frighteningly well.

But Harris, with bruised ribs, and Bleier, with a sprained toe, never set foot on the Oakland Coliseum field during Sunday's game. Without them, the Pittsburgh ground game went nowhere. Bradshaw had to pass much too often with limited success, the defense burned itself out — and the Raiders, with some solid running and passing of their own, won 24-7.

And so Oakland, which hasn't been to a Super Bowl since the number 11 (when it lost 33-14 to Green Bay) will be in number 11 on Jan. 9 in Pasadena, Calif., facing Minnesota. The Vikings are making their fourth Super Bowl appearance (and still looking for a winning one) following their 24-13 National Conference title victory over Los Angeles earlier Sunday.

Just how much the absence of Harris and Bleier hurt the Steelers depended on who was doing the talking.

Coach John Madden, whose Raiders are riding a 12-game winning streak, said it meant nothing. "Sure, Franco and Rocky didn't play," he acknowledged, "but that didn't make any difference. Hell, no! You put the men you have out there for 60 minutes. We've played the Steelers in games with people missing, too, you know."

But Chuck Noll, whose Steelers' winning streak ended at 10, said the handicap was enormous. "It's tough to come into the biggest game with your hands tied behind your back, with two of your big weapons out."

In each of the last two years it was the Steelers who beat the Raiders for the AFC title.

This time it was very clear very early that the Steelers weren't going to go out and take the title. If they were going to get it, Oakland was going to have to give it to them.

The Raiders never even came close to offering up a post-Christmas gift. Ken Stabler, who completed 10 of 16 passes for 88 yards and two touchdowns, never threw an interception. The Raiders never fumbled the ball away.

Pittsburgh, with reserve running back Reggie Harrison gaining 44 of the team's 72 yards rushing (three of them on a touchdown run in the second period), failed to get a first down for the first 19 minutes of play.

By then the Raiders led 10-0 on Errol Mann's 39-yard field goal and Clarence Davis' oneyard TD dive, the latter coming three plays after linebacker Willie Hall picked off a Bradshaw pass and returned it 24 yards to the Pittsburgh one.

Stabler's four-yard scoring pass to tight end Warren Bankston, a former Steeler, with 19 seconds to go in the half made it 17-7, then Stabler put the game away with a five-yard TD toss to Pete Banaszak in the third period.

The Steelers put Stabler away on that play. Linebacker Jack Ham leveled the Oakland passer just as he let go of the ball. "I got rapped in the head and hit in the ribs," Stabler said. "I could have played. I could have thrown short passes. But it would have been painful."

So he sat out the remaining 19 minutes or so of the game, and it didn't hurt a bit. The Raiders, with Mark van Eeghen finishing with 66 yards rushing, Davis adding 54 and Banaszak getting 46, controlled the ball for long stretches — and they controlled Pittsburgh when they didn't have it.

Bradshaw, throwing almost every time the ball was snapped as the game wore on, finished with completions on 14 of 35 attempts for 176 yards.

There were fears that the game would degenerate into a brawl, mostly because of the concussion Pittsburgh receiver Lynn Swann had suffered when safety George Atkinson slugged him during the opening game of the season. A few punches were, in fact, thrown, but nothing serious developed.

"It was a good, solid football game," Stabler said. "Nobody was out there taking cheap shots."

And for once, it was the Raiders who came out on top, ending a string of six AFC title games in which they came out second best to another team.

"We've lived with this thing for a long time," Madden said, "the talk about not being able to win the big one. Well, this year we finally did it right."

Davis-Built Team Overcame Injuries

OAKLAND (AP) — The team that Al Davis built — and injuries threatened to tear down — is returning to the Super Bowl.

"We've got one more game to play, and we're going to be champs," vowed linebacker Monte Johnson, one of the younger Oakland Raiders, after Sunday's 24-7 dethroning of the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Football Conference title game.

When asked what it meant to be going to the Super Bowl, Johnson replied frankly, "I don't know, I've never been there. But I know how the Steeler feel now. I've been in their position the last three years."

The Raiders had lost in the last three AFC title games, sending the Steelers to Super Bowl triumphs in 1974 and 1975, and had been eliminated one step from the Super Bowl six times since their appearance in Super Bowl II, which followed the 1967 season.

"No one deserves this more than us," offensive guard Gene Upshaw said after Sunday's victory. "It's been a long wait."

Upshaw, running back Pete Banaszak, receiver Fred Biletnikoff and cornerback Willie Brown are the only current Raiders remaining from the 1967 team.

"We've lived with this thing a long time, the talk about how we couldn't win the 'big one' — said

Coach John Madden after his team finally did.

"But we overcame a lot of adversity this year, went 13-1 and did it right," added the coach who lost two starting defensive linemen and fullback Marv Hubbard with injuries before the season began.

Madden was in his first year with the Raiders, as an assistant coach, in 1967. Davis, the one-time Oakland coach who now is principal owner of the National Football League team, fired John Rauch after the 1968 season and promoted Madden.

"I'm happy for John and the four of us who played nine years ago, but I'm especially happy for Al Davis. Every year, he dies for us," said Banaszak, who contributed 46 yards to the Raiders' solid running attack Sunday and scored on a third-period touchdown pass from Ken Stabler.

A smiling Davis exchanged congratulations with his players and coaches Sunday while Chuck Noll, coach of the Steelers, called it a season with "a lousy end."

Pittsburgh chances of again reaching the Super Bowl seemed dead five weeks into the season when the Steelers stood 1-4. But they overcame the poor start and also a mid-season injury to quarterback Terry Bradshaw to win their final nine games and reach the playoffs.

Sunday, however, the Steelers' pair of 1,000-yard rushers, Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier, were out with injuries.

"Nobody feels like fighting a war without weapons," said Noll, forced to use an unorthodox one-running back formation through most of the game.

But the way the Steelers' Joe Greene analyzed it later, "They rose to the occasion. They came at us better than we came at them. We have no excuses."

ONE-MAN SHOW: Minnesota Vikings cornerback Bobby Bryant tells of his actions in the Vikings' dressing room Sunday after Minnesota won the NFC title with a 24-13 win over the Los Angeles Rams. Bryant picked up a blocked field goal and ran it in for a score and late in the game intercepted a pass. (AP Wirephoto)

LUCKLESS QUARTERBACK: Los Angeles Rams quarterback Pat Hayden (11) is tackled by Minnesota Vikings defensive end Mark Mullaney while three other Vikings converge on the quarterback. The Vikings posted a 24-13 victory in the NFC Championship game Sunday in Minnesota. (AP Wirephoto)

Los Angeles' Tom Dempsey, who had a potential game-winning field goal blocked by Allen in a 10-10 overtime tie with the Vikings in the regular season, said the timing was off a fraction of a second on the play.

Foreman, finishing the day with 118 yards rushing, raced 62 yards to the Los Angeles two on the second play of the third period. He blasted in from the one two plays later, and Minnesota pulled ahead 17-0.

"They could have rolled over," said Grant, praising the Rams comeback. "They were every bit as good, maybe even better, than we thought they were going into the game."

Viking quarterback Fran Tarkenton, trying to hit rookie Sammy White in the end zone with a scoring pass that could have given Minnesota a 24-0 lead, was intercepted by Monte Jackson. The revived Rams swept 80 yards in six plays. Lawrence McCutcheon scoring on a 10-yard run.

Dempsey missed the point-after, and Minnesota held a 17-6 lead with less than 20 minutes to go in the game.

Two minutes later, Tarkenton fumbled at his own 22 and Jack Youngblood returned it to the Viking eight.

On third down, Haden lobbed a five-yard scoring pass to Harold Jackson and Dempsey added the extra point, shrinking the Minnesota advantage to 17-13.

"There was no doubt in my mind at that point that we'd win," said Haden. "We just felt we'd score again."

The Rams drove into Minnesota territory twice in the fourth quarter, but their final effort stalled at the 39 when Bryant stepped in front of Ron Jessie for his second interception of the game.

Foreman finally wiped out the Rams' hopes, taking a short Tarkenton pass at the Viking 40, and racing to the Los Angeles 12 before he was knocked out of bounds.

Foreman's backup, Sammy Johnson, smashed up the middle on a 13-yard scoring burst with 33 seconds left and the Rams were dead.

"You've got to give them credit," said Los Angeles Coach Chuck Knox. "They know how to win."

And, like Grant says, in more ways than one.

The Raiders never even came close to offering up a post-Christmas gift. Ken Stabler, who completed 10 of 16 passes for 88 yards and two touchdowns, never threw an interception. The Raiders never fumbled the ball away.

Pittsburgh, with reserve running back Reggie Harrison gaining 44 of the team's 72 yards rushing (three of them on a touchdown run in the second period), failed to get a first down for the first 19 minutes of play.

By then the Raiders led 10-0 on Errol Mann's 39-yard field goal and Clarence Davis' oneyard TD dive, the latter coming three plays after linebacker Willie Hall picked off a Bradshaw pass and returned it 24 yards to the Pittsburgh one.

Stabler's four-yard scoring pass to tight end Warren Bankston, a former Steeler, with 19 seconds to go in the half made it 17-7, then Stabler put the game away with a five-yard TD toss to Pete Banaszak in the third period.

The Steelers put Stabler away on that play. Linebacker Jack Ham leveled the Oakland passer just as he let go of the ball. "I got rapped in the head and hit in the ribs," Stabler said. "I could have played. I could have thrown short passes. But it would have been painful."

So he sat out the remaining 19 minutes or so of the game, and it didn't hurt a bit. The Raiders, with Mark van Eeghen finishing with 66 yards rushing, Davis adding 54 and Banaszak getting 46, controlled the ball for long stretches — and they controlled Pittsburgh when they didn't have it.

Bradshaw, throwing almost every time the ball was snapped as the game wore on, finished with completions on 14 of 35 attempts for 176 yards.

There were fears that the game would degenerate into a brawl, mostly because of the concussion Pittsburgh receiver Lynn Swann had suffered when safety George Atkinson slugged him during the opening game of the season. A few punches were, in fact, thrown, but nothing serious developed.

"It was a good, solid football game," Stabler said. "Nobody was out there taking cheap shots."

And for once, it was the Raiders who came out on top, ending a string of six AFC title games in which they came out second best to another team.

"We've lived with this thing for a long time," Madden said, "the talk about not being able to win the big one. Well, this year we finally did it right."

Davis-Built Team Overcame Injuries

OAKLAND (AP) — The team that Al Davis built — and injuries threatened to tear down — is returning to the Super Bowl.

"We've got one more game to play, and we're going to be champs," vowed linebacker Monte Johnson, one of the younger Oakland Raiders, after Sunday's 24-7 dethroning of the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Football Conference title game.

When asked what it meant to be going to the Super Bowl, Johnson replied frankly, "I don't know, I've never been there. But I know how the Steeler feel now. I've been in their position the last three years."

The Raiders had lost in the last three AFC title games, sending the Steelers to Super Bowl triumphs in 1974 and 1975, and had been eliminated one step from the Super Bowl six times since their appearance in Super Bowl II, which followed the 1967 season.

"No one deserves this more than us," offensive guard Gene Upshaw said after Sunday's victory. "It's been a long wait."

Upshaw, running back Pete Banaszak, receiver Fred Biletnikoff and cornerback Willie Brown are the only current Raiders remaining from the 1967 team.

"We've lived with this thing a long time, the talk about how we couldn't win the 'big one,'" said

Coach John Madden after his team finally did.

"But we overcame a lot of adversity this year, went 13-1 and did it right," added the coach who lost two starting defensive linemen and fullback Marv Hubbard with injuries before the season began.

Madden was in his first year with the Raiders, as an assistant coach, in 1967. Davis, the one-time Oakland coach who now is principal owner of the National Football League team, fired John Rauch after the 1968 season and promoted Madden.

"I'm happy for John and the four of us who played nine years ago, but I'm especially happy for Al Davis. Every year, he dies for us," said Banaszak, who contributed 46 yards to the Raiders' solid running attack Sunday and scored on a third-period touchdown pass from Ken Stabler.

A smiling Davis exchanged congratulations with his players and coaches Sunday while Chuck Noll, coach of the Steelers, called it a season with "a lousy end."

Pittsburgh chances of again reaching the Super Bowl seemed dead five weeks into the season when the Steelers stood 1-4. But they overcame the poor start and also a mid-season injury to quarterback Terry Bradshaw to win their final nine games and reach the playoffs.

Sunday, however, the Steelers' pair of 1,000-yard rushers, Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier, were out with injuries.

"Nobody feels like fighting a war without weapons," said Noll, forced to use an unorthodox one-running back formation through most of the game.

But the way the Steelers' Joe Greene analyzed it later, "They rise to the occasion. They came at us better than we came at them. We have no excuses."

Vikings In Fourth Super Bowl

Rams Frustrated Again

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have earned a record fourth Super Bowl trip and the frustrated Los Angeles Rams have been stopped one victory short for the third straight year.

"We want the whole world to know this time we're going to win the Super Bowl," vowed Viking quarterback Fran Tarkenton after Minnesota's 24-13 victory over the Rams Sunday in the National Football Conference title game.

The Vikings are 9-3 in Super Bowl competition, losing 23-7 to Kansas City in 1970, 24-7 to Miami in 1974 and 16-6 to Pittsburgh in 1975. The Rams have won four divisional titles in as many seasons under coach Chuck Knox but are winless in three NFC title games. Los Angeles lost the championship game to Dallas 37-7 last year and fell to the Vikings 14-10 two years ago.

Knox said he reminded his players they "had an excellent year. I told them not to think about the season as just this game."

Defensive end Jack Youngblood thought the Rams would get a shot at their first Super Bowl title after scoring two third-quarter touchdowns to erase most of a 17-0 deficit.

"After that, I thought we were gonna go," said Youngblood. "To get to the Super Bowl, you've got to cash in on big plays like that. Championship teams do that. It's tough when you are behind 17-0."

Youngblood, who led the Rams charge which sacked Tarkenton four times for losses of 34 yards, added: "It is frustrating. You've got to take advantage of things. We've been here three years in a row and we didn't."

Tarkenton was bothered by the Rams' rush and had one of his more erratic passing days in a season where he guided the Vikings to an 11-2-1 record. The 16-year veteran completed 12 of 27 passes for 143 yards and threw one interception when the Vikings were in field goal range while leading 17-0 midway through the third quarter.

Rams' quarterback Pat Haden, scrambling like a young Tarkenton, connected on nine of 22 passes for 161 yards. He was intercepted twice and sacked three times for losses of 18 yards.

"I didn't play worth a damn," said the rookie passer. "I had receivers wide open and I couldn't get them the ball."

Haden directed a Ram offense which outgained Minnesota 336-267 in total yardage and had a 21-13 edge in first downs.

"They're a very good football team," Haden said of the Vikings, "and they're better once we get inside the 20 yard line."

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant called the Rams "a great football team" for rallying from the 17-0 deficit. "They could have surrendered earlier and they didn't."

"The Ram defense is as good as we've ever played," added Tarkenton.

It was the third playoff defeat in Metropolitan Stadium for the Rams. The Vikings beat them 23-20 in 1969 en route to Minnesota's first Super Bowl appearance.

Lytle Versatile Back For U-M

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan describes his All-American back Rob Lytle as a speed and power runner who can dodge but isn't a will o' the wisp.

He can also block and against Southern California in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, Lytle will be used both as a tailback and a fullback.

"Harlan Huckleby is the fastest back we've got, and he's really fast," Schembechler told newsmen. "He can beat Lytle at 40 yards."

So when Huckleby is in the game, Lytle will be at fullback. But when Russ Davis comes in at fullback, Lytle goes to tailback. Lytle, a 185-pound senior, has broken most of Michigan's rushing records with 3,250 yards for his career and 1,402 for a single season.

Still many think his blocking outshines his running.

Huckleby ran a 9.5 time for 100 yards when just 16 and the 902 yards he gained during the 1976 regular season were the most ever by a sophomore in Michigan history.

Davis, also a sophomore, has run a 9.9 hundred. He missed two games with injuries this fall but is ready for the Rose Bowl.

Getting back to Lytle, Schembechler says he likes to have quickness at fullback, but originally moved Lytle there when there was a shortage of fullbacks a year ago and it was a choice between Gordon Bell and Rob.

"It would have been foolhardy to move a 175-pound Bell to fullback so it was Lytle," Schembechler explained.

Bell has graduated to the pros, Huckleby has come on and Lytle continues to work at both tailback and fullback. When Davis was hurt, it was primarily at fullback.

Asked to compare his current squad with the 1971 team he brought to the Rose Bowl, Schembechler sidestepped but did say, "If the 1971 team had passing, it would have been the best in the country that year. If we'd been able to throw, we'd really have had something going."

This year, left-handed quarterback Rick Leach gives an aerial dimension. During the 1976 campaign, the sophomore completed 46 of 83 passes for 887 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Schembechler knows he has speed on his current squad and says he went to option plays "after recruiting these people."

He added, "We were not a good option team last year but still were second in offense in the conference. We kept building on it and this is the result. I think we'd have a tough time running our offense, if we didn't have fast people."

Lottery Settles Bowl Ticket Allotment

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — There's one Michigan lottery that Gus Harrison, the state's lottery commissioner, has nothing to do with.

In fact, he might not even be able to get a ticket for himself.

He would have to consult with Al Renfrew, like so many other persons have been doing the last few weeks.

Garver Gets Nostalgia Award

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Right-hander Ned Garver, whose 20 victories in 1951 couldn't prevent the St. Louis Browns from finishing last, will receive the Brian P. Burnes Nostalgia Award during the St. Louis baseball writers' dinner Jan. 24.

Garver, 51, finished with a 20-12 record for the Browns, who won only 93 games in all and finished 46 games back in the American League standings. Garver resides in Noy, Ohio.

Others to be honored at the dinner will be Cardinals pitcher John Denny, the National League's earned run leader, San Diego pitcher Randy Jones, and Manager Whitey Herzog of the Kansas City Royals.

Renfrew is the University of Michigan ticket director and ever since the Wolverine football team earned the trip to the Rose Bowl by beating Ohio State Nov. 20, he has been deluged with requests for tickets.

Michigan, the Big Ten conference champion, meets Pacific Eight champion Southern Californian the Jan. 1 game here. Renfrew came out in the team's charter plane Dec. 20.

"We do about half a season's work in about two weeks," Renfrew, former Wolverine hockey coach, said of the bowl ticket distribution.

There are preferential customers for the $15.50 duets, of course, but basically, "We just have a lottery," Renfrew said. "You don't look at names. It is done almost all by lottery."

Don Canham, Michigan's athletic director, said his phone at Pasadena's Huntington Sheraton Hotel "has been ringing off the hook" because of people seeking tickets.

"The No. 1 thing this time of year is your mailing," said Renfrew. "It is horrendous. We just hope they all got their tickets."

"Then, of course, we have as many orders as we filled sent back. It means a lot of unhappy people."

He figures requests for about

15,000 tickets are refused.

"I would say a lot of them are from people who deserve them but we do not have them to give," Renfrew said.

"We get an allotment of around 21,000, including press tickets and your Big Ten tickets, so take 1,500 off that off the bat."

"Then there's the alumni tour. They have about 2,500 people. Then you've got the faculty tour, then the student tour, which is another 2,500. Then there're the students who buy their tickets from the faculty and just want to come out here. That is close to 2,400 right there. By the time you get down to legislators and everyone, you are not selling many to the general public."

There is no public sale of tickets.

Renfrew said he began getting Rose Bowl requests in the middle of the season but "we didn't do anything with them. We sent out an application to them the Monday after we played Ohio State."

Who are the privileged few assured of getting tickets?

"Paid up members of the Alumni Association or donors to the university," Renfrew explained. "You try and help these people first, of course."

Chuck Harris, assistant

athletic director, said he has taken many calls from persons expecting to be able to get tickets at the last minute simply by asking over the phone.

"Then there are plenty of calls from people who have not gotten their tickets in the mail yet," Harris said.

At Christmas time it is easy to see why that is a problem.

A judge in Chicago called Canham and said he was not able to use his two tickets.

"He asked me if he should give them away or send them back to me," Canham said. "I said, please give them to me. I can use them."

Renfrew is the University of Michigan ticket director and ever since the Wolverine football team earned the trip to the Rose Bowl by beating Ohio State Nov. 20, he has been deluged with requests for tickets.

Michigan, the Big Ten conference champion, meets Pacific Eight champion Southern Californian the Jan. 1 game here. Renfrew came out in the team's charter plane Dec. 20.

"We do about half a season's work in about two weeks," Renfrew, former Wolverine hockey coach, said of the bowl ticket distribution.

There are preferential customers for the $15.50 ducats, of course, but basically, "We just have a lottery," Renfrew said. "You don't look at names. It is done almost all by lottery."

Don Canham, Michigan's athletic director, said his phone at Pasadena's Huntington Sheraton Hotel "has been ringing off the hook" because of people seeking tickets.

"The No. 1 thing this time of year is your mailing," said Renfrew. "It is horrendous. We just hope they all got their tickets."

"Then, of course, we have as many orders as we filled sent back. It means a lot of unhappy people."

He figures requests for about

15,000 tickets are refused.

"I would say a lot of them are from people who deserve them but we do not have them to give," Renfrew said.

"We get an allotment of around 21,000, including press tickets and your Big Ten tickets, so take 1,500 off that off the bat."

"Then there's the alumni tour. They have about 2,500 people. Then you've got the faculty tour, then the student tour, which is another 2,500. Then there're the students who buy their tickets from the faculty and just want to come out here. That is close to 2,400 right there. By the time you get down to legislators and everyone, you are not selling many to the general public."

There is no public sale of tickets.

Renfrew said he began getting Rose Bowl requests in the middle of the season but "we didn't do anything with them. We sent out an application to them the Monday after we played Ohio State."

Who are the privileged few assured of getting tickets?

"Paid up members of the Alumni Association or donors to the university," Renfrew explained. "You try and help these people first, of course."

Chuck Harris, assistant

athletic director, said he has taken many calls from persons expecting to be able to get tickets at the last minute simply by asking over the phone.

"Then there are plenty of calls from people who have not gotten their tickets in the mail yet," Harris said.

At Christmas time it is easy to see why that is a problem.

A judge in Chicago called Canham and said he was not able to use his two tickets.

"He asked me if he should give them away or send them back to me," Canham said. "I said, please give them to me. I can use them."

ND-Penn State Have Class

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Their 1976 records aren't exactly what Notre Dame and Penn State consider up to par, but all that will be forgotten when two of the most famous schools in college football history square off tonight in the Gator Bowl.

"We're 7-4 and they're 8-3," says Penn State linebacker Kurt Allerman, "but you don't think of records in a game like this. You think of two great, traditional football teams, powerful teams with a lot of class."

"It's not that we're 7-4 and they're 8-3, but that we're Penn State and they're Notre Dame."

That's where the matchup comes in. You associate college football with Notre Dame because of their fine tradition and national publicity. You hear so much about Notre Dame. I've always wanted to play them."

The fifth meeting in the series — but the first in 48 years — finds Notre Dame ranked 15th in the country and Penn State tied for 20th. The game will be nationally televised on ABC starting at 9 p.m. EST.

A Notre Dame defeat would make it the losingest season for the Fighting Irish in 13 years; Penn State hasn't lost five games in one season since 1966.

Devine Happy At Notre Dame

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Dan Devine is very happy as football coach at Notre Dame. He leaves no doubts about it.

"I have the best college coaching job in the country," he said while preparing for Monday night's Gator Bowl game against Penn State.

"Yet he can't help but look back at his four-year stint as coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers and feel it could have been different."

"We were division champions my second year there with a record of 10-4," he recalled. "It was the only time in nine years Minnesota didn't win the division title."

"I thought I had a team I could build to somewhere between 10-4 and 12-2 by 1975. Then, in 1973, we got a streak of injuries and tough luck you wouldn't believe."

"When you get that, everybody has to stand shoulder to shoulder and work it out," Devine said. "We didn't do that. We had too many people desert the ranks. We would have come out of it in beautiful shape, but we had people who panicked because we lost a couple games."

He said Willie Buchanan, a rookie of the year he drafted, broke a leg one week and the next week one of the offensive tackles broke a leg.

"This is the time when you unite," Devine said. "We didn't, nor did the executive committee. We had a few players who later proved to be prima donnas. They had a few people they could take their complaints to — not the president. He was great."

"No doubt in my mind we could have come out of that situation. I've worked out tougher ones, but you have to have everybody with you."

Devine said he has no animosity about the Green Bay situation.

"But the little bits and pieces of half-truths have come out about contracts," he said. "I didn't negotiate John Brockington's contract. He had a contract for $28,000 the first year, $30,000 the second and $32,000 the third."

"When it was negotiated again, many reports said he got a $1 million contract, and that's pretty close, but I did not negotiate it. It was approved by the executive committee. 7-0."

Devine said some players who felt they were underpaid in pay insisted on being traded and others played out their options.

Devine resigned after Green Bay went 5-7-2 in 1973 and 6-8 in 1974.

"But I don't want to relive the past," Devine said. "I am happy now and I think I get less crabby mail than any place I've ever coached."

"One fellow did write me and say I'm playing Rick Slagter at quarterback because he's a Catholic. I didn't know if he was, so I asked him. He said he was a Methodist or Baptist. I forget which. I asked the other quarterbacks and they were all Catholics."

Joe Paterno's first year as head coach.

Many players in tonight's game were recruited by both schools but probably none has closer ties on both sides than Allerman, a senior from Kinnelon, N.J., and the latest in Penn State's string of outstanding linebackers.

His father, Kenneth, was a teammate of Ara Parseghian's at Miami of Ohio and later helped him coach Miami's freshman squad. And Parseghian was the head coach when Notre Dame went after Allerman.

"Notre Dame went through the normal recruiting process," Allerman recalls. "Ara didn't try to put any pressure on me and my father didn't try to direct me in any way. He was more of a counselor."

"In fact, Notre Dame was kind of late coming after me. I had all my visits planned, but I visited Notre Dame and I liked it. They were one of the top schools on my list."

"I enjoyed my visit and there was no one thing that turned me off. There was nothing I didn't like; it was just that I liked Penn State more. I probably knew more about Penn State because more kids from my area had gone there. And my father really enjoys coming to see me play. Penn State is only a 3½-hour drive. Notre Dame is a little too far."

Maloney Lost

DETROIT (AP) — A fractured left shoulder will sideline the Detroit Red Wings' Dan Maloney for six weeks, the National Hockey League team says.

The 26-year-old Maloney was admitted to University Hospital in Ann Arbor over the weekend. It has not been decided whether an operation will be necessary to repair the injury, a team spokesman said.

Maloney was hurt while checking Dennis Owcher of Pittsburgh during Detroit's 5-2 victory over the Penguins Thursday at Olympia.

Sooners Rout Comeback Cowboys

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The 41-7 throttling handed the University of Wyoming by the University of Oklahoma in the 1976 Fiesta Bowl may overshadow for some time the dramatic turnaround made by the Cowboys during the year.

However, Wyoming Coach Fred Akers promises that Saturday's mental mistakes and humiliating loss to the powerful eighth-ranked Sooners "won't be the last time folks hear about the Cowboys."

As the game drew to a close, Wyoming found itself trailing, 41-0. But with 22 seconds left on the clock, halfback Latrail Jones scored on a one-yard run, culminating a drive that began on the Cowboys' eight-yard line.

"Wyoming people can be proud of that last drive. Our players' heads were still high," said Akers. "That shows me they have a lot of respect for the game of football."

with an 8-3 mark and tied for the league championship.

It was Wyoming's first winning season since 1969, its first conference championship since 1968 and its first appearance in postseason play since a Jan. 1, 1968 berth in the Cotton Bowl.

"It was hard to accept the loss, but we have a lot of players coming back next year," said a dejected Jones following the game. "We should be back for Fiesta Bowl VII."

"This year was quite an experience," added Paul Nunu, Wyoming's outstanding middle linebacker. "It was our attitude that carried us through the season. We seemed to lose out intensely when Coach Akers decided to go to Texas, but we can't blame the loss on that."

Akers, an assistant at Texas before taking over the Cowboys two years ago, has been hired as Texas' new head coach.

Oklahoma, which entered the game with the nation's third-best rushing statistics, gained 415 yards on the ground in the Christmas classic while holding Wyoming to 153.

The Sooners didn't punt once during the game, and made wholesale substitutions in the second half after building a 20-0 lead during the first two quarters.

Haylicek's Career Is Near End

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — John Haylicek, perhaps the most famous "sixth man" in basketball history, is back on the Boston Celtic's bench.

The man who has played in more National Basketball Association games than any other now does as much sitting as playing, and as he sits and watches he can see that his playing days are numbered. It won't be long before the familiar jersey No. 17 is hoisted to the rafters of Boston Garden, joining the Celtics' other retired numbers.

"I'm playing it one at a time now," said the personable captain of the Celtics, one of the few universally respected and admired men in the sport.

"I've had some injuries, and we have a lot of new people this year. So I really can't look beyond this season and say

"Wyoming people can be proud of that last drive. Our players' heads were still high," said Akers. "That shows me they have a lot of respect for the game of football."

According to preseason forecasters, the Cowboys should have never gotten as far as they did. Coming off a 2-9 record in 1975, the Cowboys were picked to finish near the bottom of the Western Athletic Conference this year but instead wound up with an 8-3 mark and tied for the league championship.

"Hondo" has had his playing time reduced this season as coach Tommy Heinsohn tries to blend a new cast of front court players into a cohesive unit.

"Sidney Wicks, Curtis Rowe, Norm Cook, Fred Saunders... We have a lot of new talent," said Havlicek, ticking off the names of the newcomers. "And the only way they can become a team is with playing time."

Canham Irked Over 'M' Band Bowl Finances

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Don't ask Don Canham to beat the drum for Michigan's Marching Band.

Canham is bristling over the band's cry for money to go to the Rose Bowl football game and the candid Wolverines' athletic director refuses to hide his anger.

"The name of the game with the bands is who's got the biggest," Canham said. "You just run out of money because the bands are going crazy." What particularly irks him is that Michigan's football team is allowed to bring only 66 players for the Jan. 1 game against Southern California, while the band — which arrived Sunday — brought more than 200 performers.

To top it off, a Detroit newspaper several weeks ago donated $15,000 to help send the band out two days early. Canham said that embarrassed "the whole conference" by suggesting the university and the Big Ten were willing to kick in the necessary funds. And if that wasn't enough, President and Mrs. Gerald Ford mailed the band a personal check to help pay for the trip. Band director George Cavender wouldn't disclose the amount of the check but he said it was "very small."

"The budget for the Rose Bowl for the band was $60,000," Canham said. "That will bring 250 band members. Now our band is coming two days before the student and faculty tour. Sure they need more money. I went to the Big Ten and they gave them another $6,000. That's $72,000. You don't spend that much on your official party."

About the newspaper story of the $15,000 gift, Canham, red with anger, said: "They banner a headline saying they're sending the band to the Rose Bowl. Then they put it on the national wire. I'm really teed off about that. I think it was a bush thing...to do and you can quote me!"

"They had university students in band uniforms kissing newspaper officials on the front page and had all that stuff (saying) that they saved our life."

Canham said the band ignored his warnings that the newspaper would exploit the donation. "Can you imagine letting our football players go out in uniform to raise money and be plastered all over the front of a newspaper kissing some newspaper official?" Canham asked. "...Chevrolet and Oldsmobile have been giving our band and other bands money for years and have never said a word — and never gotten credit, either!"

Next year there will be tighter restrictions by the Big Ten on sending the conference representative's band to the Rose Bowl.

"I know that the Rose Bowl contracts and procedures that will be set up for the band for the Big Ten conference will be done by next year," he said. "There will be limitations on when they can go and how many they can take — the way it is with our football teams."

Canham said there was a limit of 196 band members from the Big Ten for the Rose Bowl, "but you can take more if you ask."

The band is scheduled to perform at a Big Ten dinner at the Hollywood Palladium on Tuesday, as well as at the Rose Parade and the game.

Hawks Halt Loss Streak

Bill White Posts First Coaching Victory

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Through 16 years in professional hockey, Bill White knew what it was like to be a winning player. Now White knows how it feels to be a winning coach.

White, who replaced Billy Reay as coach of the Chicago

Black Hawks last Wednesday, saw the Black Hawks break a 12-game winless streak with a 5-3 National Hockey League triumph over the Colorado Rockies. It was the former defenseman's first victory as a coach.

"I can't take credit for this," White said after J.P. Boredeau's two second-period goals powered the Hawks to victory. "The players did it all. I'm trying my best to get everyone available into the games and I'm learning something each new game."

"The players are the ones who deserve a pat on the back for this one."

In other NHL action, John Bucyk moved into fourth place on the all-time scoring list as Boston topped Cleveland 6-3, the New York Islanders edged their neighborhood rivals, the Rangers, 2-1, Pittsburgh beat Toronto 4-2 and Buffalo downed Washington 5-2.

Among those players who deserved a pat on the back for Chicago was Stan Mikita, who was made an assistant coach along with injured defenseman Bobby Orr when White became head coach. Mikita, out with an injury, had a goal and assist in his first action since Dec. 8.

Bucyk's second period goal, his 14th of the season, was the 54th of his career. That moved Bucyk ahead of Maurice Richard and into sole possession of fourth place on the goal-scoring parade.

The Bruins took a 4-1 lead before Cleveland stormed back in the second period, outshooting Boston 9-3 and closing within a goal. But Wayne Cashman and Terry O'Reilly scored to put the game out of reach in the final period.

Garry Howatt's breakaway score midway through the third period gave the Islanders their narrow victory over the Rangers. Superb goaltending by the Isles' Billy Smith and the Rangers' Gilles Gratton highlighted the tense battle. Smith kicked out 42 shots, while Gratton stopped 33.

Pittsburgh survived a third period blitz by Toronto to register their victory. The Maple Leafs outshot the Penguins 17-3 in the final stanza, but Pittsburgh goaltender Dunc Wilson held off the Leafs.

The Sabres maintained their two-point lead over Boston in the Adams Division by exploding for four goals in the middle period. Fourth-liners Fred Stanfield and Brian Spencer aided the attack with a goal apiece and linemate Gary McAdam had two assists.

'Blade' Balks At $2 Soup

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — "Blade" nearly bolted out the door over the price of soup in Azusa, but a grumbling waiter and a growling stomach forced a compromise.

Bob "Blade" Thornbladh, a former Michigan fullback who is now a graduate assistant football coach for the Wolverines, found himself in a very embarrassing spot while on an errand for Coach Bo Schembechler.

The assignment came after a recent practice by the Wolverines, who are in Pasadena to prepare for their Rose Bowl encounter Jan. 1 against Southern California.

Thornbladh was told by Schembechler to go out and get 15 tuna fish sandwiches and 15 cups of soup for the coaching staff, which was having its regular post-practice meeting at Citrus College in Azusa.

Thornbladh went to a party store to ask where he could find a good place to get a sandwich. He was sent to a restaurant "that looked like a nice place, but not TOO fancy."

He placed the order and was told it would take half an hour to prepare.

"So I came back later," Thornbladh said. "Everything was ready and when I went to pay, the guy said, 'That'll be $50.56.' I said, 'What?'"

"Then Gus (Larry Gustafson, another grad assistant) said he'd lend me the rest of the money and I said no way. Then he said, 'Let's bolt.'"

"The guy didn't want to lose the whole sale so he said why don't we just take the sandwiches and forget the soup. I said okay and paid $28 for the 15 sandwiches."

After explaining the situation to Schembechler, the Michigan coach said he'd like to find out how the $2 soup-to-go tastes, "so the next day I brought him back one soup," Thornbladh said. "He said it was pretty good, but not worth $2. The sandwiches were good, though. We went there the next two days."

Thornbladh, of Plymouth, Mich., was a sophomore along with wingback Gustafson during the 1971 season when the Wolverines lost to Stanford, 13-12, in the Rose Bowl. Thornbladh played a couple years as a linebacker in the National Football League for Kansas City.

Maravich Pours In 50 To Spark Jazz Win

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I couldn't believe Pete Maravich tonight," said Dick Motta.

The coach of the Washington Bullets no doubt voiced the opinion of many who watched Maravich perform in New Orleans Sunday night.

The multi-faceted star of the New Orleans Jazz was in peak form, scoring 50 points to lead his team to a 109-100 National Basketball Association victory over the Bullets.

Maravich did not start out like a ball of fire. He only scored four points in the first quarter. But then he had 16 in the second period and 15 in each of the last two periods.

In other NBA games, the New York Knicks defeated the Atlanta Hawks 103-88; the Houston Rockets trimmed the Indiana Pacers 83-78; the Buffalo Braves turned back the Cleveland Cavaliers 103-96; the San Antonio Spurs beat the Kansas City Kings 110-106; the Boston Celtics nipped the Denver Nuggets 103-101; the Los Angeles Lakers whipped the Milwaukee Bucks 107-89, and the Seattle SuperSonics nudged the Portland Trail Blazers 89-87.

With Maravich having a cold first quarter, the Bullets held a 34-20 lead at the end of the first

Washington's Elvin Hayes had all of his 30 points in the first three periods to keep the Bullets in the contest, but Maravich's 15 in the fourth quarter helped New Orleans pull away.

Maravich, whose performance nearly equalled his career-high 51 earlier this season, got help from Freddie Boyd's 22 points. Washington got 25 from Phil Chenier.

Earl Monroe scored 28 points to lead New York over Atlanta.

Tom Henderson's 25 points was tops for the Hawks, who have lost five straight games. The Knicks have won four of their last five games.

John Johnson scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half, leading a balanced Houston attack that carried the Rockets past Indiana.

John Shumate converted a three-point play to derail a Cleveland comeback and help Buffalo beat the Cavaliers. Cleveland had cut the margin to 94-91 with 4:28 remaining, until the big center hit a shot and was fouled with 4:12 left.

Larry Kenon and Allan Bris-low combined for 33 points in the second half to lead San Antonio over Kansas City.

Guards Charlie Scott and Jo Jo White combined for 55 points and Boston's aggressive defense held Denver scoreless during the final 3½ minutes, leading the Celtics over the Nuggets.

Rookie Earl Tatum's 18-foot jump shot with 4½ minutes remaining began a 13-0 scoring blitz as Los Angeles came from behind to beat Milwaukee. The Lakers got a pro-high 16 points from Tatum.

Rookie Dennis Johnson and Nick Weatherspoon sparked a fourth-quarter rally to carry Seattle past Portland. Weatherspoon hit successive baskets to put Seattle in front to stay, 75-73 with 5:30 to play.

Quick U-M vs. Big USC In Rose

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Michigan's Wolverines appear a little quicker and the University of Southern California Trojans a little bigger approaching Saturday's 63rd Rose Bowl game, which could decide the national collegiate football championship.

Both clubs boast 10-1 records with one upset for each along the 1976 campaign. Michigan, co-champion of the Big Ten, won the trip by a 22-0 victory over Ohio State, which has represented the conference the past four years.

Southern California captured the Pacific-8 title outright to earn the host's position for the Jan. 1 clash, with its expected crowd of 106,000 plus a national television audience.

Bo Schembechler hopes for better luck in his third Rose Bowl appearance as coach of Michigan.

He suffered a heart attack just before the Wolverines lost to Southern California 10-3 in 1970. Then rain halted many of his scheduled practice sessions before a 13-12 loss to Stanford in 1972.

"But the third time, you see, is the charm," he declared. "USC is better than any team we've played this year, so no team could be a more formidable opponent. I don't know if this game could be (for the title) but it should be."

Michigan was ranked No. 2 nationally during the regular season in The Associated Press poll and Southern California third. Their game could be for the title if No. 1 Pittsburgh should lose to Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

Both Rose Bowl teams boast a pair of All-Americans and the matchup of running backs Ricky Bell of USC and Rob Lyle of Michigan should be a dandy. Bell presents more power and Lyle more finesse.

In addition to those two, the All-Americans are offensive end Jim Smith of Michigan and defensive back Dennis Thurman of USC, who also returns kicks.

Back in 1902, Michigan inaugurated the Rose Bowl game with a 49-0 victory over Stanford and in the Wolverines' next appearance, in 1948, they beat USC by the same score.

This is visit No. 6 for Michigan, which has a 4-2 record — but Schembechler is 0-2. This time his club is listed as a six-point favorite.

Southern California boasts a 14-8 record as the team playing in the Jan. 1 classic the most times. This year, it will be a new coach directing the operation at the 2 p.m. PST kickoff. John McKay left for professional Tampa Bay after 16 years at the helm.

Robinson says it hasn't been hard to take over. "When you deal with the team, there is no pressure. When you deal with the press and the alumni you just do the best you can. The fact we've been successful certainly has helped. I would have felt pressure if we were 1-10."

Robinson's tenure was off to a rocky start when Missouri whipped his Trojans 46-25 in the season opener. But then they didn't lose again. Robinson believes the bowl game should be listed as a toss-up.

Michigan lost its chance to be

No. 1 at season's end when Purdue won a 16-14 upset.

Robinson was asked if the Rose Bowl wasn't just another home game for his Trojans, since the school and the stadium are only about 15 miles apart.

"Oh, no," came the quick answer. "You walk in that place and it's something special."

Robinson was there as an assistant to McKay before spending the 1975 season with the professional Oakland Raiders.

"The great thing is that you are talking about two great football teams. It will be something special to see USC and Michigan and it should be for the national championship."

bowl game, with a month to prepare, you can make changes.

During the year you don't have the opportunity to change much."

So fans and the NBC-TV audience could see something different from both sides.

USC, with Vince Evans at quarterback, has passed more than did the Wolverines.

"We do pass, but when we do it's for the big stuff," Schembechler said. "In Jim Smith we probably have the best receiver in the country."

Left-handed sophomore Rick Leach handles the quarterback job and does the throwing for Michigan, which averaged nine passes per game and 18.8 yards on each completion.

USC averaged 19 passes per game with 15.3 average per completion.

Gary Jeter, the 6-5 Trojan defensive tackle who weighs 260, will be starting his third Rose Bowl game — he missed last year when UCLA won the Pac-8 and then upset Ohio State 21-10.

Jeter has plenty of respect for the Michigan offense, saying, "Overall, we're a little bigger but their offensive line is awfully big, too, and has a lot of blocking schemes. This could be the biggest Rose Bowl game of all time."

Kentucky's Rick Robey Has Tall Problems

LEXINGTON, Ky. — (AP) — Being a human skyscraper is a big boon in basketball, but there are times off the court when it has its problems. Just ask Kentucky's Rick Robey.

"I remember back in high school when a bunch of us went to an amusement park and everybody was riding the roller coaster, but I couldn't get in because my legs were too long," Robey said.

"And when Mike (Phillips) and I double date, if we're going a long way, we sit in the front seat of the car and put our dates in the back. They don't like that much, but they have to understand," he added.

Both Robey and Phillips are about 6-11, and Robey says that nothing much in our world of today is built to accommodate people that big.

"Most doorways are about 6-8, so you get in the habit of ducking when you walk through one. I've hit my head enough times that I put my chin down and duck even if the doorway is eight feet tall," he said.

"I'm happy about being tall, though. There are some disadvantages, but in playing basketball there are a lot of advantages," he added.

Robey's coach, Joe B. Hall, isn't nearly so tall, but in his years as both a player and a coach, he has been around enough tall ones to know their problems.

"We had one guy — I won't tell you his name — on our team who used to walk in the gutter when he was with other people so he wouldn't look so tall," Hall said.

Perhaps the most disconcerting thing about being super tall is to have people stop you on the street, in airports, bus stations, just anyplace to ask just how tall you are.

"I remember one kid who really was bugged by that," Hall said. "He said it was like a guy with a big wart on his nose having people ask him how long it had been there."

Travel isn't always easy for the big man, either. In motels, the sink is too low, the mirror is too low and you have to hunch down to get under a shower built for a "runt" of six feet or so.

"The ceilings in airplanes aren't made for a guy 6-11, and the seating arrangement isn't too good, either," Robey said. "I always try to grab that front seat so people won't be leaning their seats back into my knees."

But even on the road, there are advantages. "In the swimming pool at a motel, in six feet of water, most other people are treading water for their life and I can just stand there," Robey said.

At home on campus, it's a bit easier to be the big man. They are provided with seven-foot beds, and the shower heads in the locker room are eight feet off the floor, "up near the ceiling," Robey said.

And on the basketball floor, it's a real plus. Robey is the No. 2 scorer for seventh-ranked Kentucky, averaging 13.3 points a game and hitting 56.1 per cent of his field goal shots.

Robey recently became engaged to Mary Diane McCord, a university student who lives in Lexington. She is just a smidgen over 5-3.

"People kid us all the time and ask if we carry a stool around with us so she can kiss me goodnight," Robey said, declining to answer the question.

Winnipeg Unable To Get Respect

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Winnipeg Jets just don't get any respect.

They had just returned from an unsuccessful appearance at the Izvestia hockey tournament in Moscow and, in their first league game following the tournament, were humiliated 12-3 by the Quebec Nordiques.

After spotting Winnipeg a goal in the opening minute of play, Quebec poured in seven consecutive first-period goals to quickly put the game out of reach.

"I thought before the game we might have a tough first period and get down a goal or two," said Winnipeg Coach Bobby Kromm after the massacre. "But not seven to one."

In other World Hockey Association games, Calgary beat Cincinnati 6-3, New England defeated Minnesota 3-2, Birmingham overwhelmed Houston 6-2 and San Diego came from behind to defeat Indianapolis 2-1.

Most of the Quebec damage was done by Real Cloutier.

Returning to action after missing five games due to a knee injury, he tied two WHA records — most points in a period with five and most points in a game with seven.

New England's rookie center Brett Callaghan scored his first WHA goal and it was a big one, giving the Whalers their victory over Minnesota. Callaghan's goal came off a rebound when Fighting Saints goaltender Louie Levasseur gambled by coming out the net — and lost.

Calgary took a 5-0 first-period lead and rolled to its victory.

Both teams are on streaks but moving in opposite directions. The Cowboys have won four out of their last five, while the Stingers have now lost five in a row.

Mark Napier, Birmingham's 18-year-old captain, hasn't had that much of a career yet but he will probably remember the goal he scored against the Aeros.

Besides giving him a total of 30 for the season, it came on a penalty shot.

Defensemen just aren't what they used to be. Years ago, they were content to stay back at the red line and pass the puck ahead to their speedier, more mobile forwards. But since Bobby Orr came on the scene, the game has changed. Witness the game at San Diego.

Paul Shmyr broke out of his end with the puck and fellow defenseman Randy Legge trailing. Exchanging passes, the two broke in alone on Indianapolis' goaltender with Shmyr beating him for the winning goal two minutes into the final period.

Dayton Now Co-Leader; Ft. Wayne Dumps Wings

Three Dayton players scored two goals each as the Gems defeated Toledo in International Hockey League action and moved back into a tie with the Goaldiggers for first place in the South Division.

Jack Patterson, Frank Werner and Bill Riley each fired in two goals Sunday night to pace the Gems to their 8-2 victory. Dayton peppered Toledo goalie Pierre Chagnon with 44 shots, 25 in the second period alone.

In other IHL games, Flint overtook Columbus, 6-3; Port Huron edged Saginaw, 3-1; and Fort Wayne dumped Kalamazoo, 4-2.

Mike Clarke and Jim Koleff each scored twice as Flint came from behind to defeat Columbus. The Generals overcame a 3-2 deficit with four goals in the final period.

Second-period goals by Tom Ross, Len Fontaine and Bud Stefanski gave the Port Huron Flags their victory over Saginaw.

Rookie left wing Fern LeBlanc scored a pair of power play goals, his 20th and 21st of the season, to account for all the Kalamazoo scoring.

Judges Sentence Fourteen

Two people demanded examinations and 14 were sentenced recently in Berrien Fifth District court.

Edward C. Syring, 46, of Bay City demanded examination on a charge of importing untaxed liquor into the state without authority Dec. 23. Bond was set at $500.

Syring also was sentenced to fine and costs of $200 or 30 days in jail for impaired driving. He was arrested on 1-94 in Coloma township by Deputy Sheriff Jack Root who said five cases of liquor were seized. Arrested with Syring was Barbara Anderson, 17, Bay City, who pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk and disorderly and was sentenced to $32 or two days in jail.

Also demanding examination was Rowland J. Bergez, 30, of 807 1/2 Michigan avenue, St. Joseph, on a charge of possession with intent to deliver marijuana Dec. 23 in St. Joseph. Bond was set at $3,000.

Sentenced were: Kenneth E. Shirley, 27, of Route 2, Box 171, Avery road, Three Oaks, $250 and two years probation for impaired driving, second offense, Oct. 28 in Lincoln township. Mark A. McDaniel, 20, of 881 Schuh court, Benton Harbor, and Michael G. Russell, 23, of 1973 Union street, Benton township, both 90 days in jail for petty larceny, reduced from breaking and entering a motor Five personal injury traffic accidents were investigated in Benton township Friday and Saturday.

Benton Township Patrolman Steve Hansen said he investigated a two-car accident Saturday in which one of the drivers fled from the scene on foot. The accident occurred at the intersection of Crystal avenue and Territorial road in front of the township police station about 9 p.m.

Treated and released from Mercy hospital for injuries sustained in the crash was Barb Collins, 18, route 7, Dowagiac. She was a passenger in an auto driven by Dana Berry, 22, of 480 Baldwin, Benton Township.

The driver of the other auto fled on foot after the crash, Hansen said. An investigation continues.

Berrien sheriff's Deputy Sam Donoho reported he investigated a two-vehicle crash at the corner of Reeder street and Napier avenue, Benton township, Saturday about 8:45 p.m. Donoho reported a van driven by Dennis M. Hill, 17, of 1837 Grove avenue, Benton township, was stopped on Napier for repairs when it was struck from behind by an auto driven by Donald E. Vales, 31, of 2704 West Glenford road, Stevensville.

Treated and released from Mercy hospital were Mark J. Woods, 17, of 283 Pipestone road, Benton Harbor, a passenger in Hill's van, and Jennifer Vales, 5, a passenger in Vales' auto. Also treated and released from Mercy was Hill.

Vales was issued a ticket for having an expired operators license. An investigation continues.

Three people were treated and released from Memorial hospital Friday after a two-car crash on Napier avenue near Benton Center road about 6 p.m.

Benton township police reported the accident occurred when an auto driven by Kenneth D. Schneider, 37, of route 1, Park road, Eau Claire, skidded on ice and went out of control striking an auto driven by Michael Norton, 27, of 2047 Krolow, Fairplain.

Treated and released were Jerry Norton, 2, of 2048 Krolow, Carol Norton, 24, of the same address, and Marsha Shultz, 15, of 221 Bradford, drive, Fairplain. All were passengers in Norton's car. No ticket was issued.

Township police also investigated two single-car accidents Friday.

Police reported an auto driven by Benny L. Lowery, 44, of 650 South Crystal, Benton Harbor, went off Territorial road near Dexter and hit a tree stump. Lowery was treated and released at Mercy hospital. He was ticketed for reckless driving.

The accident occurred about 9:41 p.m.

Township Patrolman Dave Nelson reported Jeffrey D. Kurbis, 17, of 2547 Barbara drive, Benton township, was injured when the auto he was driving on Tower drive left the road and struck a light pole about 8:45 a.m. Kurbis told police he apparently fell asleep. He was treated and released at Mercy hospital. No ticket was issued.

DRIVER FLEES ACCIDENT: Benton township police are seeking driver of car at right who reportedly fled from crash scene in front of township police station on foot. Crash occurred Christmas night and two people in car at left were released after treatment at Mercy hospital, police said. Police said car is registered to Mt. Morris, Mich., man, whom police have been unable to contact and investigation is continuing. (Staff photo)

United States Slips Notch In World Income Ratings

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans slipped another notch on the list of the world's wealthiest people in 1975, and there are now five countries where per capita income is higher, the World Bank says.

The World Bank also said there has been a virtual stagnation of growth among industrialized nations since 1973 and continuing increases in population among developing nations.

The United States' per capita income of $7,000 was exceeded last year by Kuwait, $11,310; United Arab Emirates, $10,480; Qatar, $8,320; Switzerland, $8,050; and Sweden, $7,880. The World Bank said in a report released Sunday.

Per capita income is figured by dividing a nation's gross national product, or total production of goods and services, by its population.

Qatar, an oil-producing nation, was a new addition to the World Bank list in 1975. The other nations listed above the United States all had higher incomes than the United States in

Other nations with incomes near the United States were Denmark, $6,820; Canada, $6,650; Germany, $6,610; and Norway, $6,540. Denmark and Norway made substantial gains and could surpass the United States in the 1976 list, if the trend continues.

The World Bank cautioned, however, that its figures for 1975 were preliminary and based on tentative information in some cases.

The United States per capita income was up from $6,670 the year before, the bank said. However, the increase was not adjusted for the impact of inflation, which would make the gain somewhat less.

The bank said there were 19 nations with per capita incomes exceeding $5,000 in 1974 with combined total populations of 412 million.

By contrast, there were 75 nations with populations totaling 2.3 billion where income was less than $500. There were 33 nations with populations of more than 1.2 billion where income was less than $200.

The bank said significant changes in the relative value of currencies in recent years has caused the shift in income ranking among developed nations.

For example, the German mark and Swiss franc have increased in value, while the French franc and British pound have decreased. The U.S. dollar has remained relatively stable for the past year, although it has lost ground against German and Swiss currencies.

While economies in much of the industrialized world expanded in dollar terms, there actually was a shrinking of over-all incomes in terms of real buying power, the bank said.

In 1974, the bank said, the U.S. per capita income in so-called real terms was down $170 from the year before, while income in Switzerland increased in real terms by $130 and in Sweden by $270.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, had the largest real increase in income of any nation in 1974, up $560 to $2,830.

For the industrialized world as a whole, per capita income shrank 2.1 per cent in 1975, following a decline of six-tenths of 1 per cent in 1974. In the last big growth year, 1973, incomes gained 5.1 per cent.

In other categories of nations, incomes grew one-tenth of 1 per cent for lower-income oil producers, 3.6 per cent for higher-income oil producers, 1.6 per cent for lower-income developing nations and 1.6 per cent for middle-income developing nations.

Incomes decreased two-tenths of 1 per cent for higher-income developing nations.

Over-all economic output, as measured by the Gross National Product, declined 1.4 per cent in industrialized countries in 1975, but grew in all others. It was up 2.7 per cent for lower-income oil producers, 6.9 per cent for higher-income oil producers, 4.1 per cent for middle-income developing nations, and 2.1 per cent for higher-income developing nations.

Judges Sentence Fourteen

Two people demanded examinations and 14 were sentenced recently in Berrien Fifth District court.

Edward C. Syring, 65, of Bay City demanded examination on a charge of importing untaxed liquor into the state without authority Dec. 23. Bond was set at $500.

Syring also was sentenced to fine and costs of $200 or 30 days in jail for impaired driving. He was arrested on I-94 in Coloma township by Deputy Sheriff Jack Root who said five cases of liquor were seized. Arrested with Syring was Barbara Anderson, 17, Bay City, who pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk and disorderly and was sentenced to $32 or two days in jail.

Also demanding examination was Rowland J. Bergez, 30, of 807 1/2 Michigan avenue, St. Joseph, on a charge of possession with intent to deliver marijuana Dec. 23 in St. Joseph. Bond was set at $3,000.

Sentenced were: Kenneth E. Shirley, 27, of Route 2, Box 171, Avery road, Three Oaks, $250 and two years probation for impaired driving, second offense, Oct. 28 in Lincoln township. Mark A. McDaniel, 20, of 881 Schulz court, Benton Harbor, and Michael G. NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Moves Ahead

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved ahead today in buying attributed to hopes for a year-end rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose a fraction in the early going, and gainers held a 7-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

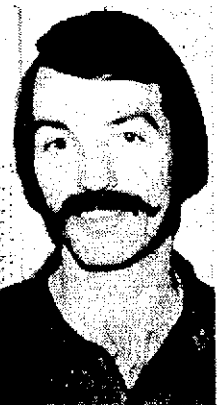

Trading was fairly active. Brokers said the market was benefitting from a bullish mood prompted by recollections of strong year-end showings by stock prices in several recent years.

Today's early volume leaders included Exxon, up 1/2 at 51 1/2; General Electric, unchanged at 53; and Tandy, ahead 3/4 at 41 3/4. IBM jumped 2 3/4 to 274. An analyst quoted in the Wall Street Journal said he believes the company will declare a 3-for-2 stock split early in 1977.

On Thursday, before the Christmas weekend, the Dow Jones industrial average posted a 1.08 gain to 983.62.

But losers slightly outnumbered gainers on the NYSE. Big Board volume came to 24.58 million shares.

Bankers Agree On Merger

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Two Michigan bank holding companies have reached an agreement in principle to merge into a corporation with more than $1.3 billion in assets and 18 affiliated banks.

The companies are American Bankcorp, Inc., of Ann Arbor and Lansing, and First National Financial Corp., of Kalamazoo.

Under terms of the tentative agreement announced Friday, First National would exchange 1.455 shares of common stock for each share of American Bankcorp.

The proposal is subject to the approval of directors and shareholders of each company, plus regulatory authorities.

It also hinges on the completion of American Bankcorp's recently announced plan to acquire at least 80 per cent of the Muskegon Bank and Trust Co.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Inflation Threat To Early Retiree

Q. We are in our late 40s and plan to retire in four or five years. Do you think it is possible for us to live on the interest earned by $200,000? Secondly, we sold some commercial real estate at a good profit. Should we offset that gain by taking a loss on 300 shares of a real estate investment trust which have fallen sharply, or do you think they may recover? Have we overlooked any dangers in planning to retire so early?

A. Relying in one's early 40s raises the primary question of inflation. I'm sure there are many retirees today who wish they had income of $16,000 a year—now. Whether that same $16,000 will be sufficient in 1986, or '96, or thereafter, is an entirely different kettle of fish. Judging by the way the cost of living has soared in the last decade, the outlook for getting by on $16,000 a year for the balance of your lives is not too rosy.

The only reasonable solution that comes to mind would be for you to cut back your immediate income expectations from this $200,000 by putting some of it into common stocks yielding less than 8 per cent, but giving you some hope of dividend increases as the dollar continues to lose buying power. Bonds paying 8 per cent today include best quality bonds. But I don't see how you can tie up even as much as $100,000 in that category to get that generous yield. At least $100,000—if not more—should be put to work in equities which offer hope of increasing income.

Some REITs have been a bit better lately on hopes of Federal aid to housing. But I'd hate to pay a tax on that big real estate profit, all the while carrying over a big loss on the REITs.

There may be some market risk, but I'd consider selling the REITs to establish the loss and buying other REITs of the same quality immediately, or waiting 31 days, and then buying back your old shares.

Q. I'm 31, considering putting $15 a month in an insurance program which will pay me $14,785 when I'm 65 years old. However, with inflation, will I have profited at all? What if the $14,785 has buying power, then, of only $1,400? I'm single, no family, and am not interested in insurance protection. Seems to me I may not be gaining much.

A. Yep—you've said it all. Q. I've attended three different seminars on stock options. All offered glowing promises of making money and no possibility of losing money. I'm confused. Are all these people millionaires? There must be some pitfalls. What are the "con" sides which were not given?

A. You can make money on options. You can lose money on options. You can make money trading pork bellies; you can lose money trading pork bellies. As in all market situations, the amount of profit you hope to make and the amount of loss you may suffer increase as the risk increases. You can play options pretty close to the vest, take small profits and limit your risks. Or you can go all out, try to outguess the market and take chances on big gains or big losses. There is no way to eliminate all chance of loss.

If you play options conservatively, you hold the stock against which you sell an option. The risk of loss stems from the fact that the stock may lose far more in value than you were paid for the option. These are called "covered" options.

If you sell "naked" options (against which you do not own the stock) you are increasing your risks. There are methods of hedging, of course, but the risk element is always present. I think any securities owner has a right to consider options... if he understands the risk he may be taking, as well as the limitations he is setting on profits.

Down On Red Dust

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—The factory that turned Snoopy into the Red Baron is going to be under the watchful eye of Michigan environmental officials. The state Air Pollution Control Commission has announced a plan to cut down emissions of red dust from a Neogame iron pelletizing plant owned by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co. Area residents complained at a public hearing that the red dust turns birch trees pink. One woman said her white dog, Snoopy, was re-named the Red Baron after the dust changed his color. Under the plan, red dust emissions will be monitored round-the-clock. The settlement also includes a provision for closing the facility in emergencies.

Taverns Facing Violation Hearings

Operators of three establishments in southwestern Michigan will be given hearings Jan. 4 on state liquor law violation charges, according to a release from the State Liquor Control commission.

All three are charged with their premises being occupied after the legal closing hour. The three are: Ingier Enterprises, Inc., operator of H.I.'s Saloon, 214 State street, St. Joseph; Red Rooster Coffee Shops, Inc., 227 Main street, St. Joseph; and Eldon Burned Hallmark, 4135 Main street, Grand Junction.

The three hearings are scheduled in the afternoon of Jan. 4 at the Kalamazoo county law enforcement facility building, 1500 Lamont, Kalamazoo.

Saudis To Hike Output Of Oil

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Saudi Arabia will boost oil production to 10 million barrels a day from its current 8.3 million as a result of the pricing dispute among members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, a reliable oil journal said today.

At the same time, OPEC's secretary general said in Vienna that the cartel's split over oil prices has caused some uncertainty and hinted that the second step of a two-part price rise adopted by 11 of the 13 OPEC members earlier this month might be waived.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) held their price rises to 5 per cent at an OPEC meeting at which the other members decided on a 10 per cent hike effective Jan. 1, and 5 per cent more July 1.

The Saudi oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, threatened after the meeting in Doha, Qatar, to flood the market with lower-priced Saudi oil.

The Middle East Economic Survey here quoted authoritative sources as saying the Saudi production rise would average 1.5 million barrels a day beginning Jan. 1, 1977, and would be reviewed every three months thereafter. There was no immediate word whether the UAE also would boost production.

Saudi Arabia is OPEC's largest producer. The Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), which produces most Saudi crude, has the capacity to pump out 11.8 million barrels a day, the survey said.

It said Saudi authorities have imposed a production ceiling of 8.5 million barrels a day, and actual Aramco output for the first 11 months of 1976 has averaged about 8.3 million.

Saudi price-setters also broadened the difference between their market grade—Arabian light at $12.00 a barrel—and inferior heavy grades, the economic survey said.

The marker crude is used as a reference point for setting oil prices. Other grades of oil are priced higher and lower according to their quality and the ease with which they can be marketed.

"While prices for lighter crudes... have been raised by the full 5 per cent, prices for (medium and heavy grade crude) have been increased by only 3.6 per cent and 3.0 per cent respectively," the newsletter said.

The survey said the other 11 OPEC members agreed at Doha to buttress their two-step price increase "by reducing their own production by an equivalent volume on a pro rata coordinated basis."

M.O. Feyide of Nigeria, the OPEC secretary general, said at a news conference in Vienna, "I assume that in the next six months, we will see how the market shapes up."

He added that the main factors would be production, the quantity of available oil and the demand in consuming countries.

AUTO CORROSION — ITS COST

A startling half of all of you who own cars are living in areas where costly corrosion can be attacking your auto's doors, front and rear quarter panels, rocker panels, fenders, the back window, even under the vinyl top on the roof. You don't have to live in the snow belt to be in a rust-prone region. Salt and sulphur — the latter from sea air — may be the culprits. So may industrial air pollution. So may exhaust fumes.

And this is no minor expense. Rust and corrosion can be costing you more than $100 a year in additional depreciation on your car. Worse, this expense need not be endured. Preventive treatments within the first 3,000 miles of purchase can eliminate the danger.

Countless thousands of cars, 10-15 years old, are still giving their owners good service and showing little evidence of structural deterioration. Equal numbers, less than 10 years old, are in junkyards because rust has eaten away their bodies or weakened their frames.

Between the extremes, warns the Department of Transportation, are uncounted thousands more which have sustained varying degrees of structural decay — some merely unsightly, others actually a threat to life and still on the streets.

Treatments for the interior (unseen areas) within the walls of your auto's body can run from $70 to $150. Treatments for the exterior or outer surface can add $115 to $150 to the car's initial cost. In merely a three-year span, a car which has been treated in the snow belt can be worth $300-$500 more than an untreated car.

You are misled if you believe that traditional optional auto undercoatings prevent corrosion, say industry leaders. This undercoating serves primarily as a sound deadener. Moreover, the skill in applying a rust retardant is equal to or greater than the compound used.

"No rustproofing compound will protect surfaces caked with dirt, flaking, rust, water-soaked crevices or missed areas," says the Corrosion Engineers Assn. "If not thoroughly applied, the protection will not be achieved. The results are no better than the skill of the mechanics."

Before buying a used car, examine it carefully for rust, cautions the National Highway Safety Commission. Look at the body and the underside (frame, cross member).

Be alert for signs of repainting and body putty to disguise area where rust already has damaged the car.

If you're buying a station wagon, remove the spare tire and examine the tire well. Lift the mat on the floor in the third seat area, check for rust and metal weakness. In other cars, lift the mat in the trunk, carpeting in passenger areas.

Drive the car through a car wash to spot leaks. For periodic maintenance, keep your car clean, wax at least twice a year, hose down the underside twice a year if you live in an area where sand and salts are used on roads. If you live in sand country flush the vehicle underside. Keep drain holes in the bottom of the car doors open. After washing, leave car doors ajar for a few minutes to permit water drainage. Wash your car as soon as feasible after driving in heavy snow or slush. Wash off any white film on your car during winter driving (a sure sign of salt).

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Moves Ahead

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved ahead today in buying attributed to hopes for a yearend rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose a fraction in the early going, and gainers held a 7-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly active. Brokers said the market was benefitting from a bullish mood prompted by recollections of strong yearend showings by stock prices in several recent years.

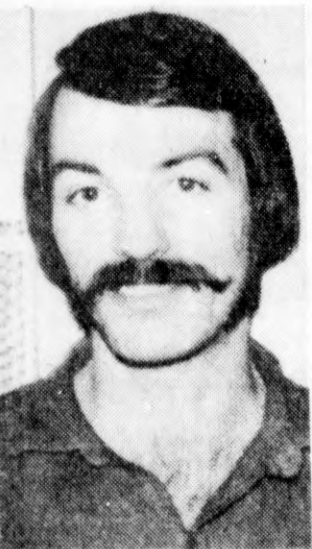

Today's early volume leaders included Exxon, up 1/8 at 51 1/2; General Electric, unchanged at 53; and Tandy, ahead 3/4 at 41 1/2.

IBM jumped 2 3/4 to 274. An analyst quoted in the Wall Street Journal said he believes the company will declare a 3-for-2 stock split early in 1977.

On Thursday, before the Christmas weekend, the Dow Jones industrial average posted a 1.08 gain to 985.62.

But losers slightly outnumbered gainers on the NYSE. Big Board volume came to 24.56 million shares.

The exchange's composite index added .05 to 56.49. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .64 at 105.90.

OPENS LOT: Larry Darling, Hartford, has opened used car lot at 210 West Main street, Hartford. It has been named Larry's Used Cars.

Bankers Agree On Merger

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Two Michigan bank holding companies have reached an agreement in principle to merge into a corporation with more than $1.3 billion in assets and 18 affiliated banks.

The companies are American Bankcorp, Inc., of Ann Arbor and Lansing, and First National Financial Corp., of Kalamazoo.

Under terms of the tentative agreement announced Friday, First National would exchange 1.485 shares of common stock for each share of American Bankcorp.

The proposal is subject to the approval of directors and shareholders of each company, plus regulatory authorities.

It also hinges on the completion of American Bankcorp's recently announced plan to acquire at least 80 per cent of the Muskegon Bank and Trust Co.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Inflation Threat To Early Retiree

Q. We are in our late 40s and plan to retire in four or five years. Do you think it is possible for us to live on the interest earned by $200,000? Secondly, we sold some commercial real estate at a good profit. Should we offset that gain by taking a loss on 500 shares of a real estate investment trust which have fallen sharply, or do you think they may recover? Have we overlooked any dangers in planning to retire so early?

A. Retiring in one's early 50s raises the primary question of inflation. I'm sure there are many retirees today who wish they had income of $16,000 a year — now. Whether that same $16,000 will be sufficient in 1986, or '96, or thereafter, is an entirely different kettle of fish. Judging by the way the cost of living has soared in the last decade, the outlook for getting by on $16,000 a year for the balance of your lives is not too rosy.

The only reasonable solution that comes to mind would be for you to cut back your immediate income expectations from this $200,000 by putting some of it into common stocks yielding less than 8 per cent, but giving you some hope of dividend increases as the dollar continues to lose buying power. Bonds paying 8 per cent today include best quality bonds. But I don't see how you can tie up even as much as $100,000 in that category to get that generous yield. At least $100,000 — if not more — should be put to work in equities which offer hope of increasing income.

Some REITs have been a bit better lately on hopes of Federal aid to housing. But I'd hate to pay a tax on that big real estate profit, all the while carrying over a big loss on the REITs.

There may be some market risk, but I'd consider selling the REITs to establish the loss and buying other REITs of the same quality immediately, or waiting 31 days, and then buying back your old shares.

Q. I'm 31, considering putting $15 a month in an insurance program which will pay me $14,708 when I'm 65 years old. However, with inflation, will I have profited at all? What if the $14,708 has buying power, then, of only $1,000? I'm single, no family, and am not interested in insurance protection. Seems to me I may not be gaining much.

A. Yep — you've said it all.

Q. I've attended three different seminars on stock options. All offered glowing promises of making money, no possibility of losing money. I'm confused. Are all these people millionaires? There must be some pitfalls. What are the "con" sides which were not given us?

A. You can make money on options. You can lose money on options. You can make money trading pork bellies; you can lose money trading pork bellies.

As in all market situations, the amount of profit you hope to make and the amount of loss you may suffer increase as the risk increases. You can play options pretty close to the vest, take small profits and limit your risks. Or you can go all out, try to outguess the market and take chances on big gains or big losses. There is no way to eliminate all chance of loss.

If you play options conservatively, you hold the stock against which you sell an option. The risk of loss stems from the fact that the stock may lose far more in value than you were paid for the option. These are called "covered" options.

If you sell "naked" options (against which you do not own the stock) you are increasing your risks. There are methods of hedging, of course, but the risk element is always present. I think any securities owner has a right to consider options... if he understands the risk he may be taking, as well as the limitations he is setting on profits.

Down On Red Dust

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The factory that turned Snoopy into the Red Baron is going to be under the watchful eye of Michigan environmental officials. The state Air Pollution Control Commission has announced a plan to cut down emissions of red dust from a Negaunee iron pelletizing plant owned by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co. Area residents complained at a public hearing that the red dust turns birch trees pink. One woman said her white dog, Snoopy, was re-named the Red Baron after the dust changed his color. Under the plan, red dust emissions will be monitored round-the-clock. The settlement also includes a provision for closing the facility in emergencies.

Taverns Facing Violation Hearings

Operators of three establishments in southwestern Michigan will be given hearings Jan. 4 on state liquor law violation charges, according to a release from the State Liquor Control commission.

All three are charged with their premises being occupied after the legal closing hour.

The three are: Ingier Enterprises, Inc., operator of H.I.'s Saloon, 214 State street, St. Joseph; Red Rooster Coffee Shops, Inc., 227 Main street, St. Joseph; and Eldon Burneal Hallmark, 4135 Main street, Grand Junction.

The three hearings are scheduled in the afternoon of Jan. 4 at the Kalamazoo county law enforcement facility building, 1500 Lamont, Kalamazoo.

Saudis To Hike Output Of Oil

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Saudi Arabia will boost oil production to 10 million barrels a day from its current 8.3 million as a result of the pricing dispute among members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, a reliable oil journal said today.

At the same time, Saudi's secretary general said in Vienna that the cartel's split over oil prices has caused some uncertainty and hinted that the second step of a two-part price rise adopted by 11 of the 13 OPEC members earlier this month might be waived.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) held their price rises to 5 per cent at an OPEC meeting at which the other members decided on a 10 per cent hike effective Jan. 1, and 5 per cent more July 1.

The Saudi oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, threatened after the meeting in Doha, Qatar, to flood the market with lower-priced Saudi oil.

The Middle East Economic Survey here quoted authoritative sources as saying the Saudi production rise would average 1.5 million barrels a day beginning Jan. 1, 1977, and would be reviewed every three months thereafter. There was no immediate word whether the UAE also would boost production.

Saudi Arabia is OPEC's largest producer. The Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco), which produces most Saudi crude, has the capacity to pump out 11.8 million barrels a day, the survey said.

It said Saudi authorities have imposed a production ceiling of 8.5 million barrels a day, and actual Aramco output for the first 11 months of 1976 has averaged about 8.3 million.

Saudi price-setters also broadened the difference between their market grade — Arabian light at $12.09 a barrel — and inferior heavy grades, the economic survey said.

The marker crude is used as a reference point for setting oil prices. Other grades of oil are priced higher and lower according to their quality and the ease with which they can be marketed.

"While prices for lighter crudes ... have been raised by the full 5 per cent, prices for (medium and heavy grade crude) have been increased by only 3.6 per cent and 3.0 per cent respectively," the newsletter said.

The survey said the other 11 OPEC members agreed at Doha to buttress their two-step price increase "by reducing their own production by an equivalent volume on a pro rata coordinated basis."

M.O. Feyide of Nigeria, the OPEC secretary general, said at a news conference in Vienna, "I assume that in the next six months, we will see how the market shapes up."

He added that the main factors would be production, the quantity of available oil and the demand in consuming countries.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

AUTO CORROSION — ITS COST

A startling half of all of you who own cars are living in areas where costly corrosion can be attacking your auto's doors, front and rear quarter panels, rocker panels, fenders, the back window, even under the vinyl top on the roof. You don't have to live in the snow belt to be in a rust-prone region. Salt and sulphur — the latter from sea air — may be the culprits. So may industrial air pollution. So may exhaust fumes.

And this is no minor expense. Rust and corrosion can be costing you more than $100 a year in additional depreciation on your car. Worse, this expense need not be endured. Preventive treatments within the first 3,000 miles of purchase can eliminate the danger.

Countless thousands of cars, 10-15 years old, are still giving their owners good service and showing little evidence of structural deterioration. Equal numbers, less than 10 years old, are in junkyards because rust has eaten away their bodies or weakened their frames. Between the extremes, warns the Department of Transportation, are uncared-for thousands more which have sustained varying degrees of structural decay — some merely unsightly, others actually a threat to life and still on the streets.

Treatments for the interior (unseen areas) within the walls of your auto's body can run from $70 to $150. Treatments for the exterior or outer surface can add $115 to $150 to the car's initial cost. In merely a three-year span, a car which has been treated in the snow belt can be worth $300-$500 more than an untreated car.

You are misled if you believe that traditional optional auto undercoatings prevent corrosion, say industry leaders. This undercoating serves primarily as a sound deadener. Moreover, the skill in applying a rust retardant is equal to or greater than the compound used.

"No rustproofing compound will protect surfaces caked with dirt, flaking, rust, water-soaked crevices or missed areas," says the Corrosion Engineers Assn. "If not thoroughly applied, the protection will not be achieved. The results are no better than the skill of the mechanics."

Before buying a used car, examine it carefully for rust, cautions the National Highway Safety Commission. Look at the body and the underside (frame, cross-member).

Be alert for signs of repainting and body putty to disguise area where rust already has damaged the car.

If you're buying a station wagon, remove the spare tire and examine the tire well. Lift the mat on the floor in the third seat area, check for rust and metal weakness. In other cars, lift the mat in the trunk, carpeting in passenger areas.

Drive the car through a car wash to spot leaks.

For periodic maintenance, keep your car clean, wax at least twice a year, hose down the underside twice a year if you live in an area where sand and salts are used on roads. If you live in sand country flush the vehicle underside. Keep drain holes in the bottom of the car doors open. After washing, leave car doors ajar for a few minutes to permit water drainage. Wash your car as soon as feasible after driving in heavy snow or slush. Wash off any white film on your car during winter driving (a sure sign of salt).

Christmas Tree Outlook Glum

POYNETTE, Wis. (AP) — The state's Christmas tree supply in the 1990s may suffer because of drought conditions in Wisconsin last summer, a grower says.

Robert Mountford, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Christmas Tree Growers Association, said many tree plantations lost 50 per cent or more of their two- and three-year-old saplings last summer because of drought.

Christmas Tree Outlook Glum

POYNETTE, Wis. (AP) — The state's Christmas tree supply in the 1980s may suffer because of drought conditions in Wisconsin last summer, a grower says.

Robert Mountford, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Christmas Tree Growers Association, said many tree plantations lost 50 per cent or more of their two-and three-year-old saplings last summer because of drought.

WIRTZ AIDE DIES

CHICAGO (AP) — Gertrude MacLean Knowles, secretary-treasurer and a director of the Chicago Stadium Corp., and personal secretary of Arthur M. Wirtz, principal owner of the stadium and the Chicago Black Hawks hockey team, died Sunday of cancer. She was 77.

Will Kissinger Become 'Henry Who'?

HENRY WHO: It's hard to believe, but that's the question the big New York publishing houses fear the American people will be asking about Secretary of State Kissinger, by the time his memoirs appear three years from now. By then, the publishers say, there'll be new names, new faces, new crises. Still, the reports of a multi-million dollar deal for his books and other works are basically accurate — despite denials by some publishers.

Q: Who's the front-runner to play Judy Holliday in the film-

bio of her tragic life? — A.W. Trenton, N.J.

A: By the time you read this, Bernadette Peters may have been signed. However, Terri Garr, Brenda Vaccaro, Stokard Canning and Madeline Kahn have shown interest, depending on how good and truthful the script will be.

ROYAL SCANDAL: London publishing circles are buzzing over a new "novel" called "The Corfu Kid," which is being peddled around. The main character is patterned somewhat after Britain's Prince Philip, who spent part of his youth on the spectacular Greek island of Corfu. The manuscript makes wild reading but the contents are so scurrilous, publishers are afraid to touch it. There's even talk that Royal pressure will be brought to bear if any publisher gets nifty enough to take the book.

MONEY WORRIES: A major singer loses money every time he appears in Las Vegas — even though he gets top dollar. Certain people he feels indebted to are gambling away most of what he earns at the local gaming tables.

Q: Since Barry Manilow's become such a big music star, does he still have time to write and sing TV commercials and jingles? — G.L., Springfield, Ill.

A: Time is not the problem. Barry became a millionaire by writing or performing or arranging, or sometimes all three, for such popular TV spots as the commercials for McDonald's, Pepsi, Chevrolet, and Band-Aids, among others. However, his new Aristo Record contract forbids his continuing in this highly lucrative field. And Barry now regrets that he

big Washington, D.C. banks, which have always had the privilege, are furious. Their current wisecrack is that Carter's planning to have so many thousands of admirers on hand, that he'll have to hire the ballpark — and serve Big Macs for everybody.

Q: Having just seen "Marathon Man" I can't believe that Sir Laurence Olivier was deathly ill in recent years. What's the real story? He certainly looks the picture of health. — I.W., Concord, N.H.

A: Lord Olivier has been near death three times in the last seven years. In 1967 he got cancer, in 1970 he suffered a thrombosis, and then in 1974 he was felled by the mysterious diseases, myositis, which attacks the muscles and left him unable to move, walk, or talk. The actor, now 69, has recovered from all three illnesses.

Q: Among married couples of child-bearing age in the United States, are there any figures as to what per cent do not practice birth control? — L.S. Princeton, N.J.

A: Only 9 per cent do not practice birth control, according to the last study done by the National Survey of Family Growth. The way the figures break down: 70 per cent are using contraceptives, 7 per cent have a sterility problem, 14 per cent are trying for a baby —

HENRY: Big money despite denials

Will Kissinger Become 'Henry Who'?

HENRY WHO: It's hard to believe, but that's the question the big New York publishing houses fear the American people will be asking about Secretary of State Kissinger, by the time his memoirs appear three years from now. By then, the publishers say, there'll be new names, new faces, new crises. Still, the reports of a multi-million dollar deal for his books and other works are basically accurate — despite denials by some publishers.

Q: Who's the front-runner to play Judy Holliday in the film-

bio of her tragic life? — A.W., Trenton, N.J.

A: By the time you read this, Bernadette Peters may have been signed. However, Terri Garr, Brenda Vaccaro, Stockard Channing and Madeline Kahn have shown interest, depending on how good and truthful the script will be.

ROYAL SCANDAL: London publishing circles are buzzing over a new "novel" called "The Corfu Kid," which is being peddled around. The main character is patterned somewhat after Britain's Prince Philip, who spent part of his youth on the spectacular Greek island of Corfu. The manuscript makes wild reading but the contents are so scurrilous, publishers are afraid to touch it. There's even talk that Royal pressure will be brought to bear if any publisher gets nery enough to take the book.

MONEY WORRIES: A major singer loses money every time he appears in Las Vegas — even though he gets top dollar. Certain people he feels indebted to are gambling away most of what he earns at the local gaming tables.

Q: Since Barry Manilow's become such a big music star, does he still have time to write and sing TV commercials and jingles? — G.L., Springfield, Ill.

A: Time is not the problem. Barry became a millionaire by writing or performing or arranging, or sometimes all three, for such popular TV spots as the commercials for McDonald's, Pepsi, Chevrolet, and Band-Aids, among others. However, his new Aristo Record contract forbids his continuing in this highly lucrative field. And Barry now regrets that he

big Washington, D.C. banks, which have always had the privilege, are furious. Their current wisecrack is that Carter's planning to have so many thousands of admirers on hand, that he'll have to hire the ballpark — and serve Big Macs for everybody.

Q: Having just seen "Marathon Man" I can't believe that Sir Laurence Olivier was deathly ill in recent years. What's the real story? He certainly looks the picture of health. — I.W., Concord, N.H.

A: Lord Olivier has been near death three times in the last seven years. In 1967 he got cancer, in 1970 he suffered a thrombosis, and then in 1974 he was felled by the mysterious diseases, myositis, which attacks the muscles and left him unable to move, walk, or talk. The actor, now 69, has recovered from all three illnesses.

Q: Among married couples of child-bearing age in the United States, are there any figures as to what per cent do not practice birth control? — L.S. Princeton, N.J.

A: Only 9 per cent do not practice birth control, according to the last study done by the National Survey of Family Growth. The way the figures break down: 70 per cent are using contraceptives, 7 per cent have a sterility problem, 14 per cent are trying for a baby —
